FORECAST FOR NOV. 2: DELUGE OF G. O. P. VOTES

Harding Breezes in All Directions.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—A landslide for Harding and Coolidge is the prospect of the outcome of the national election one week from next Tuesday. The indications on the eve of the election are that Gov. Cox will be one of the most decisively defeated candidates for the presidency in history.

Carefully checked and conservatively judged reports from every state in the union give Harding a minimum of 328 and Cox a maximum of 203 electoral votes, a majority of 125 for Harding.

The popular vote for the Republican ticket also appears likely to be enormous, the prospect being that Harding will receive not only a plurality but a majority of all the votes cast.

Votes in Electoral College.

Here is the distribution of the votes in the electoral college, based on the reports of the political situation in the several states:

FOR HARDING.

[illegible]	13	New Mexico	3
[illegible]	7	New York	45
[illegible]	3	North Dakota	5
[illegible]	4	Ohio	24
[illegible]	29	Oregon	5
[illegible]	15	Pennsylvania	38
[illegible]	13	Rhode Island	5
[illegible]	10	South Dakota	5
[illegible]	6	Vermont	4
[illegible]	18	Washington	7
[illegible]	15	Wisconsin	13
[illegible]	12	Wyoming	3
[illegible]	8
[illegible]	4	Total	328
[illegible]	14

FOR COX.

[illegible]	12	South Carolina	9
[illegible]	9	Tennessee	12
[illegible]	6	Texas	20
[illegible]	14	Virginia	12
[illegible]	10
[illegible]	10	Total	126
[illegible] Carolina	12

DOUBTFUL.

[illegible]	3	Nevada	3
[illegible]	6	Oklahoma	10
[illegible]	13	Utah	4
[illegible]	8	West Virginia	8
[illegible]	18
[illegible]	4	Total	77

Must Carry Western States.

If Cox should carry all the states listed as doubtful he would have a total of 203, which is 63 short of a majority in the electoral college. As a matter of fact he is not likely to carry all the doubtful states. Harding's chances are reported better than even in Maryland, Missouri, Utah, and West Virginia and good in Colorado and Montana.

The division of strength between the two parties is such that ordinarily a Democratic candidate to be successful must carry either New York or a large block of western states. President Wilson demonstrated this in 1916 when he lost New York and his own state, New Jersey, but carried all the northern states of the far west save Oregon and South Dakota.

Democrats Under Handicap.

This year, however, the Cox managers have no hope of carrying either New York or more than three or four of the far western states landed by Wilson. That measures the prospective Democratic disaster.

With party schism obliterated and with a crack organization built up by Will Hays and amply financed the Republicans have had a decided advantage from the start, while the Democrats have been badly handicapped by the burden of unpopularity of the Wilson régime, party dissension on issues, tardy organization, and lack of campaign funds.

More than Expected.

The Democratic managers have reported with much pride that $100,000 has been raised as a result of the appeal to "match the president," who contributed $500 to the campaign fund. When one reflects, however, that this means only 200 well to do Democrats have been induced to "match the president" by giving $500 each toward the election of Cox, one can only infer from their self-gratulation that the Democratic managers did not expect to get so many. For several days the most optimistic note sounded at Democratic national headquarters has been that "the tide has turned," which is tantamount to a confession that the Democratic job all along has been to pluck victory from impending defeat.

American in China Faces Charge of Embezzlement

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 23.—F. G. Boulon, an American, was arrested here today charged with the embezzlement of $20,[illegible] from the New York firm of Gaston, Williams & Wigmore. Boulon was released on bail and his case will be heard soon in the American court here.

Tenant Who Shot Pastor Exonerated

Fred W. Sextro, leader of an association of tenants, who shot and killed his landlord, the Rev. Frederick G. Ruff, former pastor of the Memorial Methodist church, was exonerated by a coroner's jury yesterday afternoon.

The killing occurred yesterday morning at 7 o'clock in the entrance of Ruff's apartment building at 1123-25 Farwell avenue.

Sextro recently came into notice as the leader of a protest against high rents. Ruff also was much mentioned in the talk of profiteering.

Sextro said he mistook the minister-landlord for a burglar. A coroner's jury returned a verdict to that effect and recommended that Sextro be released from custody.

M. C. Liss, attorney for Mrs. Ruff, said he expected to obtain evidence upon which a warrant for Sextro could be procured. Sextro is president of the Rutledge-Taylor Coal company.

Story of Shooting.

The shooting took place in the hallway of the apartment at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The Rev. Mr. Ruff and his family had planned an automobile trip to Melvin, Ill. Mrs. Ruff and the three children, Helen, 14 years old; Marie, 7, and Gretchen, 2, were seated in an automobile. Mr. Ruff was about to step in when he discovered he had forgotten his automobile key and returned to his apartment on the first floor to get it.

He had been gone only a few moments when she heard a shot, followed by the screams of a woman. She hurried to the building. As she entered she found her husband lying face downward at the foot of the stairway leading from their apartment. A few neighbors had rushed into the corridor. The police arrived in a few moments.

Patrolman Walter R. McCann found a bullet wound over Ruff's heart. The minister was unconscious. He died on the way to St. Francis hospital, Evanston.

Heard Fumbling at Lock.

Sextro's story to the coroner's jury was practically the same as he related to Capt. Stephen B. Wood and Lieut. Martin J. O'Malley immediately after the shooting.

"I was awakened by my wife," said Sextro. "She shook me several times. 'Someone is trying to break in,' she said. I heard someone at the lock of the door leading into the hallway. The doorknob rattled. The room was dark, but I could see well enough to get to the chest of drawers and get my revolver.

"I pounded on the door and shouted, 'Who is it?' several times. Then I heard some one going down the stairs. I unlocked both locks and opened the door. I was in my pajamas and barefooted.

"I saw a shadowy outline of some one running down the stairs and fired a shot.

"My wife screamed and fainted as she reached my side. I carried her to the bed, walked to the bathroom, got a wash cloth, which I dipped in water, and a glass of water, to revive her. I also opened a window.

Learns Victim's Identity.

"Mrs. Ruff was standing outside.

"'Who was it?' I called to her.

"'I don't know,' she replied. 'Mr. Ruff just went in to get his keys.'

"I then dressed and went downstairs. Mrs. Ruff's daughter said Mr. Ruff had been shot. I then said, 'I fired the shot.'

"When there was no reply to my call I thought a burglar was at my door. There were no lights in the hall. I bought the revolver thirteen or fourteen years ago. I had no idea it was Mr. Ruff and no thought of the arguments over the rents. The rent matter had been turned over to Gordon C. Abbott, chairman of our association.

MAN CLOSER TO BIRDS' SECRET OF LIVING WINGS

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.] [Copyright: 1920.]

PARIS, Oct. 23.—Before the military commission at Etampes a successful demonstration was made with an airplane of which wing surface can be increased or diminished during flight and the speed proportionately varied. The plane was designed by Levavasseur and Gastambode and was flown by Grandjean. After the demonstration of its power it was officially accepted by the commission.

The machine is a 250 horse power biplane of which new mechanism enables the pilot to vary the wing surface from 30 to 50 square meters and alter his speed from 30 to 200 kilometers an hour.

Arrangement of the rear wing of the upper plane enables the pilot at the same time as he expands to alter curvature or angle at which it is set and so present a greater or less resistance to the air. Landing in that way resembles almost exactly that of a bird.

Colonel One of Boys Again Attending U. of Illinois

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Col. Caspar H. Conrad, United States Army, today is just one of the boys attending the University of Illinois. Today he appeared on the street wearing "civies" and a student cap. He missed his boots and spurs and the wind flapped the legs of his trousers, but he regarded the change as a fine way to forget thirty years in the army. He is taking two years of special work at the university, availing himself of a recent war department order.

Net Value of Carnegie Estate Only $23,247,161

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The appraisal of the estate of Andrew Carnegie has been completed, showing a gross value of $26,293,024, and a net estate of $23,247,161. The huge fortune which he once possessed was reduced by the many public and private gifts Mr. Carnegie made during his life. The total value of Mrs. Carnegie's share is estimated at $11,338,847.

HOPE AND GLOOM IN BRIXTON JAIL

MacSwiney Weak, but Clings to Life.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(United News.)—Terence MacSwiney's life appeared to be slipping away rapidly tonight. Tension around Brixton jail increased. Police guards were strengthened early in the evening, as rumors continued to fly about the city that MacSwiney was dead but that officials were withholding the news. At 10 o'clock it was reported that MacSwiney was very weak.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.] [Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Despite rumors to the contrary, Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, is still alive and his condition on the seventy-second day of his hunger strike is little changed from yesterday. He is not "in his last moments," as reported, and is retaining the food given him by the prison physicians.

According to attending doctors, MacSwiney, while still delirious and very weak, is no worse than during the last three or four days. The physicians said tonight that feeding during delirium and unconsciousness might prolong his life and that, possibly, when he regained consciousness, having once tasted food, MacSwiney would eat voluntarily.

Mrs. MacSwiney and the lord mayor's brother and personal chaplain are still admitted to the prison.

LEAGUE ISSUES BULLETIN.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—[By Associated Press.]—At 8 o'clock tonight a bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination league on Lord Mayor MacSwiney's condition said:

"The condition of the lord mayor has not materially changed. He still is unconscious and does not recognize any one. The refusal to allow his two sisters to see him continues, and they are still in the prison waiting room, refusing to leave until they see their brother."

WOMAN CANED BY MAN AT DOOR OF HOTEL SHERMAN

It was 5:30 p. m. A young and pretty blonde dressed in velvety brown sauntered slowly up to the Clark street entrance of the Hotel Sherman.

From the lobby came a man, dressed likewise in brown, and carrying a malacca cane.

The two met. A few words passed. The man cursed and lifted his cane, striking the woman thrice across the shoulders.

"Save me!" she cried.

James McDonald, 842 North Lawndale avenue, a taxicab chauffeur, grabbed the man as a crowd of several hundred gathered.

The woman leaped into a passing cab and disappeared. The man, released, backed into the lobby. He, too, was lost when search was started.

Joy Flying in Omaha's Streets Causes an Arrest

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—What is said to be the first arrest in the west for reckless flying was made today when W. C. Brooks, aviator of Blair, Neb., was arrested for jeopardizing life and property by so flying Omaha streets that the wings of his plane almost scraped the sides of the buildings. He was released on $1,000 bail and will be tried in police court Monday.

Grand Junction, Colo., Oct. 23.—From three inches to five feet of snow tonight covers western Colorado. Many roads are closed. At Ouray the temperature was 16 degrees above zero.

ROBBER KILLS 1, WOUNDS FOUR; FELLED BY SHOT

Foiled in Shop Raid, Leads Wild Chase.

In the sixty minutes elapsing between Harry H. Ward's entrance into the shop of "Al the Hatter" with the command, "Hands up," and his arrival at the county hospital with his mother praying for "my little boy's" recovery, one man was killed yesterday, four persons were wounded, and a policeman was felled.

The shop is at 326 North Cicero avenue. In it at the time were Maurice Grossman, proprietor; Rebecca, his wife; Peter Floro, clerk. As Ward entered with the command, "Hands up," Maurice dropped behind a counter. Ward covered Floro. While he was emptying the till Rebecca ran to the street screaming.

Robbery Foiled, Shoots Four.

Ward ran after her, swearing and firing. Neighbors and passersby had congregated in front of the store where Ward's automobile was parked.

"Get him! He's a robber!" cried Rebecca.

Thomas Graney, 168 North La Crosse avenue, tried to. Ward whirled and shot him through the abdomen. He died at St. Anne's hospital.

The crowd pressed back, but Frank Schwartz, 4843 West Chicago avenue, made a flying leap for Ward. Ward fired twice while Schwartz was in midair, wounding him in the right side and the arm.

The crowd scattered and Ward started for his automobile. John Backarus, 4843 West Chicago avenue, barred the way. Ward took deliberate aim at his head and fired. Backarus dropped.

Fells Captor with Mallet.

Ward jumped in the car, the motor of which was running, and started down the street. Policeman Frank Hogan of the Austin station ran out of a side street, sprang on the running board, and pressed his revolver against Ward's head with the command:

"Move and I'll kill you."

He took two revolvers from Ward and ordered him to drive to the Austin station. Ward stopped, as though to operate his gear shift, but instead instantaneously wielded a steel mallet, which sent Hogan to the pavement unconscious.

Shot as He Flees.

Ward started his motor and was getting up speed when a bullet in the right lung caused him to slump to the floor. Policeman Martin McCormick of the traffic squad had fired it. He had been in an apartment above the hatshop when the shooting started, and had been racing the automobile on foot for five blocks.

"You'll probably die," they told Ward at the hospital. "You had better make a confession."

"I will if you call my mother," he said.

"Where does she live?"

"At 1749 Warren avenue."

She is Mrs. Loretta Trenton. When she reached his bedside, he whispered: "Well, mother, they got me this time."

Confesses Robber Career.

After a period of unconsciousness, during which the mother cried and prayed, he told the police he was a professional burglar and robber; that he had served five years in the Iowa state penitentiary; that he always operated alone, and that until the Grossman robbery he had never hesitated at any risk.

"I've fought policemen a hundred times," he said. "But it was that woman's screams. They made me lose my nerve. If it hadn't been for that they would never have caught me."

Bares $3,500 Jewelry Raid.

He told of robbing a number of jewelry stores, among them one at 1649 West Madison street. The loot figured $3,500, he said. He implicated John Sahly, a structural iron worker, as his fence, and John's brother, Arthur Sahly, a jewelry salesman.

Ward stole his automobile three months ago from a garage at 1211 North California avenue. He has stolen many others, he said.

One of his chief sources of revenue were the spooners in Peterson and Devon avenues, in Lovers' Lane, and between Evanston and Niles.

He was asked whether he killed Howard B. Rhodes, the Woodlawn dry goods merchant whose death occurred in Lovers' Lane the night of Aug. 29. Ward said he never had killed a man until yesterday.

Policeman Hogan will recover, as will John Backarus. Ward may recover.

Riots Cause Church Panic at Athlone

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.] [Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 23.—According to the Dublin correspondent of the London Sunday Times, Athlone is being terrorized by rioters believed to be British troops.

Hundreds of shots were fired in the streets and many bombs were hurled from lorries while the people were attending services in St. Mary's church today.

The firing was so terrific during the sacramental blessing by Father Lemon that women in the congregation rushed inside the altar rails for safety and there was a terrible panic in the church.

Battle at Moate.

Others crowded into a Franciscan church in a different neighborhood during firing outside. There also was intense firing in the vicinity of the old castle.

It was subsequently learned that the firing occurred as a reprisal for an attack on an armed police force between Moate and Kilbeggan, where a pitched battle occurred. One motor driver was shot dead and several others were injured.

Wild Bullet Kills Woman.

A large relief party with an armored car was attacked on the Athlone side of Moate. Later a running fight was maintained through the town of Moate and it is reported that in the wild firing one woman was killed, and it is believed there were other casualties.

A police chauffeur was shot dead today when thirty police were ambushed at Parkwood, Kings county. One Sinn Feiner and one other policeman were injured.

REPRISALS AT BANDON.

BANDON, County Cork, Oct. 23.—The interior of one building was destroyed by fire and four others damaged and a score of shops were smashed following the ambush of military lorries here yesterday. Reports that the village of Innishannon had suffered reprisals were circulated, but were found to be untrue.

According to eye witnesses, the reprisals in Bandon were committed by twenty or thirty soldiers who, after an hour, were induced by their officers to return to the barracks. Police and "black and tans" worked valiantly to save the property attacked.

BIG RACE BEGUN BY 7 BALLOONS

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 23.—Seven balloons entered in the international race for the Gordon Bennett trophy took the air from Birmingham today and in a light wind started a slow drift towards the north and west. The French entry, piloted by Capt. Louis Hirschauer, was first off; and in succession was followed by the United States army balloon, Lieut. R. E. Thompson and Capt. Harold Weeks, pilots; the Belgica, Belgian entry, with Lieuts. Ernest De Muyter and M. Labrouss; Adiens, first Italian entry, with Majors J. Valle and D. Leone; the Kansas City II. with H. E. Honeywell of St. Louis, who won the American elimination contest, and Dr. Jerome Kingsbury; the Triumphale, second Italian entry, with Maj. H. Madori and Lieut. A. Pirazzoli; and the Goodyear, with Ralph Upson and W. T. Van Orman.

BRITISH RAIL MEN POSTPONE THEIR STRIKE

Miners and Cabinet Confer Today.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(United News.)—The mayors of two London boroughs today refused the government permission to use municipal buildings to enroll volunteers to fight the strike. They are said to have acted on the advice of Robert Williams, radical leader of the transport workers. Williams advised them not to "let the middle class volunteers function." He declared the transport men had plans of their own for the distribution of food in event of a general strike.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.] [Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Following a joint meeting tonight of miners and railway workers, it was announced that the threatened strike of the railwaymen had been postponed. The walkout had been set tentatively for midnight tomorrow.

The miners' executives declared that such a strike at this time would only serve to make matters worse and possibly hurt chances of a favorable settlement. They also informed the railwaymen's leaders that they had received an invitation to meet again with the government and that they had decided to accept.

Labor Crisis Relieved.

The entire labor situation was much brighter today and there was every prospect for a speedy settlement of the coal strike. Robert Smillie, the miners' leader, arrived in London this morning after an all night journey from Scotland. He immediately conferred with the miners' delegates and later with the railwaymen and it is also stated, but not confirmed, that he had a private meeting with Mr. Lloyd George.

The miners' and railroaders' delegates conferred this afternoon and the railmen were told plainly that their help was not wanted at this moment, although it might be welcome later if a settlement could not be gained soon.

Lloyd George Optimistic.

The tone in Downing street today was specially optimistic. Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Bonar Law, Sir Robert Horne, Mines Minister Bridgeman and Coal Controller Duncan conferred together this morning, after which J. H. Thomas, the secretary of the railroaders, went to Downing street for a conference from which he hurried to attend the railroad men's meeting.

Mr. Lloyd George's secretary said tonight there was every probability that negotiations with the miners would be reopened either tonight or Monday. A significant feature noted today was the heavy trading on the Cardiff exchange in coal iron shares, which shrewd operators were buying for an immediate rise.

The prime minister is remaining in London over the week-end, so as to be in touch with any change in the situation and to be available for immediate consultation.

Compromise Basis.

It is deemed probable that the basis for a compromise settlement with the miners will be the immediate grant of the demanded two shillings per day raise on mutual agreement for reconsideration at the end of the year if increased output is not obtained and the establishment of local committees of owners and employés to increase the output as well as a thorough revision of wage anomalies.

The text of the government's special strike bill issued today shows that the government takes the power to regulate food, transport, fuel, light, water and all essential services. It also empowers the government, by order in council, if parliament is not sitting, to assume all the powers deemed necessary for the preservation of order.

PREMIER HAS NEW PLAN

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The Evening Standard said tonight it understood the premier would present a new formula at the forthcoming conference, which already has received the unofficial approval of several leaders of the miners.

Lloyd George sent a letter to the miners, inviting them to an immediate conference. Frank Hodges, secretary, accepted for the federation and arranged for a deputation of miners to meet the premier in Downing street at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The official statement issued by the miners said that, acting on their advice, the railway workers had suspended their sympathetic strike "to give every opportunity for an honorable settlement." The suspension, it was said, would continue during the period of negotiations between the miners and the government.

The railway workers, dominated by the radical element, voted to go out in a sympathetic strike, it was learned today. They were said to be facing serious dissension within their ranks, however, because of the refusal of J. H. Thomas, their secretary, to lead such a demonstration.

The belief was expressed in official circles that the transport workers—the third division of the triple labor alliance—would refuse officially to call a sympathetic strike, although 8,000 were out in Yorkshire as the result of a local dispute.

Parliament reconvenes Monday to pass emergency legislation.

All branches of the electrical workers' union will meet Monday to decide on a sympathetic strike.

Says Miners Want Peace.

Mr. Thomas, in announcing the suspension of the strike notices pending negotiations between the miners and the government, said the miners had given another indication of their anxiety for peace and that it was for every one to help towards an honorable settlement.

The transport workers had meanwhile, it is understood, decided to await further action until the meeting of the parliamentary committee of the Trades Union congress, next Wednesday, although no official statement was made to this effect.

Hope—and Despair.

A hopeful feeling prevailed here tonight, W. C. Bridgeman, the new minister of mines, having, it is understood, prepared a fresh formula designed to make the government's coal output proposals look more attractive to the miners.

Mr. Lloyd George will put this formula before the miners' representatives Sunday.

However, this was a "black" Saturday for thousands of workers throughout the country who received notices with their weekly pay that their services would not be required Monday or that they would be placed on half time, as the factories had not sufficient fuel to continue working full time.

President's Auto Rescues Victims of an Accident

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—President Wilson's automobile broke all speed regulations today when it made a record run to the emergency hospital, carrying two women injured during an automobile collision.

The women were Mrs. A. A. Frazier, 77, and Mrs. Jessie F. Webster of Washington.

The president's car, empty except for the chauffeur, was passing when the women's machine was struck and wrecked by another automobile.

Two Annapolis Students May Be Dropped; Liquor

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Running afoul of the naval academy regulations on intoxicants, two and perhaps more midshipmen face possible dismissal from the naval service. Recommendations in a number of the cases are before the naval department for final action. Several students, it is said, have been allowed to resign in the last few days. Naval academy authorities admit that two midshipmen have been recommended for dismissal.

Aviation Mechanics Beat Great Lakes Radio Team

In the inter-regimental series at Great Lakes Naval station, the Aviation Mechanics school football team defeated Rado school, 40 to 0, yesterday. The Mechanics tried four passes, and three resulted in touchdowns. Scridner, Rinland, and Haywood led the winners, while Radio's best man was Yost.

WILSON, NOT COX, THE CANDIDATE, HUGHES IMPLIES

Their Attitude on League Identical, He Says.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 23.—Woodrow Wilson might as well be the Democratic candidate again this year as Gov. Cox, Charles E. Hughes declared in an address on the league of nations here tonight.

"How vain it is to say that Mr. Cox is running for president and not Mr. Wilson," Mr. Hughes exclaimed, adding:

"The time has now passed for efforts to placate an autocratic executive. If Mr. Cox is going to part company with Mr. Wilson and is opposed to article 10 why should he not frankly say that he favors its elimination?"

The stand of Gov. Cox and that of President Wilson are identical to commit the United States to the league with article 10, and only meaningless reservations, Mr. Hughes asserted.

Have Not Changed Stand.

Neither the president nor the governor has changed his attitude in this respect, and all insinuations and declarations to the contrary are misstatements, he added.

"As Mr. Wilson says," continued Mr. Hughes, "to set forth that congress alone can declare war, would merely be a statement of our constitutional method. It would be not a denial of the obligation, but, as he said, a statement of the way in which we should fulfill it. This would not affect the obligation assumed by the treaty upon which Mr. Wilson so strenuously insisted. When this nation binds itself by the treaty-making power to other nations, then it is bound to use all its organs according to its own methods for the purpose of performing that obligation.

Not Meaningless Words.

"If article 10 were a meaningless form of words, he would not object to removing it. But he insists upon it because it does impose an obligation and because he desires the United States to rest under that obligation. Having secured the imposition of the obligation, he has no objection to what he considers a vacuous statement as to the way in which we discharge our obligations.

"We come now to the question of the attitude of Mr. Cox, and in behalf of his abhorrence of wabbling, we may suppose that it will exhibit a similar fixity of purpose.

"Unless the Democratic platform intended grossly to deceive the people, it meant to say that the party indorsed President Wilson in his firm stand against any reservation which would impair the effectiveness of article X. Then what of the candidate? Did he not say explicitly that he stood upon the Democratic platform? Will he now say that he repudiates the Democratic platform?

Settled at Outset of Campaign.

"This question came up acutely at once and to settle it Mr. Cox made the pilgrimage to the White House so that there should be no mistake of the entire concord of the two leaders. After his visit to the White House Mr. Cox said: 'We are agreed as to the meaning and sufficiency of the Democratic platform.' President Wilson announced that he found that he and Gov. Cox were 'absolutely at one with regard to the great issue of the league of nations.'

"Mr. Wilson's letter to Senator Hitchcock as late as March 8, 1920, clearly states his position beyond any possibility of cavil. Did this letter state that Mr. Wilson was willing to accept a reservation, which in any way impaired the obligation to be assumed under article X? Not at all. He stated the exact contrary."

ASK EXTRADITION OF CHICAGOAN.

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 23.—A petition for extradition of Clifford J. Skervin, now under arrest in Wichita, but out on bond, was filed yesterday with Gov. H. J. Allen by Gov. Lowden of Illinois, and hearing was set for Nov. 8. The application states Skervin is charged with embezzling $175,000 in an oil deal by the Union Trust company of Chicago.

WHERE LONE ROBBER SHOT 4 MEN

FIND NEW CLEW TO SAILSTAD COTTAGE BONES

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—It was established here today that Edward J. Sailstad, the missing former president of the Multitone Manufacturing company, and Miss Dorothy Anderson, his secretary, visited a cemetery near Lafayette on Aug. 19. Seven days later his cottage on Lake Nebagamon was destroyed by flames. In the embers some human bones were found. According to officials here, these bones may have been procured from a grave in the Lafayette cemetery. Close inspection of the graveyard will be made Monday.

Sailstad and the girl were seen near Lafayette by Forrest Bateman. They stopped him near the cemetery and asked several questions regarding the graves. They were in a small runabout which answers the description of Sailstad's car.

"Mr. Sailstad also questioned me regarding other cemeteries in the surrounding country," said Mr. Bateman.

The incident is regarded as strengthening the theory of investigators for insurance companies carrying Sailstad's $60,000 life insurance that the man "planted" a human body in the fire which destroyed his summer home to make it appear that he had perished in the flames.

RUNNING WORLD LEAGUE TO COST 4 MILLION A YEAR

BRUSSELS, Oct. 23.—[United Press.]—The league of nations will cost the world $4,000,000 a year, according to a budget adopted by the council of the league here today.

Sir Hubert Ames, treasurer, announced that of this amount $854,000 would be expended in salaries, $1,400,000 for administration and operation of the international labor bureau, and $700,000 for the various commissions and conferences.

The council adopted a plan of allocation of this expense which put the United States in the first class with such nations as England and France, which will pay 25 units of the cost. The second group, including Spain, will pay 20 units; the third group, including Brazil, 15 units, and the fifth with Argentina and Chile, 5 units.

Argentina's request that she be recognized as a nation of the first category is under consideration.

NICARAGUA NAMES ENVOY.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—Dr. Alejandro Cesar has been appointed Nicaraguan minister to the United States. The selection has been approved by the state department, and the new minister, a son of Dr. Octaviano Cesar, minister of finance of Nicaragua, is expected to start for Washington at once.

WILSON ADMITTED WAR PERIL UNDER ARTICLE X.—KNOX

Senator Reveals "Moral Obligation" Talk.

President Woodrow Wilson was the man who said to United States senators—members of the foreign relations committee—that the United States under article X. of the league of nations were under "an absolutely compelling moral obligation" to go to war to repel external aggression against a member of the league of nations.

United States Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania, former secretary of state, made the foregoing statement, through Senator Harry S. New of Indiana, a fellow member of the foreign relations committee of the senate. The statement was issued by Senator New through the Republican national headquarters.

Appended was a stenographic report of the conversation between President Wilson and members of the committee, prior to the second trip President Wilson made to France.

Knox Presents the Issue.

Senator Knox prefaces the stenographic report with this declaration, as made through Senator New:

"Article X. of the covenant seems now to be the bone of controversy and the question is: Are we, under its terms, obligated to go to war if war is necessary to repel external aggression against members of the league.

"When we are told, as President Wilson recently told us, that 'those who do not care to tell you the truth about the league of nations tell you that article X. of the covenant of the league of nations would make it possible for other nations to lead us into war, whether we will it by our own independent judgment or not,' it may be just as well as inquire who told us so."

Gives Verbatim Report.

Senator Knox thereupon supplies the following report of the White House dialogue:

"Senator Knox—Mr. President, allow me to ask this question. Suppose that it is perfectly obvious and accepted that there is an external aggression against some power, and suppose it is perfectly obvious and accepted that it cannot be repelled except by force of arms; would we be under any legal obligation to participate?"

"The President—No, sir. But we would be under an absolutely compelling moral obligation."

The Knox statement concludes:

"I entirely agree with Mr. Wilson that even we would be under an absolutely compelling moral obligation to go to war under the circumstances named. I can think of nothing more inexorable than an absolutely compelling moral obligation."

WILSON FEARS LEAGUE CHANGE, HARDING SAYS

Might Conflict with Paris Promises.

Marion, O., Oct. 23.—Alluding for the first time to the controversy between President Wilson and Senator Spencer over the former's Paris utterances regarding America's part in maintaining European peace, Senator Harding said tonight the version of the president's words recently published in this country and attributed to Premier Bratiano of Roumania, served to throw new light on the real character of article X.

The controversy as to the exact language used by Mr. Wilson was not itself discussed by the Republican nominee, who said in reply to a question that it was not his dispute. He added, however, that "the belated testimony of the Roumanian premier is very interesting by way of confirming the president's objections to amending the league covenant."

Objected to Changes.

"The president said to several senators," continued Mr. Harding, "for one of whom I can speak definitely, that any amendment would lead to demands by Roumania and other small nations with attending embarrassment.

"All this emphasizes our objection to the covenant as written. Clearly the supreme council trespassed the rights of the small nations and assumed to decide their very own political and economic affairs, and then set about to maintain the existing order of things by the rule of force. It has been the Republican purpose all along to establish a world association for the rule of justice rather than force.

"Clearly Europe understands that which we are coming to know, that the league as written commits America to the armed support of the four great powers in maintaining the integrity of their enlarged dominions whenever attacked from without. This is why America will vote its unalterable hostility to article X. When that is done we may seek a new understanding—one which will hold us unmortgaged to Europe and the orient."

Quotes Thomas Jefferson.

The senator made no speeches during the day, but in elaborating his comment on the Bratiano interview he gave out several quotations from Thomas Jefferson, Grover Cleveland, and Woodrow Wilson which, he said, had a direct bearing on the whole league issue. He called attention that it was ninety-seven years ago tomorrow that Jefferson wrote to Monroe:

"Our first and fundamental maxim should be never to entangle ourselves in the broils of Europe."

The following he quoted from a speech by Cleveland on Dec. 8, 1885:

"We have foreborne from taking part in any controversy between foreign states, but have left to every nation the exclusive conduct and management of its own affairs."

His quotation from President Wilson was taken from a newspaper report of the president's words on May 6, 1914, and was as follows:

"America should lead her own life. We cannot form alliances with those who are not going our way. We need not and we should not form alliances with any nation in the world."

ELECTION COST TO 'FRIENDS' PUT AT $100,000,000

Bigger Guns Fire Gold at Democratic Coffers.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The 1920 political campaign had cost, to Oct. 21, about $3,920,115, according to incomplete statements filed to date with the clerk of the house of representatives.

If the average expenditure is maintained until the close of the polls on Nov. 2, it is figured that about $15,000,000 will have to be accounted for in reports to be submitted.

What expenditures made in the elections will total can only be surmised. It has been placed at double the amount of reported expenditures. This year the estimated disbursements would be $30,000,000. If there is added to this funds spent by friends of candidates and by individuals interested the grand total might well reach $100,000,000.

Some of the Sums Involved.

The reported contributions and expenditures received by the clerk of the house of representatives are:

Democratic national committee: Contributions, $677,934; expenditures, $699,471.

Democratic congressional campaign committee: Contributions, $13,435; expenditures, $12,115.

Republican national committee: Contributions, $2,466,019; expenditures, $2,741,503.

Republican congressional campaign committee: Contributions, $509,505; expenditures, $346,244.

Socialist party: Contributions, $51,028; expenditures, $48,478.

Pro-league Independents of New York: Contributions, $16,735; expenditures, $14,706.

Bernard M. Baruch, league of nations motion picture: Contribution and expenditure, $35,000.

Many Neglect to File.

Statements of expenditures had not been filed late today by the Prohibition party, the Anti-Saloon league, the Nonpartisan league, the Farmer-Labor party, and other organizations and committees engaged in the national political field.

Individual contributions to the Democratic funds were heavier than to the Republican treasury, due to Chairman Hays' policy of holding to $1,000 the individual subscriptions by Republican partisans. H. A. Wroe, a banker of Austin, Tex., gave the largest individual Democratic contribution, $20,000.

The list of expenditures shows that Gov. Cox' swing around the country has cost about $57,000 to date.

Woman Who Shot Teacher Still Eludes the Police

Mrs. Carmelita Rindoni, 1537 Polk street, who shot Miss Rosalind Reynolds, teacher in the McLaren school and threw the pupils into a panic with her revolver Friday, continues to elude the police. Officials of the board of education said they would throw the entire weight of the city administration into the effort to prosecute the woman. Miss Reynold's condition is not serious.

JURORS CLEAR TENANT SLAYER OF PASTOR RUFF

Mistakes Landlord for Burglar, Shoots.

I had been away. I understood the matter had been settled. I saw some one running and fired the shot."

Mrs. Sextro corroborated her husband's statement. She said their 13 year old son, Fred Jr., had gone out into the hallway while his father was reviving her, when he came back he said Mr. Ruff had been shot.

Widow Disputes One Detail.

Sextro's statement that he had called to Mrs. Ruff from a window was not corroborated by her.

"I did not hear Mr. Sextro call to me from the window," she told Deputy Coroner George Williston. "I think it was his little boy who told me some one had been shot. Later, after I had learned the victim was my husband, Mr. Sextro said: 'I'm sorry, Mrs. Ruff, I shot him.'"

Harold R. White, vice president of John Sexton & Co., who occupied the apartment directly over the Sextro flat, called the police when he heard the shot. Mrs. White went into the hallway while he was telephoning. She says she heard Sextro say in a husky voice: "My God, I've shot him! Is it a burglar? Where did he go?"

Burglar Scare in Building.

She also told how her apartment had been robbed a week ago. Mrs. Sextro was alone in the flat below and had been apprehensive since, she said.

Edward V. Watson, a salesman for Wilson Brothers, who occupies the English basement directly under the Ruff apartment, was up when the shot was fired and found Ruff's body. It was only after he lighted matches that he learned it was Ruff.

There has been no explanation of how the minister came into possession of his automobile key, which was found in one of his pockets. Mrs. Ruff says she did not see any light in their apartment and does not believe he could have found the key without a light. No one has offered a satisfactory explanation for Mr. Ruff's presence at the door of the Sextro apartment.

Rent Fight Just Settled.

Mrs. Ruff testified her husband was tired of the long fight with his tenants. It had been adjusted only the previous day and he was going to the country for a rest. Henry C. Tank, manager of the building, testified Sextro was one of a delegation of tenants who called upon him to protest about rent raises and that some in the delegation said Mr. Ruff "ought to be tarred and feathered and thrown in the lake." He did not say Sextro had said this.

The Rev. Mr. Ruff was one of four clergyman brothers, the others being the Rev. George Ruff, Columbus, O., the Rev. Leonard Ruff, Danville, Ill., and the Rev. Ernest Ruff of Chicago. The mother, Mrs. Henry Ruff, lives at 1133 Addison street.

ARMY MAN SLAIN IN VIRGINIA ROAD NEAR CAPITAL

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Police authorities are investigating the mysterious murder of Frank M. Scanland of Louisville, Ky., formerly a major in the army and an overseas veteran. His bruised body was found last night in a clump of shrubbery about half a mile northwest of Alexandria.

Two fractures of the skull just above the left ear are believed to have been the direct cause of his death.

Recently Maj. Scanland had been living in Youngstown, N. Y., where his widow now is.

War department records show that he served thirteen years in the ranks of the army and more than three years as a commissioned officer. While in command of a battalion of the 332d infantry in Italy he was severely gassed and wounded with shrapnel.

WILSON EXPECTS YOUTH OF NATION TO SAVE LEAGUE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—President Wilson telegraphed the Young American's Democratic league of Columbia university today his belief that the young men and women of the country "will rally to the support of the perpetuation of the high ideals for which we fought in the great war."

Conveying his greetings through Rolland Bradley to a meeting of the Young American's Democratic league in New York City, the president said:

"The young men and women of the country should be even more deeply interested in this critical contest than other Americans, for the issues are the issues of the future.

"They will determine the future influences and greatness of the United States in the counsels of the nations. They will determine our moral force in all the great pending contests of right with which the world is already quick.

"I believe the young men and women of the country will see the vision of opportunity which now presents itself and will rally to the support of the league of nations."

HOTEL MAID MISSING; STRANGER SEEKS HER BANK BOOK; SUIT FILED

A strange case was brought to the attention of immigration authorities and turned over to the matron interpreter at the immigration bureau yesterday. It has to do with the disappearance of Miss Mary Dokupel, formerly employed as a maid by the Great Northern hotel. According to the story told by Mrs. Anna Golumbika, a relative of the girl, Miss Dokupel had been away when a strange woman appeared and asked for the bank book owned by the missing girl.

MARY DOKUPEL.

The stranger said she had been sent by Miss Dokupel. Fearing that something might be wrong, Mrs. Golumbika refused to give up the book which represented several hundred dollars, but said she would do so if Miss Dokupel would ask for it personally.

MRS. ANNA GOLUMBIKA.

Yesterday suit was filed in Superior court for the recovery of the bank book. Any one who knows of the whereabouts of the missing girl is requested to inform the matron at the immigration bureau.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN —IN BRIEF—

WASHINGTON, D. C.—With nearly $4,000,000 already reported, it is estimated that campaign expenditures by all parties in the field and their friends' donations will total $100,000,000.

NEW YORK.—Charles E. Hughes, in address on league of nations, said that President Wilson and not Gov. Cox is practically the candidate for president.

NEW YORK.—Gov. Cox told New Yorkers, in the windup of his eastern campaign, that the only hope of peace and prosperity is in his election and in the United States joining the league of nations. Willing to accept some changes in article X.

MARION, O.—Discussing the Wilson-Spencer controversy, Senator Harding declared the president had said to a group of senators, of which he was one, that any change in the league would lead to demands by Roumania and other small nations, with attending embarrassment.

KING ALEXANDER ILLNESS NOW AT CRITICAL STAGE

Cerebral Crisis Reached, Physicians Say.

ATHENS, Oct. 23.—King Alexander of Greece, who is critically ill as a result of infection caused by the bite of a monkey, entered a very acute cerebral crisis today. His condition was described by his physicians as most critical.

The crisis lasted three hours, after which there was a slight improvement. Weakness was extreme, however. The physicians' report gave the temperature as 38.1 centigrade (100.6); pulse, 132; respiration, 48.

His majesty, it was stated, was frequently delirious. The pneumonia symptoms presented no worse features, it was added, but the state of the wounds arising from the monkey bite and the patient's general condition were pronounced unsatisfactory.

Deny Plot Story.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—[Havas.]—The Greek legation today issued a denial of a statement attributed by a Rome newspaper to Dr. Widal, who has been attending King Alexander of Greece, to the effect that the monkey that bit the king had been artificially inoculated with rabies. Dr. Widal, according to the legation, has declared that the bite infected the king with a form of bacteria which has several times been isolated from the wound.

Physician Hopeful.

Greek legation officials said today that Dr. Georges Fernand Widal, the noted French specialist who has just reached Paris from Athens, had a long talk with them when he returned here. Dr. Widal asserted that when he left Athens King Alexander's condition was such that he (Dr. Widal) was "very hopeful, on account of Alexander's naturally strong constitution."

Evanston Post, A.L., to Give Concert Election Night

The Evanston Post of the American Legion will give an election night concert at Patten gymnasium, Northwestern university, Evanston. The United States Marine band has been secured for the occasion. CHICAGO TRIBUNE election returns will be flashed during the concert and afterward admission to the public will be free after the concert is over.

THE TRIBUNE secured an option on Patten gymnasium for election night several months ago to give election results, but yielded its option to the Evanston post in order that the concert might be held.

Lewis Pleases Old Soldiers; Small Sees Certain Victory

Danville, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—"That's him, with the whiskers."

Thus it was that a veteran of the civil war was able to inform his comrades of the soldiers' home at Danville that J. Hamilton Lewis was among them. It was "by his beard ye shall know him."

The old soldiers were gathering in their auditorium to hear what the "Demycrat" might have to say for himself. And then the "Demycrat" himself a colonel in the Spanish-American war and a candidate for governor of Illinois, failed even to request a single vote.

"Not Asking for Votes."

"I want you to tell the old soldiers, your comrades," said Col. Lewis, "that I did not come here to ask for votes.

"If a soldier hasn't a sufficient sense of patriotism in him to know what to do at the ballot box to save his country from political debauchery and degradation, I'll not tell him."

J. HAMILTON LEWIS.

There ensued a mighty bobbing of heads, goatees and other forms of facial decoration.

"You fought for a principle of what is right and not for a party name," the former senator continued. "You fought for a free ballot and a fair count.

"Then, after all your sacrifice, you have seen yonder in Chicago one of the greatest political crimes in the history of the union, the stealing of a nomination for governor by a set of corrupt black and white men.

Makes Hit with Veterans.

"There are people who think you will vote for anything so long as it is labelled with the word 'Republican.' But will you, by your vote, permit that name to stand for degradation and political debauchery?"

The tenants of the Soldiers' home brought to Danville by Uncle Joe Cannon with the legislative assistance of Col. Lewis, are almost unanimously followers of the elephant. As one old fellow put it as he hobbled out of the hall: "I'd like to vote for the colonel, sure enough, but"—with a sad shake of his head—"he's a Demmycrat."

Asks Federal Vigilance.

At Peoria tonight Col. Lewis startled his audience, telling them he had requested the federal government to watch the polls Nov. 2.

"I will do everything in my power to have secret service men and United these balloting places," he said.

"I shall ask that the government fortify these places and every ballot box section of Illinois with enough officials promptly to arrest and jail each person attempting to vote under the false registration or to vote a ballot in violation of state or federal statutes."

OPENS IN CHICAGO TODAY.

Col. Lewis opens his Chicago campaign today. He speaks first at a nonpolitical meeting of women, arranged for by Miss Jane Addams of Hull house, which will be held in the Woods theater in the afternoon. From there he goes to the Nativity school hall, Thirty-seventh street and Union avenue, in the Fifth ward, and then to the Tilden High school, at Forty-seventh place and Union avenue, in the Thirtieth ward. Both meetings are scheduled for 3 p. m. In the evening he again speaks at a nonpolitical gathering of the Morgan Park Sunday Evening club at Hoyne avenue and One Hundred and Twelfth street.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Streator, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—A week's swing through central, southern, and eastern Illinois, ending tonight at Streator, has convinced state Republican leaders that Harding will pile up a plurality in the state of close to 400,000. Len Small, it is admitted, will run considerably behind the national ticket, but it is figured he can afford to give away an average of 1,000 Republican votes in each county and still maintain a comfortable lead over James Hamilton Lewis. Some estimate that Small will not lose more than twenty counties.

Adams county, which has not gone Republican since the McKinley campaign in 1896, and which went strongly Democratic even in the Roosevelt landslide, will go Republican this election, according to local political forecasters. Many other strong Democratic counties are listed in the Republican column.

Calls Small's Election "Sure."

State Chairman Frank L. Smith places the Harding plurality in the state at 386,000.

"Illinois will roll up a record breaking plurality for Harding and Coolidge," he said, "and the election of Len Small as governor is assured beyond a doubt and by a handsome plurality. This lead will be fairly evenly divided between downstate and Cook county, for the latter should return a Harding and Coolidge lead of between 125,000 and 150,000. Len Small's defeat of Senator Lewis may not be as overwhelming as the Harding smash of Cox, but it will be a most substantial victory. He is making votes every day."

Congressman William E. Mason became ill following the Quincy meeting last night and was forced to leave the "Harmony Special" at Rock Island this morning. The congressman last night delivered one of his characteristically vigorous talks, lampooning Lewis on the Ruby Lynn theme. Upon his return to the train he suffered an attack of chills. It was feared he had contracted the flu, and it was deemed advisable for him to return to Chicago.

Strike Democratic Weather.

The special encountered the first rainy weather on the trip today. It drizzled on the crowds at Monmouth and Galesburg and was still raining when the train pulled into Rock Island. A meeting was held there and the candidates motored over to Moline where a noon audience was addressed in the manufacturing district. The "Democratic weather" is blamed on the fact that the engine which pulled the special yesterday was No. 13.

Frank Farrington, president of the United Mine Workers of Illinois, boarded the train at Galesburg, where the labor convention is being held, and conferred with Small. Other stops were made at Galva, Kewanee, Princeton, Ladd, Peru, and La Salle.

Some of the candidates will remain here in Streator over Sunday while others will motor to Starved Rock and other recreational points. Mr. Small will return to Kankakee over Sunday.

On Monday the special will swing around Pontiac, Joliet, Ottawa, Dixon, Sterling and Rockford. The tour ends Tuesday night at Aurora and then the candidates will come into Chicago for the windup.

Chester Rowell Bolts Ticket; To Vote for Cox

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 23.—Announcement that he would support Gov. Cox for president was made by Chester H. Rowell, former publisher of the Fresno Republican, in a telegram to Senator Pittman of Nevada, of the Democratic national committee here. Mr. Rowell is former chairman of the Republican state central committee and four years ago was on the Republican national campaign committee.

SMALL'S CHANCE TO WIN LIES IN 'STRAIGHT' VOTE

Lewis Expected to Run 100,000 Ahead of Cox.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Len Small's chances to be elected governor of Illinois rest entirely upon the size of the "straight vote" cast for the Republican national and state tickets.

In analysis of the Illinois situation, the judgment of those who have checked up available data is that Lewis will run at least 100,000 ahead of Cox in Illinois and Small will run behind Harding by 50,000 or less. The difference is accounted for by dopesters on the theory that a possible 10 per cent of a Republican vote of 800,000 will not be cast for either Lewis or Small. Another 100,000 is marked off as a possible total vote for John H. Walker, the Farmer-Labor candidate for governor, and another 50,000 or 100,000 for the straight Socialist ticket.

On top of this must be taken into consideration the attitude of the women voters. In the primary downstate, practically 70 per cent of them voted for Oglesby.

Claims of G. O. P. Chief.

Frank L. Smith, chairman of the Republican state committee, last night made the following claim:

"The whole Republican ticket will win. Every candidate on the state ticket is certain to get a splendid majority. Never in its history has Illinois been so intensely anti-Democratic as it is today. With two-thirds of the downstate men and women bent upon getting rid of a Democratic administration at Washington, it is foolish to say they will double cross themselves by voting to install a Democratic régime at Springfield.

"The work for the final week of the campaign will be directed toward clinching the victory we believe the party has already won. The special train carrying state candidates will be out Monday and Tuesday in northern Illinois. The effect of their trip has been excellent everywhere."

Chairman Ernest Hoover of the Democratic state committee issued the following statement:

"Party lines have been wiped out and the changes have all been to the advantage of Democrats. All I care to say at this time is that the last week has seen Republicans all over the state flocking to the standard of James Hamilton Lewis in such numbers that the shift would assure victory in any ordinary state election. I believe Col. Lewis will continue to gain and that prospects for a victory for him and his associates were never brighter.

"Confidential advices from the Small camp are that he is relying upon a 75,000 plurality in Cook county to 'put him over.' This is a practical admission that the state outside of Cook county will go for Lewis. I believe Small managers are going to be fooled if they count on a 75,000 plurality in Cook county."

COX IS WILLING TO MAKE CHANGE IN ARTICLE TEN

Cheered by 15,000 at N. Y. Meeting.

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Before the greatest audience by thousands which he has faced during his strenuous campaign, Gov. James M. Cox delivered his message on the league of nations at Madison Square Garden tonight.

He told 15,000 enthusiastic hearers that he would accept reservations to the covenant and especially to article X—the storm center of the long peace treaty fight.

"I want this to be my formal expression as to a reservation for article X," he said. "I am willing to accept any reservation stating explicity that the United States assumes no obligations to use its military or naval forces to the end of assisting any other member of the league unless it is approved or authorized by congress."

Compromise Is Necessary.

"It is going to be necessary to make some compromise to secure the desired end, and that I am willing to do," he added. "I am for the ratification of the league with reservations, and have so stated my position in every speech made from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"I will accept reservations that are helpful, that will clarify, that will reassure our own people, and that will make clear to our associates in the league the limitations of our constitution, beyond which we cannot go; among which are the Hitchcock reservations, including this, in reference to article X: 'That the advice mentioned in article X. of the covenant which the council may give to the member nations, as to the employment of their naval and military forces, is merely "advice," which each member nation is free to accept or reject, according to the conscience and judgment of its then existing government, and in the United States this advice can be accepted only by action of the congress at the time in being, congress alone, under the constitution of the United States, having the power to declare war.'

Will Meet with Senate.

"I will sit down at a table with the members of the United States senate and will say: 'Gentlemen, there has been enough discussion, there has been enough conversation; the election has brought forth a mandate. It is time for action.' And from my experience as a legislator and as an executive I am confident that we will have action."

In a meeting that tingled with excitement, Gov. Cox heard himself acclaimed for twelve minutes. There he withstood the verbal assaults of half a dozen hecklers.

The most exciting moments of the meeting came during the attempts of hecklers to get the better of Gov. Cox. Gov. Cox gave cause for interruption when he said:

"There is nothing more necessary to the civilized peace of the world than good relations between the English speaking nations of the world. The only bar has been the Irish question.

To Invoke Article XI.

"Now, under article XI. of the league, whenever a matter arises tending in any way to interfere with the existing good relations between the nations of the world, any member nation may bring it to the attention of the league. If I become your president and the Irish question shall not have been settled by the early part of next year then I shall exercise the executive authority of a nation I am sure will be a member of the league, and I shall, myself, if necessary, present to the bar of public opinion, to the conscience of the world, the cause of the Irish people."

Then somebody shouted at him: "How will you bring the question of Ireland before the league? That is a domestic question of England."

Cox replied:

"My friend, you have been reading Senator Harding's speeches. He is the only man I know of who says it is a domestic question. I don't believe it is. I know it is not. I will tell you why it is not. Whenever a war becomes a war of extermination it becomes a world tragedy."

Here, in the great money mart of the east, Gov. Cox emphasized the material side of the league of nations. Its adoption, he contended, was the only sure way to safeguard the nation's prosperity, which, he said, appeared now to be in the most serious jeopardy. He made half a dozen speeches in Manhattan today, in all of which he argued that world prosperity depended upon his election in November.

MISS GARAGHTY WEDS IN BOWER OF AUTUMN GOLD

Becomes the Bride of S. M. Felton Jr.

St. Chrysostom's church was turned into a bower of autumn leaves and yellow chrysanthemums yesterday for the wedding of Miss Louise Garaghty, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Hunter Garaghty of 31 East Elm street, to Samuel Morse Felton Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Felton of 1066 Dearborn avenue. The gowns of the bride's attendants carried out the rich autumnal colors.

The bride's gown was of ivory charmeuse, made very simply with a court train, the only ornamentation being a pearl embroidered girdle, from which hung long loops of pearls. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of gardenias, lilies of the valley, and swansonia.

Mrs. T. Philip Swift, matron of honor, wore a yellow chiffon gown with a burnt orange sash, which formed a train. The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Hambleton, Miss Edith Cummings, Miss Lolita Ogden Armour, Miss Julia Belle Faurot, Miss Elizabeth Newberry, and Mrs. Jennie Marston of New York, wore chiffon gowns shading from pale yellow to deep orange. All of the attendants wore brown lace hats and carried yellow chrysanthemums tied with golden brown ribbon. The bride was given in marriage by J. Allen Barnett of Louisiana. The Rev. Norman Hutton read the service at 4:30 o'clock and a reception at the Casino followed.

Miss Magnus a Bride.

When Miss Aimée Ruth Magnus, daughter of Mrs. Jacob William Loeb, became the bride of Horace Claflin Flanigan last night she wore a gown of silver cloth embroidered with white roses and draped with tulle. The court train was heavily embroidered with rhinestones. Her veil was held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white orchids, lilies of the valley, and Easter lilies.

Her matrons of honor, her sister and sister-in-law, Mrs. S. L. Berg and Mrs. Adolph Magnus, wore lavender and blue chiffon, and lace frocks embroidered with silver, and they carried orchids. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Percy Orthwein of St. Louis, Mrs. Walter Reisinger of New York, Miss Dorothy Brentano, and Miss Avis Dubia of Chicago, wore dresses of French blue chiffon embroidered in silver and also carried orchids.

The wedding took place at 8:30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Loeb, 401 Fullerton parkway, Father Purcell officiating. The house was decorated with chrysanthemums and Easter calla lilies. A large pipe organ had been installed for the occasion and a musical program was given by the Paulist choristers. There were about 250 guests at the wedding and about 1,000 atended the reception. There was dancing in a large tent, which had been erected on the lawn.

Palmer-Pirie Nuptials.

The wedding of Miss Nancy Bulkeley Palmer, daughter of Mrs. Percy Witter Palmer of Evanston, to Gordon Lennox Pirie took place yesterday at 4:30 o'clock at St. Luke's church in Evanston, the Rev. George Craig Stewart officiating. A reception at the residence of the bride's mother at 1115 Hinman avenue followed.

The bride's gown was of ivory satin draped with tulle and embroidered with seed pearls. The court train of satin was edged with orange blossoms and the tulle veil was held in place with a coronet of orange blossoms and pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias, valley lilies and Cecil Brunner roses.

Miss Dorothy Palmer, maid of honor and sister of the bride, wore a gown of gold and orange charmeuse trimmed with flame color velvet flowers. Mrs. John Humphrey Quinlan, matron of honor, and another sister of the bride, wore tan charmeuse. She and Miss Palmer wore large brown tulle hats and carried brown tulle muffs. The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Pirie of Lake Forest, Miss Jessie Weir of Sea Cliff, N. Y., nieces of the bridegroom; Miss Mary Louise Wuichet of Evanston, and Mrs. Joseph F. Abbott of Forest Hills, N. Y., wore frocks of canary yellow charmeuse with trimmings of flame color and corsage bouquets of velvet flowers in the autumn colors. They also carried brown tulle muffs and wore small brown lace hats.

The church was ornamented with autumn leaves and yellow chrysanthemums. The bride was given in marriage by John Humphrey Quinlan, her brother-in-law. Mr. and Mrs. Pirie will be at home ater Jan. 1 at 1255 Ridge avenue, Evanston.

THE TRIBUNE's report of the request of employés of "short line" railroads for wage readjustments said the terms offered them in the wage award of last July were not satisfactory. The president of the American Train Dispatchers' association explains that the July awards did not apply to the men now seeking a wage increase, and that the men are asking that the increases then granted to trunk-line employés be extended to them now.

Announcement was made Saturday that the funeral of Mrs. Harry Alschuler would be held on that day. It will be held on Monday at 2 p. m. in Graceland cemetery.

The Kenwood Trust and Savings bank, 402 East Forty-seventh street, was mentioned by THE TRIBUNE as among the institutions swindled by Jay Bullock, held at Kalamazoo, Mich., on check-swindling charges. The bank says it was not swindled.

Supposed Palestine Relief Agent Sought by the Police

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 23.—A search is being made by city and county officials today for a veteran of the Jewish legion, said to have swindled Milwaukee Jews out of thousands of dollars through operation of an alleged relief bureau. He is said to have received money to forward to Palestine, but it is said the money never reached Palestine.

ELECTION RESULT IN COOK COUNTY HELD DOUBTFUL

Democrats See Chance to Win Some Offices.

Cook county—two weeks ago conceded to the Republicans by a plurality of anywhere from 50,000 to 100,000—is now admittedly in doubt. Perhaps it would be more exact to say "up in the air," for not even the wisest of local politicians would be willing to hazard his reputation as a prophet on any prediction he could make.

The only really substantial claim is that made by the Thompson county committee officials, who declare that the county will give Len Small and Republican county candidates 75,000 plurality. This prediction is based on a canvass, the only one that has been made in the county.

Democrats Just Hoping.

Democratic managers have made no canvass and have no real line on how the county stands. They are willing to make predictions of victory, but these are based on hope rather than actual knowledge.

Two weeks ago the Democrats did not even hope. Since then a number of things have happened that make them confident they can elect some of their ticket.

The Democratic candidates are depending much upon what is going to happen this week. James Hamilton Lewis will enter the city today, speaking at from four to seven meetings daily. It is believed that his talks will materially strengthen the Democratic county candidates' cause.

Gov. Cox will also be in the city at least one day—Saturday; possibly for two—Friday and Saturday.

Small to Whoop Things Up.

On the other hand, the Republicans are relying upon the appearance of Len Small and Mayor Thompson on the stump. They have particular confidence in the mayor, and expect to pit him against Lewis. They also rely upon the state candidates who were on the Oglesby ticket, especially upon Attorney General Brundage, to woo back Republicans who may be thinking of voting the Democratic ticket.

OLD PRIMARY LAWS ARE VALID, COURT DECIDES

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—"Primary laws existing in this state prior to the act of 1919 are not repealed by the passage of the act of that year," the state Supreme court says in its opinion handed down today in the case of William Fox, decided at the last term. The inference is that political committees entered under the old law are still in authority, though the opinion does not go into the question. It decides only that the act of 1919 having been declared unconstitutional and void, the conviction of Fox, arrested for illegal voting under the law, was void.

The opinion says that an unconstitutional law does not repeal a former law or part of a law by implication.

Dissenting opinions will be filed by Justices Thompson, Farmer and Duncan.

Church Cares for Babes While Parents Pray

Three rooms in the First Methodist church of Evanston will be opened today for the use of babies and children of the members. Under the direction of Mrs. W. C. Hanson many young women of the church will be in charge of the children's recreation while their parents are listening to the service conducted by Dr. Ernest F. Tittle. A place for baby carriages has been provided and the children will also have the use of cribs. A playroom, where they may romp about, will be instituted under the leadership of Miss Betty Davis, Miss Alice Oaten, Miss Dorothy Olsen, and Mrs. Hanson. Miss Tillie Brown will keep quiet in the room where the babies sleep while the pastor preaches.

Story telling and games will amuse the older children. Miss Edna Baker, head of the beginners' class and acting principal of the Kindergarten College of Chicago, is the originator of the idea.

The First Congregational church of Evanston adopted the children's playroom last summer.

Crowe Urges Moron Curb; Igoe Assails Judge Ruling

The problem of the moron and the making of the streets safe for women and children was taken up by Judge Robert E. Crowe, Republican candidate for state's attorney, in his public statements last night.

"My experience as judge and chief justice of the Criminal court, actively engaged in the trial of cases," he said, "convinced me of the need for legislation to prevent morons from running at large, and thus being a menace to women and children who become victims of their lustful and murderous assaults.

"Take, for illustration, the case of Thomas Fitzgerald, who was hanged for the murder of little 6 year old Janet Wilkerson after he had defiled her, then strangled her, and buried her in a coal pile.

"In the trial of that case before me the fact developed that Fitzgerald had been in court several times before, under charges of attempted offenses against women and children, and had been let off with light fines because present laws were not adequate for his punishment.

"I believe that the first time the moron comes into conflict with the law a wall of protection that he can never scale ought to be built between him and our children. We should act before his lust leads him to rape or murder.

"Similar experiences of other judges, confirming my own observation, prompt me to pledge the fathers and mothers of Cook county that if I am elected state's attorney I shall make it my business to prepare and to present to the legislature a proposed law under which it would be possible to sentence morons to a farm colony or other humanitarian institutions, and thus remove this horrid menace to the safety of our children."

Michael L. Igoe, Democratic candidate for state's attorney, joined Francis X. Busch, Democratic candidate for County judge, yesterday in a statement criticising the recent decision of the county canvassing board which prevented the names of any Republican candidates for Circuit court vacancies being printed on the official ballot.

"We believe that the recent decision of the canvassing board is erroneous," the candidates say. "Furthermore, we believe that the county canvassing board was without authority and jurisdiction under the law to make any inquiry back of the face of the certificate of nomination or to attempt to determine the standing of any member of the Republican county convention. This is a matter, we believe, which is only within the jurisdiction of the Circuit or Superior courts through mandamus or quo warranto proceedings."

The canvassing board, to whose decision the candidates object, is composed of State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne, County Judge Thomas T. Burns and County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer. The decision refused to recognize the right of Charles A. Williams and Farlin H. Ball to the Republican nominations voted them by the "old" Republican county committee controlled by the Deneen and Brundage forces. The refusal was based upon the fact that their majority in the county convention was obtained through the votes of Edward Litsinger and Thomas J. Healy, both of whom have moved out of the wards in which they were elected.

Mr. Igoe, in his speeches last night, continued to assail the city hall. He charged that resorts are permitted to run without being molested by the police with the sanction of the city administration.

FARMER-LABOR CLAN MAY HOLD HOUSE BALANCE

Legislative Deadlock a Possibility.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

The Farmer-Labor party, with fifteen candidates going for the Illinois house of representatives—all in downstate legislative districts—is out to hold the balance of power in the next general assembly. The party has better than an even chance to elect at least six members.

Six doesn't sound like many. However, old time politicians recall when three F. M. B. A. representatives in 1891, not only deadlocked organization of the legislature for six weeks but eventually, splitting two and one, sent John M. Palmer to the United States senate.

How They Line Up.

Mayor Thompson and the city hall will start at Springfield with at least twenty Chicago house members. Len Small, if elected, likely will have a half dozen more "of his own" and a half dozen more that might be susceptible to his patronage.

Frank L. Smith, chairman of the Republican state committee, should have a decisive influence over, between six and nine Republican members, and these, by the present prospects, may be in position to swing control of the Republican house caucus as between the city hall and the downstate.

Might Be Stalemate.

A legislative situation is about to arise out of the complicated situation that could tie up everything when the general assembly meets in January.

Mr. Small, as governor, or former Senator Lewis, as governor, on the face of the returns, under the constitution, must await organization of the house and election of a speaker before the state vote may be canvassed.

The city hall is handicapped in the election by the fact that senators are to be elected in but three Cook county districts—the Second and Fourth, normally Democratic, and the Sixth, where Senator Barbour, an anti-city hall Republican, is certain of reelection. In the Fifth district, where a successor is to be elected for the Morton D. Hull vacancy, James E. McMurray, anti-city hall, is a sure winner. So the downstate will easily control the senate.

NUTSHELL POLITICS

John Maynard Harlan, "Harding-Coolidge Republican" candidate for governor, gave out a statement refusing to withdraw from the gubernatorial race in favor of Len Small, Republican nominee.

A statement by the independent Republican county committee charges that the Thompson organization is trying to capture the sanitary district to "extend its claws" toward the $40,000,000 in drainage bonds the district can issue.

The Illinois Democratic Women's committee appealed to all women to devote a part of next Sunday, Oct. 31, to a serious study of the text of the league of nations covenant.

Between forty-five and fifty applications were received from persons who wished to serve as deputy election commissioners at the polls election day.

The G. O. P. Girls' First Voters' league will meet tomorrow evening in the banquet room of the Auditorium hotel, where they will be addressed by Mrs. Manley S. Fosseen.

LEAGUE OFFERS HOPE TO IRISH, DR. ELIOT SAYS

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—John J. Foley of Boston, president of the Central Council of the Irish County association, wrote to Dr. Charles W. Eliot recently, asking how the question of Ireland's freedom could be taken before the league of nations and thrashed out there.

"Indeed, it is a main object of the league," Dr. Eliot replied, "to secure discussion of all difficulties arising or arisen between nations, in order, if possible, to prevent, by the force of international public opinion, the outbreak of war, or bring about an allayment of any international quarrel or strife which might cause war.

"I venture to suggest that the Central Council of the Irish County associations use all its influence forthwith—the time is short—in support of the Democratic party and its candidate, Gov. Cox, who has distinctly stated that if elected president he will bring the Irish problem to the atention of the league of nations. In that action he would undoubtedly have the support of congress."

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS BOOST IN "L" FARES

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 23.—Authority of the state public utilities commission to fix the fare to be charged by the Chicago elevated lines, was affirmed by the Supreme court today in refusing Maclay Hoyne, state's attorney, a writ of injunction to enforce a return to a 5 cent rate.

Five cents is the fare allowed by ordinance of the Chicago council. Mr. Hoyne, acting for the city, declared the state public utilities commission had exceeded its authority and had no right to contravene that ordinance and grant a higher carfare.

Upholding the commission, the Supreme court directed that the proper court of appeal from the commission's ruling is the Sangamon county Circuit court, and from there to the higher courts.

ONLY SIX REAL CONGRESS TILTS ON IN ILLINOIS

Few Changes Expected in State's Delegation.

Few, if any, changes in the political complexion of the Illinois delegation to the lower house of congress are expected as the result of the Nov. 2 election. Illinois now is represented in the lower house by twenty-two Republicans and five Democrats. There is a chance that a landslide may wipe out the Democratic representation.

There are real fights in only six districts—two in Chicago and four down-state. In Cook county fights Democratic congressional candidates are in danger.

Congressmen M. B. Madden in the First district, James R. Mann in the Second, A. J. Sabath in the Fifth, Fred A. Britten in the Ninth and Carl Chindblom in the Tenth are considered easy winners. In the Seventh M. A. Michaelson, Republican, who defeated Neils Juul in the primary, is expected to defeat William Cullerton without much trouble.

Sproul's Chances Good.

In the Third district the chances all favor Elliott W. Sproul, who defeated Congressman William W. Wilson in the primaries. The Democrats have a slight hope that Wilson's friends may aid their candidate, Thomas M. Crane, in which case, as the district has sometimes been close, they may have a chance.

In the Fourth district the Thompson city hall forces are making a fight to elect former Ald. John Golombiewski over Congressman John W. Rainey, Democrat. Rainey has always been outstanding in his opposition to Thompsonism. Golombiewski is openly running as "Thompson's man." Rainey is expected to win fairly easily.

McAndrews Has Hard Fight.

Congressman James McAndrews faces a real fight in the Sixth district, which he has represented since 1910. There has been a trend against the Democrats in the district, once represented by William Lorimer, but McAndrews is personally popular. John J. Gorman, the Republican nominee, defeated a Thompson Republican in the primary. McAndrews is believed to have the edge.

In the Eighth district the fight is a racial one, rather than a political one. Ald. Stanley H. Kunz, the Democratic nominee, defeated Congressman Thomas Gallagher in the Democratic primaries. The Republican nomination went to Dan Parillo. It is more a case of Italians vs. Poles than Republican against Democrat. The city hall is aiding Parillo, but the chances favor Kunz.

MONTANA BANK ROBBED.

Lewistown, Mont., Oct. 23.—A lone robber entered the Melstone State bank, east of here, at noon today, drove the bookkeeper and a small boy into the vault, helped himself to all the money in sight, estimated to be more than $2,000, mounted a horse, and disappeared.

May She Fib About Age to Wooer? Court to Say

Cleveland, O., Oct. 23.—The Common Pleas court was to decide today whether a woman has a right to fib about her age.

Harry Levin brought suit for divorce against his wife on the ground that she misrepresented her age to him when they were married in 1915. At that time she gave her age as 22, he said.

Levin's dream of love was shattered recently when he discovered that his wife was 44.

ZION POLICE RAID "MONKEY HOUSE."

Zion City officials are determined, they say, to end the practices of the "Holy Rollers," who hold weird services in a Zion City church called by Overseer Voliva "the Monkey house." Friday night the chief of police, Theodore Becker, raided the place, arrested seven men and a Negress, and sent six Zion City and Waukegan girls to their homes after giving them a lecture.

BIG PROBLEMS TO BE TAKEN UP.

Reconstruction problems are to be given a prominent position on the program of the sixth annual convention of commercial organization secretaries, which will begin tomorrow in Hotel La Salle. Housing, trade extension, transportation, financing of new industries and maintaining the health of a community are among subjects to be discussed.

SCOTS ASK MARY GARDEN TO RUN FOR PARLIAMENT

Star Reaches U. S. with Group of Notables.

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Mary Garden was one of the first to leave the Mauretania when that ship came into port today. And the first thing she said was she didn't see why she should not run for parliament. She said the Aberdeen, Scotland, constituency had indorsed her.

"I am qualified," she declared. "I have the education: I have traveled a great deal. I know what the people want. Why shouldn't I? Very likely I will."

One of the passengers was his royal highness Prince Purachatra, brother of the king of Siam. He is a snappy young man in Bond street clothes, and he swings a cane and says he is here to buy materials for the railroads of Siam, of which he is commissioner general.

Lord Waldorf Astor was a passenger, his first trip to America in ten years. He was sorry that Lady Astor could not come with him, but she is too busy in parliament. When the house of lords is minus Lord Astor, it is essential, it appears, that the house of commons be not deprived of Lady Astor. She may come later. Lord Astor will be entertained at the home of Charles Dana Gibson.

Another passenger was Elinor Glyn, who comes to do some movie scenarios and to publish "A New Philosophy of Life." She said happiness could not be found outside of the married state and that husbands in America are better than anywhere else.

Mme. Louisa Tetrazzini, also came for a "farewell tour" of sixty concerts.

U. S. Trade Growth Up to University, Kinley Says

The business man of the future must be thoroughly trained and well educated if Amerdican industry and commercial development are to advance as they should both at home and abroad, President David Kinley of the University of Illinois said in an address before the Industrial club last night.

"While emphasizing the necessity of giving every American boy and girl an elementary education," he said, "we shall make a mistake if we do not equally emphasize the necessity of strengthening and developing our higher educational institutions."

Unusual Values in Fine Rugs

When choosing a rug for home or office, you will practice intelligent economy by making your selection from our extensive stocks. Rugs of every quality are displayed in our first floor salesrooms. They range from the less expensive Grass Rugs to the finest Chinese and Oriental specimens.

America's Finest Wilton Rugs

The exceptionally long wear rendered by these Rugs is the result of years of experience by wool experts in the "blending" of worsted wools from almost every country in the world. Various climatic conditions produce wool of different qualities, and it is the function of the wool experts to blend the qualities which are the most wear-resisting into these finest of domestic Rugs.

A Rug of this character is an investment which will pay dividends of satisfaction during many years of service.

KEEPING OUT OF WAR.

The league of nations is, in theory, a nation of ates, to which each submits its sovereignty. It is, theory, a supernation. It has its executive, its cretariat, and its parliament of two branches. In ieory, it has the powers of sovereignty other than cal powers. It cannot levy taxes, but it can make ar, raise armies by the assignment of quotas, dend boundaries, resist invasion, and make laws rearding labor, suppression of vice, and colonizing land.

It has, in theory, all the powers of a state except ie power to levy taxes. A mandate for colonizaon may be disguised as a mandate, but it is in ct nothing less than a crown grant.

The power of the league of nations is, in theory, othing less than the power of an empire, except it cannot say what the taxpayer shall pay.

It has the constitution and the machinery of a ation. It has a capital—Geneva. It has a presint, who was to have been Woodrow Wilson of ie United States. It has a secretary, named as ie Hon. Sir James Eric Drummond, K. C. W. G., B. It has the assembly as its lower house, the uncil as its upper house.

In theory, nations entering the league become erely states in a nation. It asserts for itself, in ticle 23, that it will endeavor to obtain fair contions for labor for men, women, and children. his is a question heretofore reserved wholly for a ation. It shall determine what shall be the contions of life within its boundaries. If it even quiesce in the principle that an external authory has even advisory power in such an internal estion, it has to that extent surrendered soveignty to an overpower.

In conception, the league of nations was an abrbing sovereignty. Article 23 revealed its curious, oralistic invasions of national rights. The vague nt of its control over labor conditions in the parate countries is followed by a vague hint that will issue laws regarding prostitution and nartics:

"The members of the league:

"(C) Will intrust the league with the general pervision over the execution of agreements with gard to the traffic in women and children and e traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs."

The common police powers of separate communies are ample for such causes, but the league, realing the theoretical interest of the superstate, ould regulate, from Geneva, the drug store and x irregularity. This, in theory, is a complete eaking down of the separate nation.

Why, then, it will be asked, is only the United ates taking the question seriously? If this is rious for the United States, it is serious for Great itain. Why did Britain join so readily, almost usually? Why did the other nations join? These e fair questions. The answer is plain.

There are two classes of nations joining the ague. One class is represented by the South merican nations. They join because it means othing whether they do or do not. If they had en asked recently to send troops to defend land, and if British transports had put into their rts to get their troops, they all would have regned from the league instantly. It is, for them, a ate of mind.

The other class of nations is represented by the ntrolling nations of Europe and Asia—France, reat Britain, Italy, and Japan. For these nations e league is an alliance with a moralistic cover. hat it means to them is that their territorial ins are consolidated and guaranteed.

Two old alliances are represented in the council the league of nations—the European entente. inus Russia, and the British-Japanese alliance. ance and Great Britain were allied. Great Britn and Japan were allied. These alliances, with aly, the renegade from the triple alliance, make ur in the league council of nine.

What these realists need is the moral support of e United States pledged to the confirmation of eir purposes.

If the league is what it purports to be, it is a eaking down of national sovereignty. It is the bmergence, looking to the ultimate extinction, of e nation.

If it is not what it purports to be, it is a military liance between Great Britain, France, Italy, and pan, with the United States invited to enter.

SPENDING NEXT YEAR'S BILLIONS.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Williams has nounced total collections of internal revenue for e year as $5,408,075,468. This is an increase of ,866,917,472 over 1919 and an increase of $4,393,3,468 over the total revenue of the United States overnment in the year before the war.

These added billions of federal income mean ded billions of individual outgo. The money is ken from the pockets of American citizens. Some it goes to pay current governmental expenses nd some of it goes to pay the cost of our part in ie war. In either case it goes.

The vastness of the amount is astounding. If it ould be applied entirely to the national debt it ould pay that debt, principal and interest, in less an six years. Of course it cannot be so applied. he government must live while it is paying off its ebt, but it need not live the high life which has haracterized it during the five years in which ur income and expenses have risen from a little ore than $1,000,000,000 to a good deal more than 5,000,000,000.

In the pre-war days a few millions of dollars ould be wasted on pork and politics without a dict reaction on the ordinary citizen. But when elopments mean the collection and distribution few billions of dollars, they reach into every ocket in the land. This should make the subject personal interest to every voter in the United States. The present administration has been able to offer no defense to repeated charges of extravagance and unrestricted waste of public funds. We are helping to pay for this waste every time we buy a movie ticket or a tube of tooth paste, not to mention our annual struggle with the income tax schedule.

The league of nations has been made the paramount issue of the national campaign debaters, but it cannot conceal the issue of national finances. Democratic waste will not be forgotten by the voters on Nov. 2. Few intelligent persons will vote to continue an administration which will continue such waste.

The sums involved are too vast to be handled in the careless ways of the past. A budget system which will correct the old evils will be one of the first duties of a Republican administration.

FOR A REPUBLICAN SENATE.

In two of our neighbor states, Indiana and Wisconsin, the reëlection of Republican senators can be defeated only by the desertion of Republican voters.

THE TRIBUNE has differed with Senator Watson of Indiana and with Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin on important measures. We were opposed to Senator Watson and the party wing with which he has been associated, and have said so. But there are issues more pressing and more important than those over which the conservatives and progressives of the party differed, and these issues demand the return of a Republican senate with a majority large enough to give a Republican president reliable support for the accomplishment of a program of economy, of sound reconstruction, and of a wise and enlightened foreign policy.

We have differed with Senator Lenroot on issues of more timely importance. His course on defense measures was, in our opinion, mistaken, and we could not approve some of his votes on treaty ratification. But Republicans who were of the same opinion on these questions as THE TRIBUNE will, in our opinion, mistake their superior duty and the interest of the country if they, by voting for Senator Lenroot's opponent, deprive a Republican president of support which will be not only able and conscientious, but necessary to the accomplishment of sorely needed economies and of constructive legislation.

To give a Republican president a Republican congress is a paramount issue at this time, in our belief, and should outweigh with regard to senatorial and congressional candidates, considerations less important and immediate upon which we may have differed among ourselves in past contests. Senator Lenroot and Senator Watson themselves differ on many of these issues, but they are both needed in the senate, and it is to be hoped the Republicans of Wisconsin and of Indiana will return them.

LIBERTY IS WHAT YOU DO WITH IT.

On a ferry from Ellis island an American got into conversation with three young Albanians. They had been in America before, and after an enthusiastic return to Albania at the end of the war had come back to the United States.

"Why did you come back?" asked the American. "Albania is free now. You have liberty." "O, yes," said one, "Albania is free. We have liberty, but no jobs."

Which is a neat little modern instance illustrating the truism that liberty is worth what you can make of it. To one it may be in actual effect a curse, to another a blessing. The Russians turned liberty into chaos and were dragged out of it by the strong hand of despotism. No individual and no people are as free as they think they are or as they think they would like to be. The wise individual and the wise nation show their wisdom in the wise choice of control. That is the only liberty that is good. In the case of some individuals and some nations wise control may be self-control, in other cases it is control by others. This truth shocks the academic theorist, but reality demonstrates it.

In Europe and in Asia we are having and are to have many experiments in the use of liberty, and many crimes, as Mme. Roland said, are committed in its name. But the continuance of civilization will depend not upon the possession of liberty but upon the possession of control. When peoples have reached a relatively advanced stage of knowledge, experience, and discipline, as in America, England and some parts of Europe, they will be able to make use of liberty under a high type of control. But in Egypt, India, Russia, and other countries politically and socially backward, liberty will quickly destroy itself and be succeeded, as it already has been in Russia, by a powerful and pervasive form of control.

But even in more advanced countries the same struggle between a liberty which is not guided and disciplined by knowledge and experience on the one hand and a control essential to order and civilized life on the other shows itself in the industrial struggle. In England, for example, the coal strike and its terrific consequences depend less upon the deliberate will of the leaders on either side than upon the ability of the leaders of great numbers of comparatively ignorant but free men. The miner has power, that is liberty, to strike and bring all England to a crisis threatening chaos. The test is now whether their leaders can control them. Liberty they have, but if they use it to destroy the structure of order they will soon have to surrender that liberty for the sake of life. When conditions are hopeless even this may be wise. But when the processes of evolution are open and active, as in countries of self-government like Great Britain, France, or America, it is surely only the resort of ignorant liberty misled by impractical fanaticism or malevolent ambition.

Editorial of the Day

FOREIGN-BUILT AMERICANS.

[The New York News.]

The first Americans were Europeans. They were such good Americans that they have supplied a model for Americanism for three hundred years.

All Americans who come from Europe are not of the same stuff that these Pilgrims were, but all of them ought to be.

They can be if they are taken in hand when they arrive and taught a few things.

The man or woman who leaves Europe to come to America has at least enterprise and independence. That is a great deal.

They usually have also a craving for liberty.

Catch these people in time, make them understand that this is a country of equal opportunity, and that if they work instead of loaf they will attain the blessings for which they came, they will become the best kind of Americans.

The Pilgrims had to work, and they had to fight Indians to secure the peace in which to work. They had no time to cuss the government, even if there had been a government to cuss.

Conditions made them good citizens. Education and work will make the immigrants of today good Americans. And it cannot be started too early.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

T'OTHER day we encountered that most amiable of impossibilities, Lincoln Steffens, and gossiped of things past and present. Steffens was suddenly reminded of a bit of advice which we received from an ancient mariner ten or a dozen years ago. We had adventured forth in the Steffens sailing craft, The Cob of Cos Cob, and had run upon the mud of the estuary; and there we stuck waiting for the lifting tide. When we mentioned the incident to the ancient mariner alluded to, he gave us this hunk of wisdom: "When you're on the mud the first thing you want to do is raise your center-board." . . . Well, mes enfants, the world is on the mud, and instead of pulling up the center-board we are sitting around waiting for the tide to turn.

THERE was a storm in Stevens Point, Wis., recently, and—the strangest things happen!—telegraph poles which were snapped off "took the wires with them in their fall."

TO LILLIAN ON HER BIRTHDAY.

While we are in the nursery
We thrill to simple joys,
And mark each anniversary
By heaps of gaudy toys.

But with a later holiday,
We wish for different things:
No longer crave a doll a day,
But frivols, trinkets, rings.

And when at last we're truly wise,
We choose what here I send,
And gratefully and duly prize
The love of friend to friend. IRIS.

ACCORDING to the Pana Republican, "a large black lady's handbag was picked up on an Illinois Central train," and the picker "resides in Pana." It would be interesting to hear Mr. Holmes explain to the dunderheaded Watson why it was elementary that the lady was large and maduro.

Sir: Be careful when you visit Spooner, Wis. The village marshal has painted this sign on the walks: "$5 fine for throughing papers or refuges on sidewalk." UTELLUM.

A WEST side department store advertises "Double Life Suits, with Two Pairs of Pants." It is remarkable that Anna Katharine Green never hit on that idea. It is as good as changing the wallpaper of a room.

Apropos the Swindle Sheet.

Sir: It used to be possible to stroll in in the evening and get a room with bath in the southeast corner of the ungsteenth floor for two-fifty per, and if the toilet soap did not match the wall paper it was cause for a kick to the management. Now we come in with trembling brow and pale knees and say, "Please, mister, can I get a bed here?" The clerk looks at one with that "Well, see what the cat brought in" expression and growls, "Have you a reservation?" On one's replying "No," his lip curls and he says, "Have no room, can let you sleep under the sink with the rest of the pipes, the rate is five dollars." We say "thanks," and dig up the five, quick, before he changes his mind and sends for the porter to sweep us up and put us in the garbage. Still, it's a joyful life, if one retains his strength. B. A.

OR, as Mr. McFee recently observed to Mr. Morley, "It's a great life if you weaken just a little."

A PICTURE postcard shows a "percola" in the Empress Hotel gardens in Victoria, B. C. One of our assistants was a bit puzzled until he observed the sunshine filtering through the leaves.

AUTUMN FANCIES.

How often did the leaves thus dry and fall
To lie in rustling heaps upon the ground,
Down the long forest aisles 'neath the bare trees—
How often—since that first bright autumn day
When Eve and Adam, wandering hand in hand,
Saw the gold maple and the russet oak
Shine thru the blue October mists, and stood Wondering, with vague forebodings at their hearts.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations, and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnoses nor prescribe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

Dr. Evans' advice on "How to Keep Well" appears daily on the editorial page of The Daily Tribune.

BEWARE 'PAINLESS TUMORS.'

WE seem to be making some headway against cancer because the general public is better informed. More people know better what symptoms should cause one to suspect cancer, to find out what the trouble is and have it attended to.

I think another reason is the better knowledge of the limitations of plasters as cures. We have no more "cures" than our fathers had. We do not even know what causes cancer. We are almost as ignorant about it as we used to be. That is, we, the doctors. The people have learned almost as much as the doctors know, and that is the cause of the gain.

A study of 519 cases cared for in the Massachusetts General hospital, made by Drs. Simmons and Daland, showed that the average age of the group was 52.9 years. The cases ranged in age from 14 to 83 years.

Accepting the statements of patients, the average length of time from the date when the cancer first was observed to the patient's entry into the hospital was a little over twelve months.

It is agreed that that period must be greatly shortened if we are to make much headway in getting such patients well. On an average it was 5.4 months before these patients saw the doctors after they noticed the growth. After the doctor had taken his time to watch the tumor and make his diagnosis he told the patient what the trouble was and advised operation in most cases. It only took three weeks on the average for the patient to accept the advice and undergo operation.

There is a lot for the public to learn from the explanations of delay given by the patients. The patients with cancer of the breast said they did not see the doctor earlier because the tumor "did not pain." In cancer of the breast there is no pain until the growth is advanced.

A painless chronic ulcer of the tongue is almost invariably cancer.

In spite of this 25 per cent of this group said it was pain that made them first suspect cancer.

A large proportion of them suspected cancer first when they had a hemorrhage. Every woman who flows subsequent to the change of life should suspect cancer and have an examination without delay.

Hemorrhage from the stomach is not an early sign of cancer. It is not safe to wait for hemorrhage as a sign of cancer of the rectum. Whenever a person who has been constipated changes to regular bowel habits, or a person with regular bowel habits develops loose bowels without explanation, cancer should be suspected. Most cases of cancer of the lower bowel are treated for hemorrhoids for months before cancer is suspected.

BETTER BE EXAMINED.

A. N. writes: "Every once in a while I get a terrible sting in my heart and I have to stop whatever I am doing until it passes. Sometimes it lasts about five minutes and sometimes about twenty minutes. What I want to know is what causes it and is there any way to put a stop to it. Do you think it is from the food I eat or from exertion?"

REPLY.

As a rule pains around the heart are of no great importance. Some people escape them by keeping their feet warm and others succeed just as well by applying porous plasters. However, there are certain pains and uncomfortable feelings in the heart which are very significant. It is generally wise for a person who has such pains to have his heart examined, but if no disease is found he should scratch his heart from the list of worries.

TRY KEROSENE TREATMENT.

K. F. writes: "I have a daughter 13 years of age. I continually have trouble with her hair. I have to wash it at least three times a week, otherwise she will have lice. That, of course, does not look well. What can I use so I shall not have to wash her hair so often? At present all I use for her hair when washing is soap and water."

REPLY.

If you are certain your daughter has lice in her hair proceed as follows: Saturate the hair with kerosene. Wrap the head in a towel and leave for thirty minutes. Be careful to keep her away from flame of any kind. Wash the kerosene out with soap and water. Dry. Saturate the hair with hot vinegar, as hot as she can stand. Wash the vinegar out with water. Dry. Grease. Comb with a fine tooth comb. If you find lice in her head after this treatment, it means that she is being reinfested from some other member of the family or from some playmate. Some school inspectors think it necessary when a child is found with an infested head to go to the home and treat the child and also other members of the family. On the other hand, some parents say it does no good to clean up their children's heads unless all the children in the school attended are also cared for.

HAVE TEETH CARED FOR.

G. B. writes: "Am 18 years old and find my teeth are soft and decaying rapidly. Is milk of magnesia as a mouth wash good?"

REPLY.

It is all right to use milk of magnesia as a mouth wash, but do not stop there. Visit your dentist periodically and have him fill all cavities promptly. After each meal clean the food from your teeth with dental floss or toothpicks. Eat an abundance of acid fruits and hard bread. Drink plenty of milk.

THERE ARE AILMENT FANS.

Miss R. E. L. writes: "Will you kindly tell me if any local doctor will take a blood test? I am very anxious to have one taken. I have asked one doctor to take one, and he refused, saying I didn't need any. However, I insist on having a test taken."

REPLY.

Making a blood test is a laboratory procedure. Most physicians merely take the blood and send it to the laboratory. That any physician can do. I presume your physician saw no need of a blood test and thought you somewhat nutty on the subject. Persons go to laboratories and physicians under aliases every day.

PRIME MINISTER'S ELECTION.

Denham, Ind., Oct. 13.—[Friend of the People.]—Recently a discussion arose in one of our history classes as to whether or not Lloyd George, prime minister of Great Britain, was elected by the people or appointed by the king. Can you settle the question for us? J. S.

The premier is appointed by the king, but the election is held to ascertain whether the populace is in sympathy with his government.

EMPLOYES' AWARD.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Is an employé in the service of a railroad from November, 1919, until June 21, 1920, entitled to back pay under the recent wage award? I am now in railroad work, but for a different company. C. D. H.

The award applies to employes who "were in the carriers' service [on May 1] and remained therein." We would say that you "remained" for a time, even though you did not remain up to the date of the award.

THE WIDOW'S SHARE.

Oak Park, Ill., Oct. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—In case of the death of a husband, who owns a farm and some personal property, the farm being in his name, what part of the entire estate is the widow entitled to where the husband leaves a will? There are no children, and the farm is the homestead. J. F. C.

She is entitled to half the estate, subject to debts in addition to the widow's award and $1,000 homestead.

CORPSE FOR SALE.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 19.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you please tell me where one can sell their body for dissection after death, and what price do they pay? G. D.

This practice is not in accord with the tenets of the Demonstrators' association. It does not traffic in corpses.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a person whose photograph has been stolen when he is a minor, by an agent of a company, and used by that company to advertise its business, sue the company for compensation upon his coming into possession of proof of such action after he has become of age? A. N.

Clearly he can sue. The amount of damages is problematical.

AMERICAN LEGION NOTES

MISCELLANEOUS.

General staff officers of the Military Order of the World War, composed of commissioned officers of the army, navy and marine corps, during the world war, approve the proposition started by the Army and Navy Club of America to erect a $3,000,000 club house in New York City in memory of the 3,500 commissioned officers killed during the war.

An old fashioned harvest dance will be given by First Division Auxiliary No. 1, A. E. F., next Tuesday night in Knights of Columbus hall, at 165 West Madison street. Cider and doughnuts will be served. Aprons, overalls or old clothes are to be worn. The public is invited.

The second meeting of the Gold Star Fathers will be held in Room 1121 County building next Wednesday evening. All fathers of soldiers who gave their lives in the late war are welcome.

MEMORY TESTS. CAN YOU ANSWER THESE?

THE AMERICAN CONSTITUTION.

1. How long does a U. S. representative serve?
2. Who is president of the senate?
3. In whom is the executive power of the U. S. vested?
4. Can the salary of the president be raised or diminished during the period for which he has been elected?
5. Who are citizens of the United States?

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

LLOYD GEORGE IN IRELAND.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Lloyd George has premised his indictment against Ireland on two points [1] the disloyalty of the Irish people, and [2] Ireland does not bear her fair proportion of the cost of government.

As to the first: There can be no disloyalty save where a people has previously pledged its allegiance; there can be no disloyalty save where a people are fairly governed. The Irish race has never pledged its fealty to the British government. The Irish people, according to Gladstone in his peroration on home rule in the house of commons in 1886, have never been given a fair government, nor an equal government. But granting that the Irish people have had equal government and that they did profess allegiance, then it is not true that they were disloyal in 1914-'15-'16, for within that time there were more volunteers from the south of Ireland pro rata than even the United States furnished in 1917-'18.

In this connection it may be asked what regiment was in front at the first Marne. Was it not the Munster Fusileers and over 70 per cent remained dead on the field; what was the complexion of the ill fated expedition to Suvla Bay, where 55 per cent of the dead were Irish; who was O'Leary, who was Redmond, who was Kettle? What regiment fought in front at the first Chateau-Thierry, and at what price, and who was Gen. Gough; what was the complexion of the original Mesopotamia expedition, and who was Maude? What of Kitchener, Beatty, Callaghan, Madden, Esmonde, Granard, Kelly, Daly, O'Beirne, O'Connor, Flynn, Healy, Sir Philip O'Dwyer, Sir Bryan Mahon?

And then what happened? Nothing more or less than that the home rule bill (Asquith act) already passed by the lords and commons, already officially proclaimed, before the time for its actual enactment and force, was by royal warrant suspended, and once again the hope held out and the pledge given were broken; from that on the Irish refused to bleed for a perfidious government. But that was not all. Lloyd George said, "I will call a convention representative of all the people and that convention will sit in Ireland, make inquiry and report its findings and I pledge myself to abide by its findings." He named the convention and he only; no one interfered. There were men of all kinds and all shades of opinion—from all sections of Ireland. They spent eleven months in their labor and then by a majority of over five to one they reported, but all to no use—Lloyd George cast their findings to the four winds.

As to the second premise: In 1886, strange to say, Lord Randolph Churchill, as leader of the Tory party the succeeded Gladstone in the house of commons said: "I propose for Ireland a fair deal; there must be 'similarity and simultaneity' in the government of Ireland and England"; he meant from a fiscal standpoint. There was the usual delay, and delay; but at last, namely Feb. 18, 1896, came in what was known as the report of the Childers commission. That was a commission of the house of commons, composed of eleven members of parliament, the inquiry having been held under oath. Of the eleven ONLY nine were English and Scotch; there were two Irish—one, an Orangeman, Saunderson; and the other, Thomas Sexton (by the way still, and I believe now the only one, living).

Sexton was originally a newspaper man, and supposed to know little of finance; hence, possibly, his selection. But he turned out a phenomenon, and it was said his presentation of the claims of Ireland in his subsequent address before the house of commons was marvelous. Anyhow, the report was UNANIMOUS, and the charge was that from 1801 down to date of the report Ireland had paid MORE than her equal share of taxation by two and three quarters millions of pounds sterling each year. That pro rata has never been amended —nor repayment made; it still stands.

The greatest grant, so called, ever given Ireland was fifteen millions of pounds by the Ashbourne land act, but that had to be paid back, by each farmer or landowner borrower, at the rate of two and one-half per cent yearly. Strange to say also that the moneys granted by the agricultural act have been least borrowed by farmers in the south of Ireland.

Nor has Ulster proper a majority against home rule; that has been proven by an actual vote of the people in 1918.

Every chamber of commerce in Ireland has declared for home rule—dominion form of government; so also has the Unionist association. So also have Lords Northcliffe, Derby, Clifford, Carnarvon, Cadogan, Granard, Monteagle—(the author of the home rule bill in the house of lords)—Emly, Middleton, Esmonde, MacDonnell, the Earl of Crewe, and last, though by no means the least, Earl Grey; so also John Morley (now Lord Morley of Bannockburn), Asquith, Lord Robert Cecil, Sir Marquis Samuels, Lord Petrie (of Belfast), St. John Ervine (author), Lord Dunraven, Alfred Gardiner (London Daily News), [illegible] Percy Scott (editor Manchester Guardian)—these among countless others. The Liverpool Times says "Civil order has ceased to exist in Ireland through the medium of the British government." Should not a people defend themselves?

Are the foregoing facts, and the foregoing sponsors of Ireland entirely false and disloyal? Is Lloyd George the only one, always, of course, excepting Sir Edward Carson, who is keeping step? What has George to say of the three hundred million opium addicts of India and China, and who made them so, and in whose name is the hellish traffic still carried on? Thomas Carlyle, in his address as rector of Edinburgh university in 1866, said: "Can there be a more horrible object in existence than an eloquent man NOT speaking the truth?" The immortal patriot Grattan before he died said: "A country enlightened as Ireland, chartered as Ireland, injured as Ireland, will be satisfied with nothing less than liberty." Might it be, if the Celtic race should save Europe, and thus save the world? P. J. O'KEEFFE.

KEEPING UP BREAD PRICES.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your editorial entitled "Who Wins When the Farmer Loses?" is most timely and commendable. You quote Mr. Fleischmann as one of the largest bakers in the country, whereas he is a yeast manufacturer; but the important point is his declaration to the bakers that bread prices would not come down, despite cheaper flour and other materials that enter into the manufacture of bread.

The writer over a year ago saw the "wage sheet" of a medium size wholesale bakery and noticed that the smallest wages paid to a bakery wagon driver were $70 a week and some were getting as high as $100 a week. The bosses, confronted by a strike, were told to come across and pass the buck on to the dear people. JUSTICE.

EXPLAINING SOME BRITISH RUDENESS.

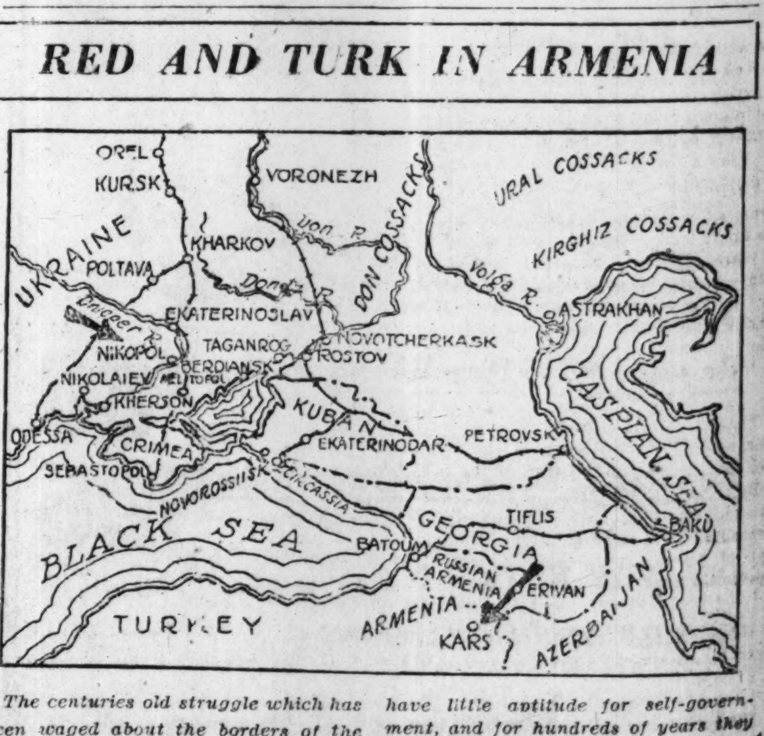
Flint, Mich., Oct. 19.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The second appearance of a letter from "An Ex-A. E. F. Soldier" must indicate some special regard for its sentiments. Permit me to offer some of another kind.

I, too, received remarks from the English that cut deep. They are to me an uncongenial people, and it was not till I had been associated with them for nearly a year that I realized (as "Ex-Soldier" seems never to have realized) that a drowning man must not be expected to be polite; that these comments came from the despair of a people bitterly weary of the losses of three years, losses impossible to sense save by the one who has had them to live with. The family in England that did not know a loss seemed the exception, and for them indeed, it was "Too late, Sammy!"

"Ex-Soldier" must surely have heard some of his blatant comrades cool the cordiality of allied friends by informing them that "America won the war!"

EX-A. E. F. SOLDIER II.

RED AND TURK IN ARMENIA



The centuries old struggle which has been waged about the borders of the Black sea is still going on with unabated march.

The Reds are reported to be moving on Karrs, in Turkish Armenia, to aid the Turks in crushing that infant republic. There are dozens of petty states in this region, but they seem to have little aptitude for self-government, and for hundreds of years they have been under the rule of the Turks, the Russians, or both.

In south Russia Wrangel is beginning to feel the full power of the Red armies. He has been stopped at the Dnieper crossings, while new Red divisions are constantly appearing on the line.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store were:

FICTION.

"A Poor Wise Man" [Doran], by Mary Roberts Rinehart.
"Caliban" [Harpers], by W. L. George.
"Erskine Dale, Pioneer" [Scribners], by John Fox Jr.
"The Trumpeter's Faun" [Penn], by Temple Bailey.
"Life" [Moffat Yard], by Johan Bojer.
"Mitch Miller" [Macmillan], by Edgar Lee Masters.

NONFICTION.

"The Americanization of Edward Bok" [Scribners], by Edward Bok.
"An American's London" [Harpers], by Louise Closser Hale.
"Theodore Roosevelt and His Time" [Scribners], by Joseph Bucklin Bishop.

Last week's six best circulators in the public library were:
"This Side of Paradise," by F. Scott Fitzgerald.
"White Shadows in the South Seas," by Frederick O'Brien.
"Mrs. Craddock," by W. Somerset Maugham.
"Now It Can Be Told," by Philip Gibbs.
"Mary Wollaston," by Henry Kitchell Webster.
"Steeplejack," by James Huneker.

"SMOKE AND STEEL," the title poem in Carl Sandburg's new volume of poetry, is magnificent. No other word is entirely fair to its beauty and its power, to its colossal strength of imagination.

Smoke and the blood of men—of those are steel made. "Look for them back of a steel vault door"—the "ghosts that hide in steel like heavy armed men in mirrors." "They are always there and they never answer." As a poetical conception, the poem is simply gorgeous.

This is the third volume of Carl Sandburg's poems, and each volume has been at the same time more uncompromisingly real and more delicately imaginative than the one before it. The poems in this one have a brute force even more primeval than those in "Chicago Poems" and "Cornhuskers," and at the same time imaginative concepts which are nurtured only by the reality of beauty. There is nothing "pretty" or "sweet" in "Smoke and Steel," but there is something eternal.

Irving Bacheller was one of the first Conrad fans in America. Years ago he used to have a newspaper syndicate. His London agent sent him the manuscript of "The Nigger of the Narcissus." He was entranced by it, and immediately accepted it for syndicated publication. Then Conrad wasn't even a dark horse in the literary race. He wasn't entered, so far as America was concerned.

Mr. Bacheller, who was in Chicago this week and whom I met for the first time, reminded me more of William Dean Howells than any author I have ever met. He has that same genial warmth of interest in life that made of Mr. Howells one of the most loved of American novelists. Mr. Bacheller has that rare quality of being genuinely amused at subtleties of wit which other people perpetrate. He's a most flattering listener because he knows when you're trying to be clever.

We went to see "Abraham Lincoln," and the genuine emotion which made him silent as the curtain went down on the heart breaking restraint of that marvelous last act made me realize that his own "A Man for the Ages" had been a work of undiminished love to him. He talked about Lincoln with the loving devotion with which Barrie wrote of his mother in "Margaret Ogilvie," and the passionate awe and pride of an almost religious worship.

The announcement of the annual rewards of the Poetry Society of America is always awaited breathlessly by poets and poetry lovers.

The judges this year were John L. Lowes of Harvard—whose "Convention and Revolt in Poetry" is, by the way, one of the best books of its sort you can read—Edward Arlington Robinson—whose "Three Taverns" has just been published by Macmillan—and Alice Corbin Henderson.

The votes of the judges resulted in a tie for each prize except the third. John G. Neihardt's "Song of Three Friends" held first place with Miss Gladys Cromwell's "Poems." Clement Wood's "The Earth Turns South" and Amy Lowell's "Pictures of a Floating World" tied for second place. Edgar Lee Masters received third prize, and the fourth was a tie between Marjorie Allen Seiffert's "A Woman of Thirty" and Eunice Tietjens' "Body and Raiment."

"Enemies of Women," the latest Blasco Ibanez novel, has just arrived. It is a story of a group of woman haters, sworn enemies of women, and of the wrecking of their enmity, all of it in the popular Spanish millionaire novelist's most popular million copy selling style.

Some one might have fun in compiling a list of the millionaire novelists, a sort of Dun of the best sellers. There would be the two Porters, Gene Stratton and Eleanor H.; Harold Bell Wright, and Mary Roberts Rinehart—who, by the way, was so busy the one day she was in town writing her name in five hundred copies of "A Poor Wise Man" as they were bought by eager souls that an ordinary dub reporter like the editor of the Tabloid couldn't get near her to ask her for golden words to pass on to you.

Also Zane Grey, who keeps one printery and bindery busy with reprints of his books, and—but you can compile your own statistics from there on.

"Alf's Button," by W. D. Darlington, set England a-roaring during the war. It has just been brought out in this country by Frederick A. Stokes.

The ingenious idea is this. Aladdin's lamp, like many other articles of historic value, was sacrificed during the first days of the call for brass. It was melted and recast into a button.

The button grew on a tunic which fell to the lot of one Alf, a good natured moron whose idea of heaven was a pint and a pretty barmaid. The first time he shined his buttons the djinn appeared, upon which Alf said, "Strike me pink." He developed immediately the pastel loveliness of a luscious salmon and, although he seemed perfectly well, he was hurried to a hospital, where he made fame and fortune for a young doctor who treated him, who named the disease after himself—the doctor—calling it Brown's disease, and who searched in vain for other pink patients—after the djinn has un-struck Alf pink.

The oriental splendor with which the button provides Alf and his friend Bill is awfully funny. The idea is a jolly one. The book isn't anything permanently important—even as a bit of humorous writing—but it is amusing.

Not yet? You haven't read "Tales of Mystery and Horror"? Then you have missed the most thrilling, grewsome, glumptious horror sketches that ever tried to rival the true tales of the fine Italian hands of the Borgias. They are O. Henry-ized Edgar Allan Poes, little scorpions with a sting in their tales. Maurice Level has long been known in France as one of the best writers of mystery and horror. This is the first translation of his shorter stories. Henry B. Irving, whose "Book of Remarkable Criminals" is a treasure trove for those who are interested in crime, has written an introduction to "Tales of Mystery and Horror."

"Everyday Adventures," by Samuel Scoville Jr., records the wholly delightful intimacies which nature holds, not over the hills and far away, but at our very doorsteps, or just over that lilting sky line in the temple of green trees in the valley. It is a charming book, restful beyond words in the hectic splattering of ink on paper that is called each year "the fall book list."

"Alaska Man's Luck" is another journal of adventure, only this adventure was over the hills and far away in the land of icy romance. It is the true story of Hjalmar Rutzebeck's conquest of the snow, of his love for a girl more involuntarily cruel than the cold whiteness of his homestead landscape, and of the beauty of the coming of the spring in both their lives.

"You," by Irving R. Allen, is one of those books which take the learner after success by the hand and lead him straight up to the temple. It is an uplift book after the manner of the famous American uplifters of the last few years. In terse paragraphs it talks like a Sunday school superintendent, an advertising manager, and a correspondence course on developing personality. It is the sort of thing which lets itself in for a lot of flipness on the part of those who feel that poets—with life as well as with words—are born and not made, but which probably does no end of good to those who feel that life is real and life is earnest. It is common sense made alluring by handsome phrases.

"Life" is Johan Bojer's latest novel. In some ways it shows us a new Bojer, a recorder of gayety, of the crackling fires of life instead of the glowing ashes, but it has fundamentally the same theme which has run through all of the Bojer novels, the great hunger for an answer to the question, "What is all this life about?" "Life" is not, like "Treacherous Ground," either dour or depressing. But neither is it, like "The Great Hunger," magnificent in moments of Tolstoyan philosophy. It is more of a novel than the other books—an exceedingly good one, I should say, with which to "begin" Bojer.

When the will of Bruce Frederick Cumings was proved in England last month his estate amounted to £132. Mrs. Humphry Ward, who died intestate, left £11,306.

Who was Bruce Frederick Cumings? W. N. P. Barbellion, whose "The Journal of a Disappointed Man" was the literary sensation of last year, and whose "Enjoying Life," recently published, is one of the really delightful volumes of this year.

With death brushing her wings against his temples, with life's little candle all but flickered out, he clung passionately, not to the tangibility of his own life, but to the eternality of natural science. His Journal has been called "morbid" because he talks often of the death which came only a little later than he expected. But it is just the opposite of morbid, for, while he sees the final curtain slowly descending, he plays his drama of life as though the lights were not to be snapped out forever on his little stage. "Enjoying Life" includes many of the essays and observations which were omitted from the Journal and which, gathered in a small volume, are the essence of "Enjoying Life."

By William Shakespeare.
(From "Troilus and Cressida.")

Time hath, my lord, a wallet at his back,
Wherein he puts alms for oblivion,
A great sized monster of ingratitudes;
Those scraps are good deeds past; which are devour'd
As fast as they are made, forgot as soon
As done: perseverance, dear my lord,
Keeps honor bright; to have done is to hang Quite out of fashion, like a rusty mail
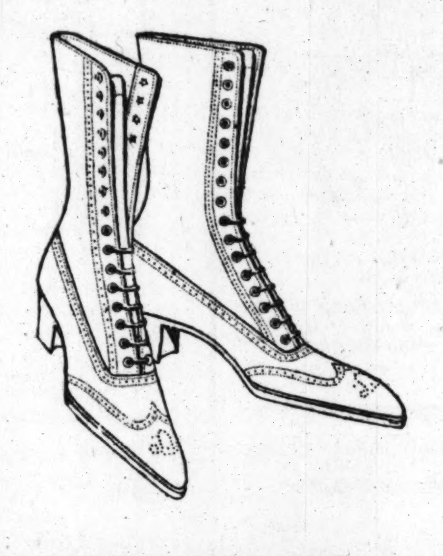
In monumental mockery. Take th' instant way;
For honor travels in a straight so narrow,
Where one but goes abreast; keep, then, the path;
For emulation hath a thousand sons,
That one by one pursue: if you give way,
Or hedge aside from the direct forthright,
Like to an enter'd tide, they all rush by
And leave you hindmost;
Or like a gallant horse fallen in first rank,
Lie there for pavement to the abject rear,
O'errun and trampled on.



Walking Boots, Cutler planned, are markedly becoming. Because of their popularity the present exposition of Cutler footwear includes many new straight heeled types—distinctively lasted and patterned. Numerated below are several values of especial merit in this group.

FORD MAY BUILD LINERS FOR SEA TO LAKES ROUTE

Sees a Big Saving in Proposed Waterway.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—If the proposed St. Lawrence waterway is opened to deep draft vessels, and if other boats do not at once begin operation on it with regular schedules, the Ford Motor company will operate its own ships between Detroit and Europe to supply its European plants with parts and materials from its American factories adjacent to the Great Lakes.

This was the substance of a statement of W. C. Cowley, traffic manager of the Ford Motor company, before the International Joint Waterways commission here today. This sentiment was representative of the attitude of Detroit manufacturers toward the proposed St. Lawrence power and navigation project.

The European plants of the Ford Motor company in France, Spain, Ireland, England and Denmark are scheduled to use 180,000 tons of materials next year, 70 per cent of which will be shipped from the plants in Detroit and other factories near the great lakes. The freight charges to New York alone last year under the old freight rates were $1,950,000. Mr. Cowley said 50 per cent of the Ford Motor company's export goes by way of the port of New York and 30 per cent via Philadelphia.

He said the cost of shipping to New York by rail was about equal to the cost of shipping from there to Europe.

CHIEF DENIES CUT IN PAY OF 450 IN POSTOFFICE HERE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Published statements that salaries of the employés of the Chicago postal service are being reduced because of a decline in the cost of living were denied by First Assistant Postmaster General Koons today. Mr. Koons declared that reports that Postmaster Carlile had been ordered to reduce the pay of 450 employés in Chicago in a letter received from the postmaster general were branded as "absurd, ridiculous, and false."

"Salaries have been readjusted in the most liberal manner," Mr. Koons said. "In readjusting the salaries of the supervisory officials of the Chicago postoffice, 263 received promitions, the average increase being $344, amounting in the aggregate to $90,485 for these employés, while the reductions numbered only 45, instead of 450 as stated, and amounted to but $3,520, an average of less than $80 per employé. These reductions were made because employés were not performing work which would enable the department to assign them to a higher salary.

"The statements referred to in the press must have been known by those circulating them to be false and no doubt emanated from the same source as many of the other ridiculous, absurd, and untruthful statements published from time to time for the sole purpose of misleading the public."

Where Babies Win Health

MRS. EDWIN W. RYERSON, chairman of the women's board of the Chicago Policlinic and Hospital and general chairman of the woman's division of the $1,000,000 drive Nov. 8 to 30 for the policlinic's new community health center, and Mrs. Robert H. McCormick, a member of the board and in charge of a division in the drive, made one of their regular visits to the hospital yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Mary Frances Kern, director of the drive.

They were especially interested in the children's clinic, as it is for the children's department of the health center, that the woman's division has been asked to raise $250,000. It is proposed to locate the children's department on the roof and inclose it in glass to give a maximum of fresh air and sunlight and provide every facility for sun treatments. The plan includes also a roof garden playroom for convalescent children.

The new health center will receive children of all ages.

The drive for the building fund has four divisions—the policlinic, of which Dr. Channing W. Barrett is chairman; the women's division, the nurses' association, Miss Gertrude Kirk, chairman, and a campaign committee composed of business and professional men, with Darby A. Day as chairman.

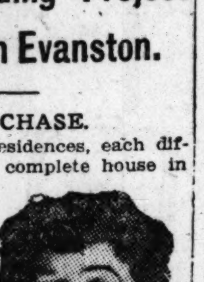
THIRTY HOUSES IN ONE GREAT UNIT, $2,000,000 PLAN

Unique Building Project Proposed in Evanston.

BY AL CHASE.



MRS. SARAH V. BROWN.

Welding thirty residences, each different and each a complete house in itself, into one big fireproof structure costing $2,000,000, is the newest up to the second coöperative building project—and it's a project evolved in the active brain of an Evanston woman, Mrs. Sarah V. Brown, widow of Edwin F. Brown, at one time president of the Monroe National bank.

Every one of these thirty Evanston houses will have all the privacy, comfort, and hominess of the detached residence—such as front and back yards, with real grass and shrubbery, wood burning fireplaces, every window an outside one and other attractions not to be found in the ordinary apartment.

At the same time each will have all the luxurious, work saving innovations of the modern flat—such as worryless heating, janitor service, artificial refrigeration, vacuum cleaning, and other rest producing devices not to be found even in the most modern house.

On Five Acre Site.

Mrs. Brown has had the idea growing into definite shape for several years. Architects Zimmerman, Saxe & Zimmerman have taken the idea and drawn plans for the palatial structure shown on this page. It will stand on the five acre site of the Brown homestead, Windiknowe—which is Scotch for Windy Hill—and will bear the same name. It is just north of Northwestern university and south of the Grosse Point lighthouse. The property fronts 350 feet on the lake, the same distance on Sheridan road, and 550 feet on Milburn street.

Windiknowe will be in the Italian style of architecture, with red tile roof, and will be faced with Massachusetts granite. Every house will be entirely cut off from its neighbor with sound proof walls and will have its own independent front yard as well as back yard, usually on the roof of the house below. A few of the houses will have a mezzanine or second floor, but most of them will have all rooms on one floor. The houses will vary in size from five to twelve rooms.

"Driftwood" to Be Pavilion.

There will be a ballroom, a long "peacock alley," and several large general entrances and a big terrace along the lake shore, as well as a big U-shaped court, with a small artificial lake, fronting on Sheridan road, as features which all the houseowners will both own and share in common.

Mrs. Brown is to have an especially luxurious home designed for her by her architects on the first floor at the northeast corner. One feature will be a private ballroom with marble stairs.

"Driftwood," the famous $35,000 houseboat built by Mr. Brown just before his death, and converted into a bungalow by Mrs. Brown for her daughter, but not at present used by her, is to be placed on a concrete foundation on a small island in the artificial lake, and used as a tea pavilion. It is 75 feet long and 16 feet wide.

The W. L. Dormand company of Evanston, which is financing the project, has not decided definitely whether all of the houses will be sold or only a certain percentage, the remainder to be rented and the profits used for paying off the bonded indebtedness, for operating expenses, and later for dividends when the bonds are retired.

[The architect's drawing, showing how the building planned by Mrs. Brown will look when completed, will be found on the real estate page (22), Part 10.]

U. S. COUNTESS' PARIS DIVORCE A SUDDEN AFFAIR

COUNTESS DE LA GREZE.
[Campbell Photo.]

PARIS, Oct. 23.—Countess Jean de la Greze, daughter of Charles Steele of the J. P. Morgan company, has recently been granted a sudden divorce in the French courts. Friends and relatives refuse to discuss the details. The marriage of Count de la Greze and Miss Eleanor H. Steele took place in the autumn of 1910. The Countess' parents returned to New York only last September, after a visit with their daughter and son-in-law.

NEW CHIEF TRAPS 2, FOILS $40,000 PAY ROLL RAIDS

Benjamin Barsema, who becomes chief of police in Melrose Park tomorrow, began his work yesterday by arresting two men, confiscating two revolvers, recovering a stolen automobile, and frustrating several pay roll robberies, which might have netted the robbers $40,000.

Suspicion aided him. He haw an auto in front of the Citizens' State bank in Melrose Park. He watched it for an hour, then asked the two occupants why they had no license plate. They said it had been lost. Barsema found it in the car, and with it two revolvers.

When the men were searched two charts were found on them, giving the route usually taken by pay roll officials of the National Malleable Castings company and the Austin Manufacturing company. The former concern has a pay roll of $25,000. Its representatives called for this sum at the bank a few minutes after Barsema had made the arrest. The auto was found to have been stolen from Al Loeffler, 1942 North California avenue.

CABLE

A Baby Grand Piano for $900

A Player Piano for $585

FROM the house of Grands and Player Pianos come these two splendid money-saving offerings. They are but two of many such values being featured in Cable's October showing, now in progress.

This dainty grand is just the instrument for the small home or apartment. Its graceful lines and lustrous finish will make as strong an appeal as its rich, true tone.

At $900 it represents a grand piano value which we believe you will find impossible to duplicate.

The Player Piano is of the latest design, with all of the modern expression controls which add so much to the pleasure of both playing and hearing. It is sturdily built and carefully finished.

You cannot judge its quality by the price—$585. Ordinarily it would sell for much more money.

Either of these instruments—as well as many others specially priced for our October showing—may be purchased on our convenient payment plan. Then too, don't forget the brand new Upright at $395. It's extra special.

Pay a visit to our music rooms. Or, if you cannot call, mail the coupon for art catalog and terms of payment.

Two government agents, deputy rev- e men, were dragged into the booze dal yesterday on complaint of Bonarski, a saloonkeeper at South Prairie avenue, who ged them with taking "hush ey" after finding liquor in his . The two agents, Manley W. Cluxton, 27 East Forty-eighth street, and Walter Baxter, 5545 Prairie avenue, and two other men, Lomas Tyrrell, 5936 South Artesian avenue, and Harry Tansey, 3553 South Hoyne avenue, were arrested.

The men were booked by Capt. Allman at the Kensington station. Capt. Allman notified Lawrence Kilcourse, assistant to Maj. A. V. Dalrymple, of the arrests.

Says They Asked $500.

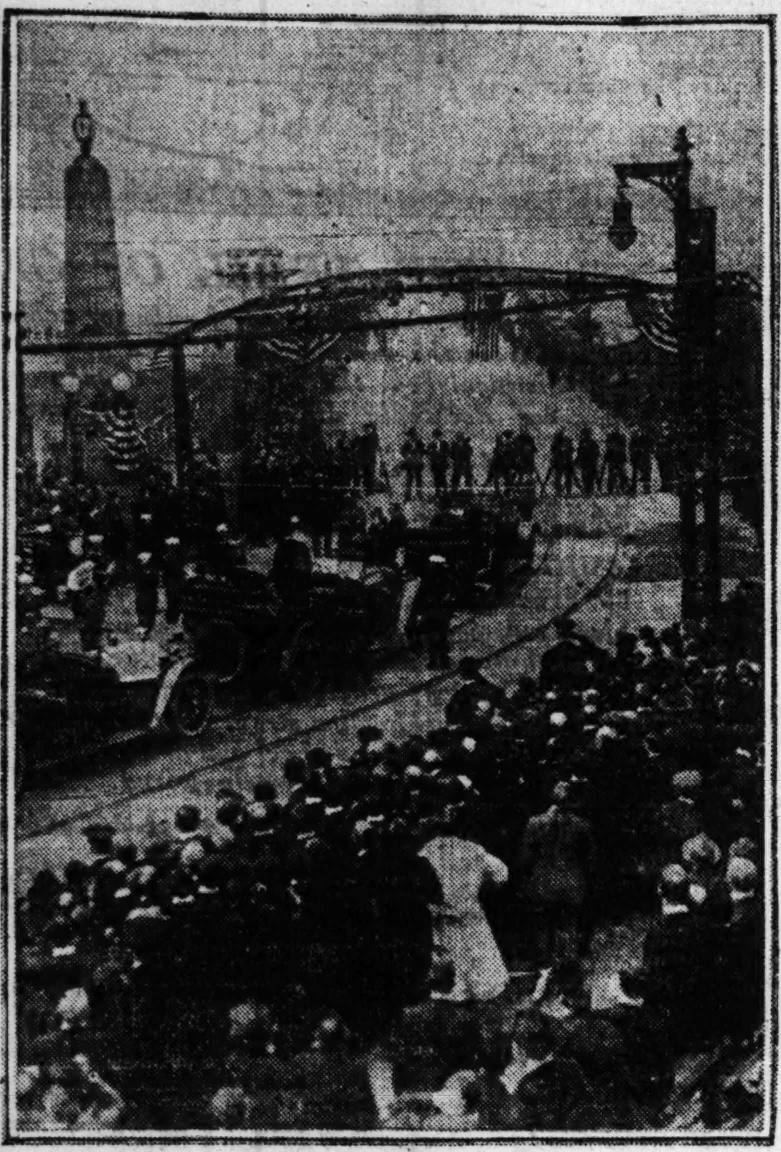
When Field Deputy Thomas J. O'Brien was notified he requested Chief Garrity to turn the matter over to him. Garrity demurred. O'Brien insisted. A conference was held. The men were turned over to O'Brien.

According to Bonarski, the four men raided his place Thursday night and found a small quantity of liquor in his living quarters above the saloon. They told him, he said, that they were government agents, and demanded $500 hush money.

Bonarski said he told them he only had $100, but would give them the balance of the $500 if they would return on Friday. The men accepted the $100, Bonarski declares, and he then notified the Kensington police.

Detective Sergeants John Daly and Harry Gray were detailed on the case, and when Cluxton and his three companions again made their appearance on Friday the police officers overheard the conversation between the agents and Bonarski. The arrests followed.

MAYOR OPENS NEW BRIDGE



Scene at the new $2,000,000 Franklin-Orleans bridge was opened to traffic yesterday. Mayor Thompson is just about to cut the ribbon and admit traffic to the span. The autos and trucks are part of a parade. The view shows the bridge from the south, looking north.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

BOMBS, daylight fireworks, and a parade of thousands of gayly decorated trucks and automobiles signalized the opening of the new Franklin-Orleans street bridge to traffic yesterday.

The bridge, which with its approaches cost nearly $2,000,000 and has been four years in building, affords a long needed direct connection between the loop and the warehouse and business district of the near northwest side.

Nearly every large truck user in the city was represented by from one to a dozen motor trucks in the parade. The bridge is especially adapted to the use of heavy vehicles and it is expected to divert much of the heavy traffic which now jams the Wells and Lake street bridges.

Thousands watched the parade, which was led by Mayor Thompson and James H. Channon, president of the Franklin-Orleans Bridge association, which has worked for nearly ten years to bring about construction of the bridge.

The trucks and automobiles met in Grant park and the parade wound through the loop via Monroe, State, Randolph, and Franklin streets to the bridge, where the red, white, and blue ribbon which stretched across the approach was broken by Mayor Thompson and the procession passed over.

ITALY PREPARES FOR ANARCHISTIC REIGN OF TERROR

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

MILAN, Oct. 23.—The Socialist party's executive committee, now assembled in Florence, has rejected the general proposals put forward by the closest friends of Enrico Malatesta, the anarchist editor now in prison.

The activity of the anarchists is arousing great excitement throughout Italy and everywhere resistance is being organized against possible violence. The atmosphere in every quarter is charged with electricity.

Premier Giolitti returns to Rome today.

Meanwhile the extremists are continuing their terrorist campaign. They have bombed the Banca Italia's premises in Carrara. The police have arrested many anarchists in Carrara and Naples.

WIFE SUES OFFICE MANAGER.

Earle Leon McCarthy, office manager for the Knight Light and Soda company, was sued for separate maintenance by Mrs. Veda Dell McCarthy, 5816 Glenwood avenue, yesterday. She says he has a large income, and deserted her on Oct. 10. In a letter to her he wrote, "Our married life is a closed incident."

POLAND REFUSES TO SIGN LEAGUE DANZIG PROVISO

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 23.—The Versailles treaty is staggering under a new blow today because Poland refuses to sign the Danzig agreement as provided, on grounds of insufficient guarantees for freedom of the port.

The council of ambassadors was prepared today to hold the formal ceremony of signing the agreement and the Danzig representative was on hand.

Then Ignace Paderewski telephoned from Warsaw that the Polish government had ordered nothing done.

Poland regards Danzig as the mouth of the Vistula and is insisting that the city is purely Polish. They assert that President Wilson promised Poland an outlet to the Baltic.

The Danzig treaty already has been revised a half dozen times to meet Polish demands and the Danzig people refuse further concessions.

There are rumors that Polish militarists urge occupation of Danzig by another Vilna coup, but are fearful that the Prussians would aid the citizens.

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE, BUT NOT FOR ENVOYS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[By the Associated Press.]—The customs service today receded from its position with respect to the importation of liquor by the diplomatic representatives of foreign countries.

Officials said that not only could the diplomats bring liquor in, but that liquor consigned would have to be admitted. Such consignments already in the country, however, can be removed from the port only by a diplomat or a member of his household, it was held.

Conflict in the laws renders the customs service powerless to carry out the provisions of the prohibition enforcement act as far as foreign representatives are concerned, officials said. The enforcement act prohibits the importation of liquor, it was pointed out, but another law prohibits the holding of the person or belongings of a representative of a foreign country.

COP SNUFFS SIX DYNAMITE STICKS NEAR I. C. STATION

Red Blast Nipped by War Hero's Action.

When Policeman Edward McVeagh coolly stepped into the back yard of Gus Maggas' restaurant at 125 East Eleventh street yesterday and extinguished the burning fuses on six sticks of dynamite, while Gus and half a dozen employés ran around in circles and pulled their hair, the customary honors were bestowed upon him.

But McVeagh blushed and as soon as he could brushed aside his admirers, turned the explosives over to the South Clark street station, and returned to duty at the main Illinois Central passenger station.

Red Plot Nipped, Belief.

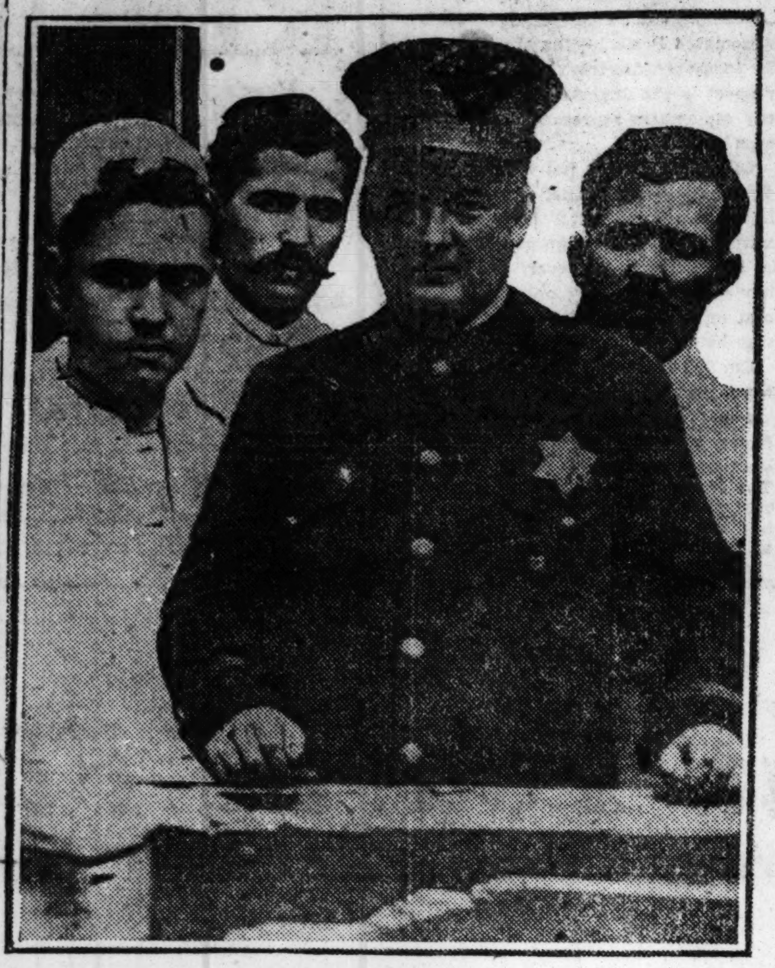
Belief that the dynamite was placed in the yard by newly arrived Reds who wished to cause havoc in the passenger station was expressed by Sergt. Chris Sloier, head of the anarchist squad. Orders were sent out to every police station to search the city for the dynamiters.

Mere Trifle to Him.

"Afraid of that dynamite?" asked McVeagh disgustedly. "Gosh, I played with that stuff and a lot worse for twenty-two months in France."

McVeagh, who is in his forties, was a member of the 12th engineers and spent all of his time in France carrying explosives to the front line trenches over narrow gauge railroads in plain view of the German artillery.

AFRAID OF DYNAMITE? HUH!



Policeman Ed MacVeagh, who calmly stepped into the back yard of a restaurant at 125 East Eleventh street, near the main I. C. station, and extinguished the merrily sizzling fuses on six sticks of dynamite, thereby foiling what is believed to have been a "red plot." The others, left to right—Sam Siavellis, Gus and Nick Maggos, restaurant men, who were panic stricken at sight of dynamite.

Bank Watchman Held for Killing of Youth

Henry S. Wanderburg, 32 years old, 510 South Kedzie avenue, a bank watchman, was held to the grand jury yesterday by a coroner's jury after evidence had been presented indicating that he shot and killed Clarence Seibert, 19 years old, of Riverside. The shooting occurred on Oct. 2 on Monroe street when the watchman attempted to halt Seibert and Norman Bradbury as they were on their way home. Testimony indicated the watchman was intoxicated at the time of the shooting.

Government to Help in Mid-West Mine Problems

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Investigation of Illinois, Wisconsin, and Missouri mining problems will be conducted at a newly created mining experiment station of the bureau of mines to be known as the Mississippi valley station with headquarters at St. Louis. J. J. Rutledge was appointed today as acting superintendent.

Lutherans Refuse to Act Against Military Training

Wasington, D. C., Oct. 23.—The United Lutheran church convention today refused to approve a declaration opposing military training in public. It was referred to the executive board for action.

A committee had reported its opposition, saying that in doing so it was "passing only on the question of military training in the public, grammar and high schools."

STRANGLER USES HANGMAN'S KNOT TO MURDER GIRL

New York, Oct. 23.—[United Press.]—An unidentified girl whose body was discovered in a thicket on Staten Island last night was strangled by a rope which was looped over her head from behind, according to detectives today.

The rope was tied in a hangman's noose and the knot was at the back of hemlock. The detectives believe that after the noose was cast over her head the garroter jerked her to the ground and then choked her to death by tugging at the rope, gaining leverage by placing his knee in her back.

Physicians said the body apparently had been in the thicket from five to ten days. An autopsy was to be performed late today.

WILLARD MACK IS NOT ONLY BROKE BUT SPLINTERED!

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Charles W. McGlaughlin, better known as Willard Mack, actor and playwright, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy today in the United States District court, alleging that his liabilities exceed $47,000 and that he has no assets.

Mack said he owed the Hotel Ansonia $1,380 for board and room for July and August, and that his clothing and baggage were held as security.

In lieu of payment of $2,661 for repairs a garage is holding his $3,500 automobile, while John W. McGrath is holding a $2,500 diamond as security for a $750 loan.

GRANADA, Spain, Oct. 23.—An earthquake shock lasting ten minutes was felt last Wednesday throughout the province. Damage was done in some villages, but whether there are any casualties is not known. Almost the entire population of the province left their homes.

AIRPLANE MAKES SPECIAL TRIP TO LITTLE SHUT-INS

Somewhere in the loop yesterday a number of persons fell heir to tickets to the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins' benefit in Orchestra hall tomorrow evening. The tickets were scattered from an airplane by Mrs. Edna B. Kaufman of the Chicago Beach hotel, a director of the society. The flight was made from Ashburn field in a plane piloted by Ralph C. Diggins. On the way to the loop a detour was made to pass the home of two child wards of the society, who never had seen an airplane. Propped up in the windows, these young invalids, who never leave their homes, waved thin hands and called shrilly as the aircraft roared past. Then the loop was circumnavigated and the tickets tossed out to fall on the heads of the crowd in the streets.

At the benefit in Orchestra hall the Helen Keller photo drama, "Deliverance," will be shown and a group of twenty young women will act as ushers. All the boxes have been sold. Dr. Edwin W. Ryerson and Horace Bridges will speak and an organ program will be given by Mason Slade.

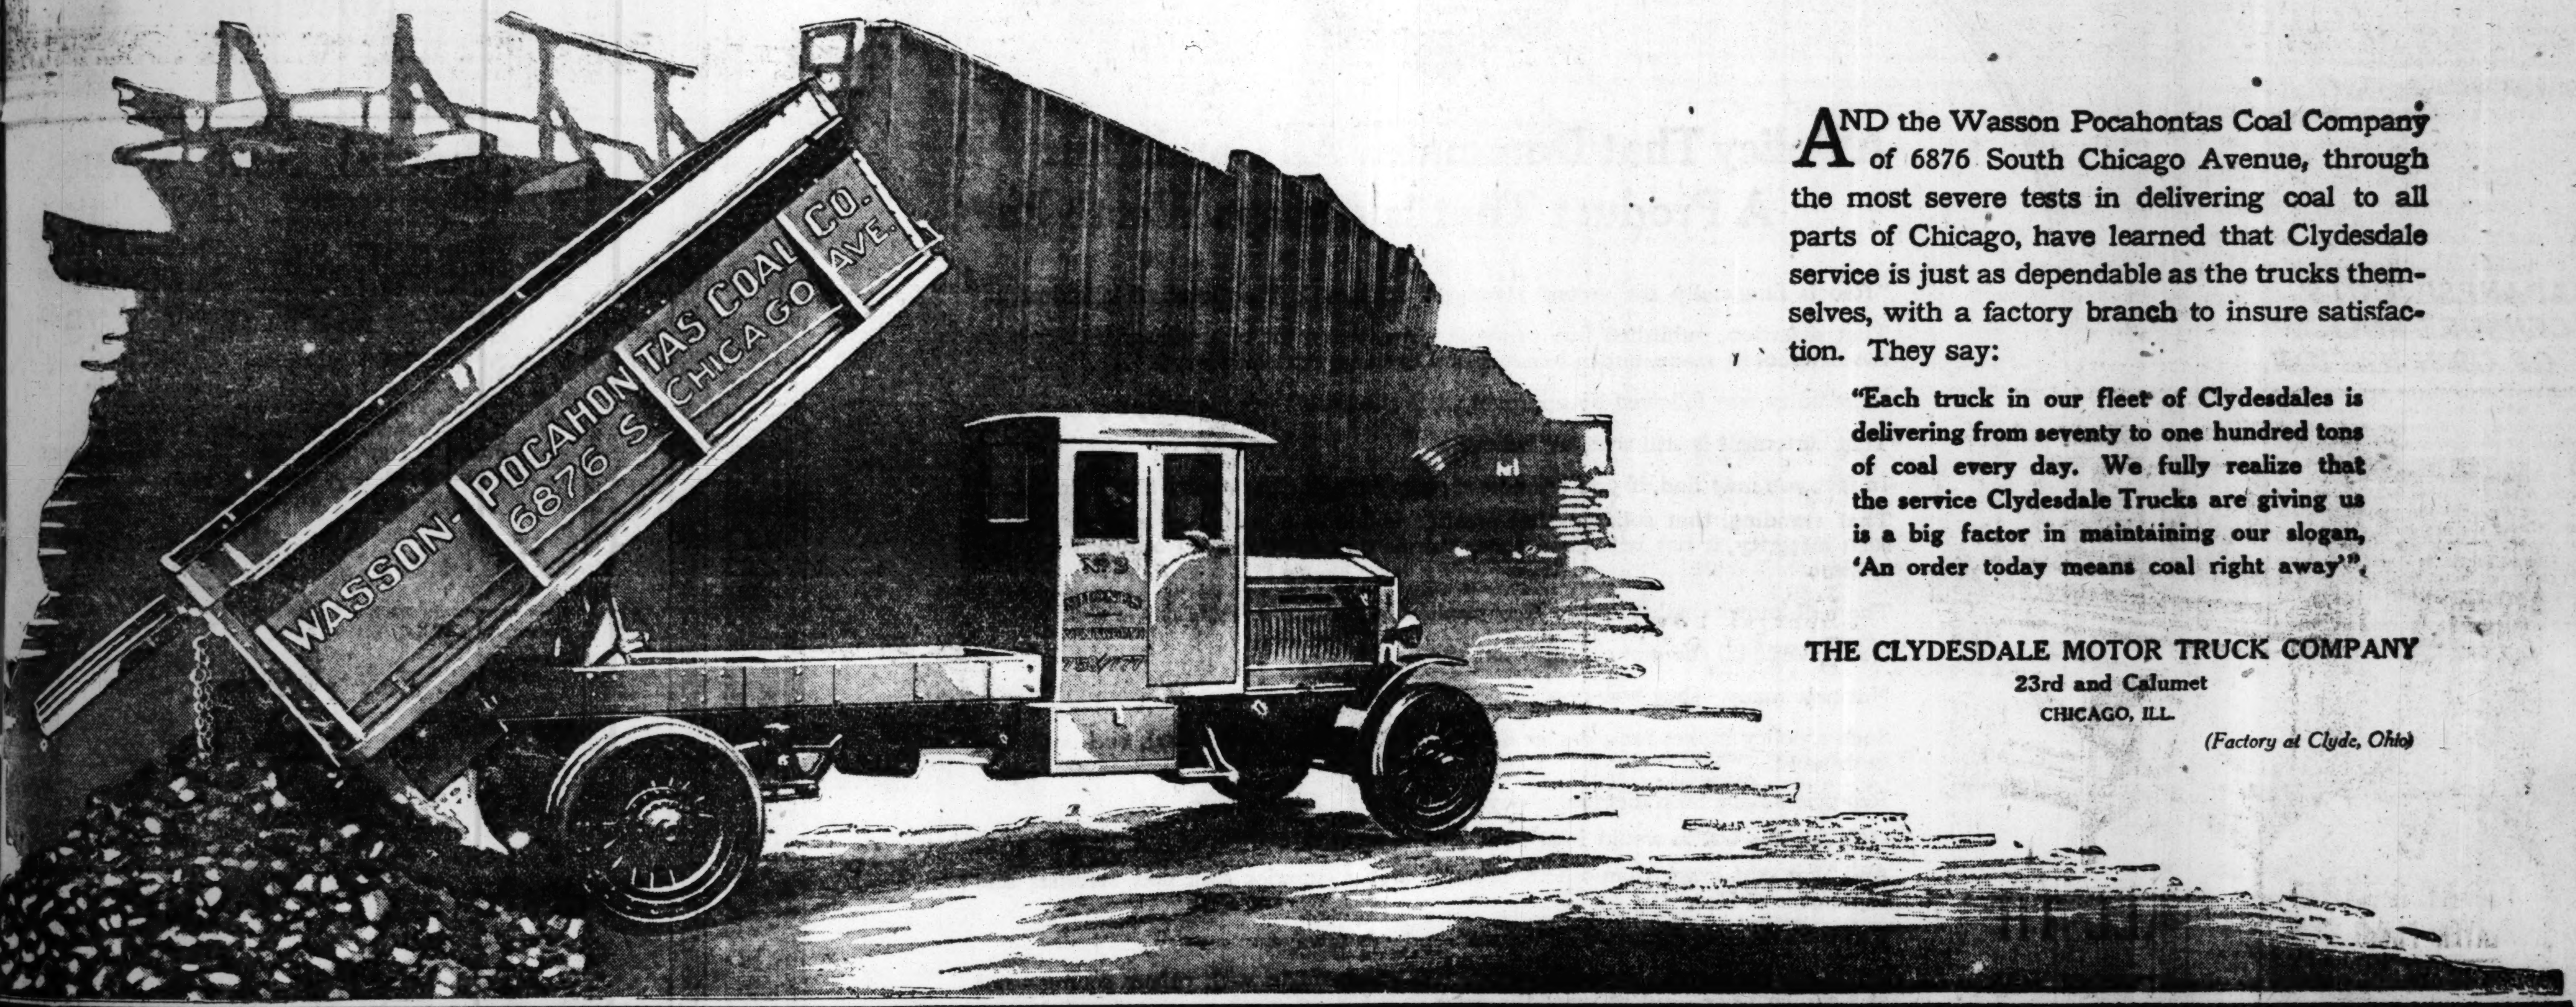
DEPENDABILITY

ONE TRUCK ON THE ROAD IS WORTH TWO IN THE SHOP

THE motor truck is only profitable if it is kept moving. To keep on the road and out of the shop, a truck must meet two important conditions: it must first be dependable in itself, and then it must be properly serviced. Dependability is paramount, though, for sometimes a truck must operate where service is not always instantly available.



WASSON-POCAHONTAS COAL CO.
6876 S. CHICAGO AVE.

AND the Wasson Pocahontas Coal Company of 6876 South Chicago Avenue, through the most severe tests in delivering coal to all parts of Chicago, have learned that Clydesdale service is just as dependable as the trucks themselves, with a factory branch to insure satisfaction. They say:

> "Each truck in our fleet of Clydesdales is delivering from seventy to one hundred tons of coal every day. We fully realize that the service Clydesdale Trucks are giving us is a big factor in maintaining our slogan, 'An order today means coal right away'".

JAPAN WAITS ELECTION NEWS FROM AMERICA

But Interest Centers in California's Action.

BY FREDERICK SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

TOKIO, Oct. 23.—Japanese interest in the coming American election is increasing, although the California referendum continues to be regarded as more important than the presidential result.

The Japanese attitude towards Americans personally is cordial, but visitors in Tokio and Yokohama are accustomed to being asked on the streets and on ships if they are Americans, and, if so, if they are from California. An affirmative answer, however, elicites no further comment.

People Not Well Informed.

The attitudes of Gov. Cox and Senator Harding on international affairs are not being widely published, as the Japanese, in general, are unfamiliar with American policies, but the country is looking to the next administration for a settlement of the critical issues.

An interesting side light as to how international agitation and propaganda flourish under the misconception of facts is provided by the situation in Japan. The majority of the Japanese seem to think that California proposes to dispossess the Japanese immigrant land owners now in California.

Would Assist Negroes.

Many newspaper outbreaks are based on these conceptions. An instance of anti-American agitation is the suggestion in the Diplomatic Review, published in Tokio, that the Japanese join with the American Negroes in an effort to establish the "open door in America," and that Japan lead a movement to bar Americans from oriental commerce.

While such opinions are not held by well informed persons and the authorities are trying to suppress them, still the newspapers continue to devote pages to this agitation, and it is impossible that it should fail to have an effect on the people.

JAPANESE 'OUTS' CENSURE POLICY OF OWN NATION

KUMAMOTO, Japan, Oct. 22.—[By the Associated Press.]—Resolutions condemning the domestic and foreign policies of the government were adopted at the convention here today of 3,000 members of the Kensei-Kai opposition party.

It was declared the utmost anxiety was felt by the people of Japan over the result of the negotiations with the United States in connection with the California situation, because the cabinet was conducting the negotiations in an unsatisfactory manner.

KEYMEN HERE WIRE U. S. CONCILIATOR AS MORE JOIN WALKOUT

The ranks of the striking keymen of the Postal Telegraph company were increased by fifty yesterday when more operators quit work in protest against the discharge of G. O. Heath and L. F. Teed, who refused to work last Tuesday when an order abolishing the bonus system was put in force. There are now 200 men out.

G. O. HEATH.

A last appeal was made to the manager of the company, F. E. Collins. The men sent a delegation to him. Mr. Collins declared he would not reinstate the two discharged, but would allow the others to return under a new pay system which takes the place of the abolished bonus.

Following the conference the men wired to the director of conciliation of the department of labor at Washington for intervention in their behalf. Another meeting will be held Monday morning to make a final decision.

CHINA SEES NEW LEASE OF LIFE IN CONSORTIUM

Thanks U. S. Diplomacy for Defeat of Japs.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 23.—The Chinese newspapers here this week are making public for the first time the correspondence between Thomas Lamont of the Morgan company and Japanese bankers regarding Japanese efforts to have Manchuria excluded from the operations of the Chinese consortium.

Chen Pao, the leading newspaper in Pekin, says that the defeat of the Japanese reservations to the consortium was a complete victory for American diplomacy, and it does not consider that Japan has entered the agreement on terms of equality with America, England, and France.

The paper praises American efforts and blames Chinese pro-Japanese officials for granting too many rights to the Jap in the past.

Leading Chinese express satisfaction over the conclusion of the consortium plans and expect much assistance from it under American leadership. They express the hope that the bankers will work in the best interests of the Chinese people and not of the officials. They urge the disbandment of the troops as the most important first work of the bankers, and they also hope the financiers will use their influence to bring about a union of the north and south Chinese factions.

It is believed that if America takes an active interest in Chinese affairs the Japanese militarists will be unable to undermine the consortium through intrigue among the Chinese reactionary and militarist factions.

IMMIGRATION OF JAPS IS OPPOSED BY STATE LABOR

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Japanese immigration to the United States was frowned on by the Illinois State Federation of Labor in its closing session here today. A resolution introduced by Thomas Davey, commander of the Forges post, American Legion, Chicago, favoring the exclusion of Japanese immigration, was adopted by the convention.

The resolution urging the indorsement of the rank and file veterans' organization, which was referred back to the committee earlier in the week, was returned with a substitute resolution favoring a friendly attitude toward all veteran soldiers' organizations not hostile to organized labor.

A resolution urging a closer alliance between the various crafts of organized labor was passed by the convention. The convention favored that Peter Waller, candidate for United States senator, be held responsible for the conditions in the glove industry controlled by him.

ALLIES' RIVALRY MAY BRING ANOTHER WAR, SAYS PARIS EDITOR

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Oct. 23.—"If rivalry continues among the allies, Europe will be thrown into another conflagration like the great war," warns August Gauvain, writing in the semi-official Journal Debats, covering the subjects of Fiume, Vilna, and Carinthia.

The editorial attacks the Wilsonian policy of delaying plebiscites and insists that balloting should take place immediately after an armistice instead of allowing Pan-German propaganda two years to work.

M. Gauvain intimates that frauds were committed in the Klagenfurt voting and insists that the Austro-Germans attacked the Slavs there personally and also damaged their property as soon as the unfavorable vote toward Jugo-Slavia became known.

M. Gauvain demands that Belgrade recall the Serb troops, but insists that the allies take long neglected action in Fiume to oust D'Annunzio and also demands they force Poland to repudiate the action of Vilna.

"American and English idealists now can see the worthlessness of the league of nations without an international standing army," the writer concludes.

U. S. WANTS NO "FREEZEOUT" IN BIG CABLE LINES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—While the United States has not asked for any of the German cables this country is insisting that it shall not be deprived of service it enjoyed before the world war, which is threatened by the attitude of some of the powers. This was stated today by a high official in outlining the American position in the international conference on communications, now in progress.

The United States, up to the present time, has asked for none of the German cables, but centering its concern on the lines radiating from the Island of Yap and the Teneriff-Pernambuco line, is interested in all.

In respect to the Island of Yap, this government does not lay claim to, nor does it differentiate between Yap, which has been assigned under a mandate to Japan, and islands owned by other powers, including the United States, in many parts of the world, strategically situated for cable communication. At the same time this government insists that no power may use a mandate over a territory to build a fence around it, excluding other powers.

REO

A Policy That Dominates All Conditions
A Product That Is Always Worth Par

"Reo is financially the second strongest concern in the automobile industry."

That assertion, published five years ago, created a lot of comment, not only in the automobile trade, but in banking and business circles everywhere.

Incredulity was followed by approval when the proofs were looked up.

That statement is still true, we believe.

In fact you may find, if you examine closely enough, that today Reo stands first!

That standing, that solidity, that prestige is due to a policy of such soundness, such integrity, it has withstood those storms that have swayed others from time to time.

The well-known quality of the Reo product is the direct outcome of that policy.

Not to build all the motor cars—but the best.

Not how many—but how good.

Such a policy makes for a degree of excellence that knows no rival, and is always in demand.

Reo prices have been dictated always by the same high resolve.

Not "all the traffic would bear" but just a definite margin of profit over cost.

And that cost lower than others, because of the superior skill and facilities and experience of Reo.

Reo is "The Gold Standard of Values"—now as always.

To determine that for yourself, compare any Reo model with others selling—not at a similar price—but at twice the price.

This Sedan, for example. Compare cloth and springs in upholstery—silver and other trimmings; the all-aluminum body. Compare design—beauty and finish.

Compare these external features with any sedan selling for $4500—and say where you find any difference in quality—in value—to account for even a fraction of the difference in price.

And the price of this luxurious equipage is $2750!

You get Reo quality too, in every detail of the chassis.

And—and—that wonderful, silent, flexible, powerful, economical Reo six motor!

No matter how much you are willing to pay for your new automobile, you owe it to yourself to see this Reo first.

For professional and business men—or for milady who drives herself—the 4-passenger Coupe is ideal. Same general design, same chassis, same quality—$2700. Prices are F. O. B. factory, plus Special Federal tax.

ANDERER CASE ILL GO TO JURY NEXT TUESDAY

idence Closes; Called Sane by Doctors.

The fate of Carl Wanderer, accused urdering his young wife and a or boob" last June, will be placed the hands of the jury Tuesday.

The state closed its case shortly after yesterday. The defense followed immediately, even before the of Dr. William O. Krohn's state concerning Wanderer's sanity lifted.

The final arguments and addresses to jury remain. Monday and part of day will be taken up by those ments. Then the jury's delibera—and the verdict.

Wanderer for the first time during lengthy hearing lost his composure erday.

As Dr. Krohn testified the young endant straightened in his chair, bent his fingers back, clasped and clasped his hands. He picked up a y law book, then dropped it to the Wanderer lowered his head.

"He said he was sorry for the first me when he bent over her young dy and heard her last frantic efforts to breathe," came the deep voice from the witness stand.

The young man covered his eyes with his hand. The other arm rested mply at his side.

The whole story of the shooting was one over by the witness. The framg of the plot, the meeting of the ranger, the roaring of the guns, the unding of the stranger's head on hard floor, the death of Ruth, the oung wife. Each sentence of the timony made the picture more vivid.

Sought Insanity Evidence.

Then came the brief but furious ss-examination by Attorney Benet J. Short. It lasted but a few nutes. The case was closed. Court s adjourned. Yet the spectators ained in their seats. Wanderer lked slowly from the courtroom.

Not once during the hearing yesterwas Judge Hugo Pam forced to n the crowd to preserve quiet.

Dr. Krohn, who made a physical mental examination of Wanderer day after his arrest, was the first ess. He explained that he had rched in vain for any indications nsanity or dementia praecox.

Met All Mental Tests.

"You have made all physical and al tests, have you?'

"Every one."

"You have watched his movements actions here in court?"

"Is—and I am convinced he is

"Why?"

"Because of the way he answered questions. He gave evidence of oning, perfect control of the brain, had a perfectly operating nervous em. The complete comprehension he questions, the rapid flow of ideas, speedy functioning of his nimble all convince me that he is sane."

When Attorney Short, opening his s-examination, burst out with the stion, "Did you learn all that by rt?" Wanderer appeared not to r. No smile played about his lips Scientist Who Will Seek New Data on "The Descent of Man" by Hunting "Missing Link" in Asia.

ROY CHAPMAN ANDREWS.

Scientists, headed by Roy Chapman Andrews, will explore Asia for new light on man, who is believed by some to have originated there. The expedition, backed by a fund of $250,000, and under the auspices of the Museum of Natural History, New York, the Asiatic society, and the Asia magazine, will have headquarters in Peking. It will leave about Feb. 1 and expects to search for remains of creatures on the physiological border line between men and the apes.

OLD TIMERS TO SING IN JUBILEE OF NORWEGIANS

Next Thursday, Oct. 28, is the fiftieth anniversary of the Norwegian Singing Society of Chicago, and the singers have planned for a jubilee celebration.

They have arranaged for a special concert to be given in Orchestra hall in the evening. Fifty members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will lend their help.

A feature of the evening will be the cantata to be sung by the senior chorus, the members of which have been with the society a quarter century or more.

The cantata is for solo, chorus, and orchestra, and was written for the occasion by Alfred Paulsen, Chicago composer and organ soloist.

Otto Clausen will conduct the chorus and Albert Ulrich will lead the orchestra.

Needle Robber Holds Up Woman and Slaps Her

A lone robber leaped from an automobile at East Chicago and North Michigan avenue, stopped Mrs. E. Hamilton Lee, 11 East Chestnut street, as she was on her way downtown, and after slapping her twice in the face, seized her pocketbook containing $16, ran back to his car and drove away. "He had a pin or a needle in one hand and said he would stick me if I made any noise," she told the police.

Prisoner Arrested Here Escapes from Train

Word was received by the Chicago police yesterday that George G. Brien, 21 years old, who was arrested Oct. 6 in a room in the Hotel La Salle, had escaped from the custody of Sheriff John O'Rourke of Butte, Mont., while riding on a Northern Pacific passenger train en route to the Montana city. Brien was being taken there to answer charges of larceny and forgery.

You've often heard some one say, "I wish I could get the old fashioned appetite I had when I was a youngster?"

And of course you remember how we used to sneak into the kitchen; watch the food sizzling and broiling and frying on the stove—and get the appetizing aroma. That's what made us so hungry. Gee, the whiffs of mothers cooking made us hungry as young bears.

At the North American restaurant we give you that old-fashioned appetite, whetted to a keen edge. Much of our food is cooked before your eyes. You get it smoking hot. And before you make the selection you see the food itself. You don't look at the cold type of a printed bill of fare, try to imagine what the food will taste like, and guess what you want. You see the food itself and you know what you want.

You can't get better food anywhere. And if you will compare our prices with those charged by other first class restaurants and hotels you will be amazed. Our prices are so low because we follow the common sense plan of asking you to wait on yourself. The cost of service was pushing food prices up. So we cut out service and you get the saving.

Now, the Ladies and Gentlemen who dine here regularly tell us they like this plan much better than the old way. They like common sense prices and they like to select their food by looking at the food, instead of from a printed bill of fare.

If you haven't tried it you have overlooked something.

FEASTO!

The Candy Banquet

Yoho! What ho! · Here's FEASTO!

THE TANDY TOTS cordially invite you to attend America's sweetest treat. A feast of finest crunchy Spanish peanuts, smothered in fluffy cane-sugar marshmallow, atop a thick layer of rich caramel, made of pure dairy cream—all covered with velvety vanilla chocolate.

FEASTO serves as a substitute for sunshine—a domestic peace offering, joy biscuit, and smile maker combined. Also a perfect food for filling that hungry hollow between meals. It sweetens every bitter moment that creeps into the office, home, or school.

Ten o'clock brokers eat FEASTO. So do their chauffeurs. It's the one confection on which they all agree, everywhere—men, women and children, not even excepting teetering debutantes, or staid spinsters.

Each FEASTO comes wrapped in silver-foil—always a fresh, chocolaty, lip-smacking heap of goodness that contains many luscious mouthfuls.

Dealers make friends and customers dishing out FEASTOS.

You can't eat FEASTO and not smile. A better cheer-up never flowed out of any bottle.

Stop! Don't renig now! It's your turn to buy!

At the first sweet hunch—get yours TODAY. Good dealers will serve you.

HORSE VS. AUTO.

In the days before the auto's speed,
I saddled and bridled my trusty steed,
And away we went with spirits free,
And between us a feeling of camaraderie.

For he was alive in every limb,
He understood me and I understood him;

I stroked his neck as we sped away,
He answered my touch with a whispered neigh.

Now I glide along in my long, gray car,
No matter what distance, it doesn't seem far;
And though my spirits are as light and free,
I miss that feeling of camaraderie.

Letter from May Howard.

New York, Oct. 20. Dear Wake: Help! In your newsy Way Back When column, which I never miss, I find my name. Permit me to say I never was in the Park theater in my life. I first sang "The Letter That Never Came" at the old Lyceum on Desplaines street.

Later, during the World's Fair year, I had my company at the People's theater next door to the Park. It was owned then by Mr. Jos. Bayliss. So "Boldy" is all wrong about me.

I remember many things "Way Back"—as I belong in Chicago—for instance when the horse cars ran no farther south than Thirty-ninth street on Cottage Grove. My father owned a roadhouse at northwest corner Cottage Grove and Sixty-fifth street, also one in Bowmanville. This was before the Washington Park race track. Yours truly, MAY HOWARD.

MARKET LETTER.

We believe that stocks in many instances are now selling below their real value, just as they sold above their real value in the bull son market of a year ago. That does not mean they may not go lower, but we think they are rattling around the bottom, considering their comparative firmness in the face of many adverse factors.

There have been enough "healthy reactions" to wipe out all the sanitariums, and strong arms have placed stocks in "stronger hands," but the period of convalescence is likely to await a period of easy money to pay the hospital bills. (The Wake personally doesn't know what "easy money" is—it's never been easy for us—but the phrase sounds well, anyway, and we like the sound.)

Commentators say the market is in professional hands. That, of course, is bad, as professionals have ruined many sports, and it takes a sport to play the market these days.

You remember we called your attention to Standard Oil of Indiana when it was selling at 650 per share. It is now 762. One thousand shares would have yielded you a profit of $112,000.

There'll Come a Time.

I've always longed to write a "pome,"
But always never do it;
There always is nobody home,
That's always all there's to it.

Perhaps some day I'll write a verse,
But then perhaps I'll never;
Of course, I know I could do worse,
But that won't happen ever.

CULVER, 48; CRANE COL., 0.

Culver, Ind., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Culver Military academy team broke the defense of Crane Junior college today and went to victory, 48 to 0. Crane's back field, with Casey, Nerad, Blair, and Capt. Naselli, fought brilliantly, but the Crane line crumbled.

CRIMSON ATTACK FAME DESTROYER FOR CENTER TEAM

BY ROBERT W. MAXWELL.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—After standing on the threshold of enduring football fame early in the contest when the Crimson was trailing, Center college finally had to submit to the Harvard yoke in the stadium this afternoon as 40,000 looked on.

ARNOLD HORWEEN, Captain, Harvard.

The Kentucky defense was not equal to the savage, desperate thrusts of the goaded Harvard warriors and the Crimson mounted higher and higher on the flagstaff of victory in the closing stages. The final score was 31 to 14. At one time in the second period Center was ahead by 14 to 7 and going like a house afire.

Center was beaten but not disgraced. This is old stuff, but true, in spite of the 31 to 14 score. Charlie Moran's slogan is that "A Good Offense Is the Best Possible Defense." That was proved, in a way, but unhappily. It worked just as unfailingly when Harvard had the ball as when Center possessed it. The fact that Center's dazzling offense proved baffling enough to net two touchdowns against the closely knit Harvard offense is a great consolation to all southern sympathizers.

Battle Best Harvard Team.

Center ran up against a most businesslike Harvard eleven—the same one that, barring unforeseen circumstances, will start against Princeton and Yale next month. Center found the Harvard team at a more advanced stage of development than is usual at this time of the season. Thus Center was defeated not by a makeshift combination, but by the best Harvard had to offer.

A ray of light that shines through Center's gloom of defeat is the bold and brilliant performance of Capt. "Bo." McMillin, all-America quarter back and general handy man for the southern champions. Center's fame was accepted in eastern football circles before the Colonels appeared in the stadium, but there was a tendency to doubt the truth of the ambitious assertions made concerning this tricky McMillin person.

McMillin Proves Real Star.

"Bo" verily tore up the turf on Soldiers' field. In all of Center's offensive plays, he either carried the ball or bore the brunt of paving the way for the runner. Once in the first quarter, when Center saw victory just ahead, and again in the closing period after inevitable defeat had closed in, the Kentucky eleven fought its way from a point far back in its own territory to the very shadow of Harvard's goal posts. And in each of these rushes McMillin gained more than two yards out of every three advanced.

One of those drives culminated in a touchdown for Center and the Colonels got another when "Lefty" Whitnell of Fulton, Ky., caught a thirty-five yard forward pass from McMillin and raced thirty-five yards more to cross the goal line. Thus McMillin did not break into the scoring at all, but without him no one else would have been able to break into it.

Center was defeated through the failure of its defense together with Coach

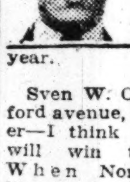
Today's Question.

Who will be the "Big Ten" football champions?

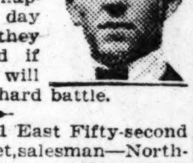
Where Asked.

La Salle and Washington streets.

The Answers.

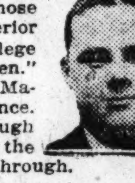


C. L. Piper, Berwyn, Ill., real estate dealer—Most likely Illinois. It has a wonderful all around team this year. It had more to start with this year than any other conference team. And Zuppke will bring his school the big honors this year.



Sven W. Carlson, 4327 North Crawford avenue, paint dealer—I think Minnesota will win this year When Northwestern beat them it just happened to be a bad day for them. I think they will buck up, and if they don't win they will give the leaders a hard battle.

C. O. Holton, 1211 East Fifty-second street, salesman—Northwestern will collect this year. They have had better coaching, they have had plenty of workouts, and from the exhibitions they have given they seem to have the best team in the middle west this year.



Jack Sherwin, 3202 Arthington street, clerk—Illinois or Wisconsin. Both of those teams are far superior to all the other college teams in the "Big Ten." I don't think the Maroons have a chance. They have not enough experienced men on the team to pull them through.

Tracy Johnson, 4833 North Lawndale, salesman—Wisconsin looks the best to me. They have the punch and pep in them that makes them look like a winner. Their record this year shows them to have a wonderful team.

GATE FIGURES PROVE FOOTBALL'S STANDING

That 1920 will be the most prosperous year in the history of football is evidenced by the early season games. In many cases there have been capacity crowds. Approximately 161,000 attended six of the biggest games, three east and three west, yesterday. Following are the approximate figures:

Center college at Harvard	$40,000
Illinois at Michigan	30,000
Navy at Princeton	25,000
Iowa at Chicago	26,000
West Virginia at Yale	20,000
Wisconsin at Ohio	20,000

YOST'S MEN LOSE TO ILLINOIS, 7-6, BY MISSED GOAL

Michigan Leads Rivals at Half Time.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Wolverine followers were heartbroken tonight over the football contest lost by Michigan to Illinois this afternoon by the narrow margin of 7 to 6.

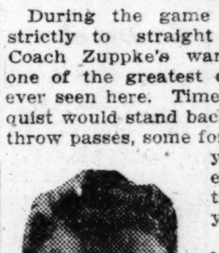
BOB FLETCHER.

Just because Jack Dunn failed to kick the goal after the touchdown, Michigan was eliminated from the conference championship and failed to avenge the defeat Illinois administered a year ago.

Entering the game with all the odds against them, with all of the dope sheets in the country exclaiming they didn't have a chance, Capt. Goetz and his followers put up one of the best fights ever seen at Ferry field.

Yosts Use Straight Football.

During the game Michigan stuck strictly to straight football, while Coach Zuppke's warriors uncovered one of the greatest open air attacks ever seen here. Time after time Walquist would stand back of the line and throw passes, some for only five or ten yards, while others went from twenty to forty yards.



JACK DUNN, Michigan.

Yost's men, who had trained for a week on breaking up this sort of a game, showed the results of the toil and kept the Illinois men well covered. In the last half the Michigan line seemed to weaken and Crangle was able to make plunges through the line for gains, whereas in the first half he found the line to be as solid as a wall.

Punting Duel at Start.

During the first quarter neither team was able to gain and the time was spent in punting back and forth with Hellstrom, the Illinois booter, having the best of the argument. However, Dunn was aided by a fumble and managed to keep his goal line untouched.

In the second quarter, after the ball was punted back and forth without much gain for either side, Illinois opened up its forward passing game. However, Jack Dunn was on the lookout for the aerial offense, and leaped into the air to spear one of Walquist's tosses. With splendid interference he raced eighty yards for the touchdown. Not much regret was felt when Dunn missed the goal after the touchdown, as Wolverine followers were confident their line could hold Illinois from scoring.

Forward Pass Nets Score.

In the third quarter Bob Fletcher saw the Michigan line was still strong and again opened up with forward passes. This time he was successful. After the ball had been worked down to the fifteen yard line a pretty pass from Walquist to Carney took it over, and Michigan's hopes for a championship disappeared when Bob Fletcher kicked the ball between the uprights for the deciding point.

Bob Fletcher, Crangle, and Carney put up a wonderful game for Illinois. It was the old question of the forward pass against straight football. Once again the new game triumphed.

Losers Surprise Fans.

Michigan was beaten, but not disgraced, and, in fact, the followers of the Wolverines were more than pleased with the showing which the team made. Of course, Michigan wanted to win, but the 30,000 spectators who viewed the contest saw a Michigan team 100 per cent better than the eleven which represented it on the gridiron last season.

For Michigan the entire team put up a great battle, and but for a mishap which placed an official in Perrin's way victory might have rested with the Maize and Blue. On this play Perrin, starting from the Michigan twenty yard line, skirted right end for thirty yards, where he stumbled over the referee, with only one man between him and the goal.

At the start of the final period Michigan lost an excellent chance for victory when Dunn missed a forty yard field goal by a foot. Lineup:

ATTACK BY YALE TOPPLES W. VA. IN 24 TO 0 TILT

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Instead of subduing the Yale team as did Boston College last week, West Virginia today fell an easy victim to the Elis, 24 to 0.

Yale turned loose a whirlwind attack upon the mountaineers, in which the field running of Herbert Kempton was the headliner. Time and again the blonde sprinter, who played quarter back and half back for the Elis, eluded the ponderous tacklers from the south and gained his ground.

Injuries forced both elevens to make numerous substitutions, including both Capts. Harrick and Dickens, acting leader in Callahan's absence, and "Whitey" Beck, the dashing half back upon whom hope of victory hung heavily. Bob Lay, a Yale substitute back, crashed heavily into Beck and knocked him unconscious.

Yale Gets Early Lead.

Yale snatched a winning lead in the first period. Three minutes after play opened Thorne Murphy recorded the only score of the period by lifting a pretty field goal over the bar from the eighteen yard line. The Elis were placed in position for the score when "Whitey" Beck's short punt for the visitors was caught at their forty yard line and Murphy, on kick formation, circled end for thirty yards.

Frank Kelley, the former Rutgers college captain, was injected into the play as the second period began and drove over the visitors' goal in a smashing advance through guard for the Elis' initial touchdown on the opening play.

Yale opened the third period with a whirlwind rally, Frank Kelley running back Dawson's kickoff for fifty yards and Kempton's forward pass to Kelley breezing the ball along to the West Virginia five yard line, where Johnny Peterson, a substitute back, smashed over for the second Yale touchdown.

Score Near End of Game.

Yale's attack swept another touchdown over the goal line in the closing minutes of the period. Knapp, another substitute halfback, twice hit center for six yard gains after the Elis had obtained the ball in midfield, on a punt exchange. Kelley's forward pass to Knapp rushed the ball to the West Virginia five yard line. Although Yale was held on downs, Dawson's short kick gave Yale another chance to rush it back and Sturm smashed center for ten yards to the Mountaineers' three yard mark and Kempton went over for the final tally.

BRAIN POWER A POTENT FACTOR IN CHICAGO WIN

Hawkeyes Erratic Against an Alert Foe.

BY ALBON HOLDEN.

By showing that brains and alertness are as important as hands and feet in a football game, Coach Stagg's 1920 model University of Chicago football team demonstrated it may be a real contender for the Big Ten title by defeating the brilliant but erratic University of Iowa team, 10 to 0, before 26,000 at Stagg field yesterday.

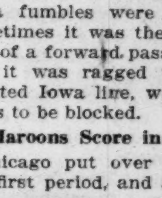
"FRITZ" CRISLER. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Iowa put up a really brilliant battle in spurts, but showed weaknesses in fundamental football. At times it seemed started on a drive that would sweep the Maroons off the field, but something always happened to put the brakes on the Hawkeyes' scintillating wide open attack.

Sometimes it was a fumble—and the Iowa fumbles were always costly—sometimes it was the catlike interception of a forward pass, and toward the end it was ragged work in the exhausted Iowa line, which allowed two kicks to be blocked.

Maroons Score in First Period.

Chicago put over a touchdown in the first period, and after that played safe and sane football, using nothing but simple plays, keeping the ball in Iowa territory by constant punting, and making Coach Howard Jones' fighters do the forcing. At the finish Chicago was stronger, while Iowa was pretty well played out.



AUBREY DEVINE, Iowa.

Chicago did little that was brilliant, but the Maroons used a frightfully patched up backfield most of the day, for Stagg was badly crippled behind the line, and, once in the lead, Chicago cut out its forward pass game, which is its strongest attacking weapon. At one time the Maroons had two slow, driving full backs playing at half back and at another time two ends at the half back posts.

Devine Star of Game.

It was during the third quarter, when the Chicago team was all twisted around, that Iowa gained the most ground, but when the Hawkeyes tried their passes near the finish, Stagg had reinforcements in his secondary defense and few attempts by the aerial route were successful.

The star of the day was Aubrey Devine, the Iowa quarterback. If his work was a sample of what he will do the rest of the season, you can enter his name in the race for all-western selection and give him the pole. A dozen times he squirmed through the Maroons, whose tackles were battered hard by massed interference. He gained straight through the line, he got around the ends, and he shot forward passes to Belding, and his brother, Glenn Devine, that had the Maroons badly worried. Without Aubrey, Iowa never would have had a chance.

Belding a Constant Menace.

Belding, who can leap about one foot higher than any end seen on Stagg field since Bert Baston of Minnesota, was a constant menace to the Maroons, but "Duke" Slater, the big dusky Iowa tackle, did not shine as had been predicted. Minus a headguard, the dark boy was a prominent figure all through the game, but in the second half Chicago battered him to submission and he could hardly lift his feet at the finish.

Crisler moved from end to halfback, put up a grand battle for Chicago, and Strohmeier, who replaced him, did well in his first game. McGuire, hurt in the first half, returned for the final period, and blocked a punt in addition to smearing numerous plays made on his side. Perhaps the best work of a Chicagoan was the exhibition that the injured Bobbie Cole made in the fourth period, breaking up the Hawkeye passes.

Iowa Starts Straight Game.

Iowa started out to do business on straight football right after the kickoff, and smashed for three first downs before Coach Stagg could substitute Redmon for Barker at guard. Iowa marched to thirty-eight yards from the goal line, due to Locke's plunging, but fumbled, and Chicago recovered.

Chicago gained on a trade of punts, and Jackson was close enough for a place kick, but Iowa blocked the boot and recovered the ball. After another trade of kicks, A. Devine fumbled a punt from Hanisch, and Redmon dropped on the ball.

Immediately the Maroons started forward passing. One beauty, Crisler to Hinkle, who was clear past the secondary defense, put the ball inside of the five yard line. Iowa held for three plays, and again Crisler shot a forward to Hinkle, but an overanxious Hawkeye held Hinkle behind the goal line before he caught the ball, and Chicago was given first down on the one yard line. Tatge bucked over for the touchdown and Jackson kicked goal.

Iowa Starts Drive.

Iowa came back in the second period with her brilliant passing game when the Devine person started his wriggling, twisting runs, but once a fumble, recovered by Chicago, choked a drive, and another march was halted by the whistle for the first half with the ball on Chicago's eighteen yard line.

In the third period, the Devine brothers and Belding got frisky with passes, so Cole was rushed in to back up the line, and with Hanisch back at full back, Chicago smothered nearly every Hawkeye toss.

Chicago gained fifty yards by blocking one of Belding's punts in the fourth period, and a moment later McGuire threw his chest in front of another punt, and Lewis recovered for the Maroons on the fifteen yard line.

Smashes carried the ball to two yards from the goal line, and then playing safe, Stagg sent Cole back for a drop kick. Bobbie, standing only fifteen yards back, registered the field goal, sewing up the game. Lineup:

NOTES OF MAROON GAME

It was too warm for good football, and both teams slowed down noticeably in the final period.

Coach Stagg used twenty-one men, nursing his squad carefully to save them from wear for another fierce battle scheduled with Ohio State next Saturday.

A swarm of bugs crowded the press coop for returns from Ann Arbor and Columbus, but the fact that Chicago time is different sent them away without news on the two other conference battles.

What Chicago can do against a strong team with her forward pass game, which was so brilliant in the two previous games, is still a mystery, for, once in the lead, the Maroons did not take any chances.

There was little betting. The crowd from Iowa City thought the defeat of the Hawkeyes by Illinois made Chicago a 7 to 5 favorite, while the Midway gang wanted even money because of the loss of Elton and the cripples in Stagg's backfield.

The big crowd of Iowa fans in the east bleacher could not see why one long pass, A. Devine to Belding, was not allowed in the final period. The big Iowa end plainly interfered with Cole of Chicago, who had an equal right to catch the ball, and two officials saw the shoving.

The penalty against Iowa for holding Hinkle when he tried to catch the forward pass behind his goal line was a tough break for the Hawkeyes. It looked as though Hinkle would have gone a step farther back had he been unmolested, which would have carried him beyond the ten yard zone, back of the goal line, making the pass illegal.

Cornell Rips Large Holes in Colgate Defense, 42 to 6

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Cornell ripped open Colgate's defense this afternoon, and the red and white warriors rolled up 42 points to Colgate's 6. An eighty-five yard run by Webster, Colgate star, accounted for the losers' only tally. Colgate made only three first downs.

CRIMSON ATTACK FAME DESTROYER FOR CENTER TEAM

Batters Kentuckians' Defense, 31 to 14.

Moran's unwillingness to follow the principles of zone play. The tipoff came when Harvard rushed the ball across the line just seven plays after getting possession of the leather near the Harvard forty yard line.

Nothing save straight football was employed in this dash. The crimson punished the weak left side of Center's line and Churchill dashed through tackle for the first score when the contest was less than four minutes old. Faxon kicked goal.

Center's first mad dash followed immediately and Moran's offense-defense theory was in process of being proved. Center took the kickoff and rushed the leather down the field and across the goal line without once relinquishing it. The burst developed as dazzling an array of open work and daring as ever was seen on soldiers' field. Roberts made the last two yards for the touchdown and Weaver kicked goal.

Another Southern Score.

The southern sympathizers went insane when Center, carrying its daring even further, completed a long pass from McMillan to Whitnell for its second touchdown. Weaver kicked another goal, putting Center ahead, 14 to 7, and the Kentucky rooters were blinded to the vulnerability of their team on defense.

Harvard again showed the Colonels a sign of what was to follow by taking the ball in midfield and rushing it home for another score shortly afterward. Again only straight football was employed, but Churchill worked into the limelight with a wiry, reeling broken field dash of thirty yards. This run took the ball to the fifteen yard line. Owen went over for the score from the two yard mark and Faxon tied the count at 14-14 with the goal kick.

Harvard Attack Finds Victims.

In the second half the Center men men fell easy victims to the incessant attack by the Crimson backs. Fitzgerald, Owen, Churchill, and Horween all dashed hither and thither in a mad scramble. Harvard began to block with all the oldtime Haughton deadliness and Center fell away as if made of paper.

Horween defended the Crimson to the extent of two touchdowns in the last half. Another time when temporarily halted he was able to distinguish himself with a field goal from the thirty yard line. He had an easy kick and the ball sailed gracefully between the posts for the three points. Lineup:

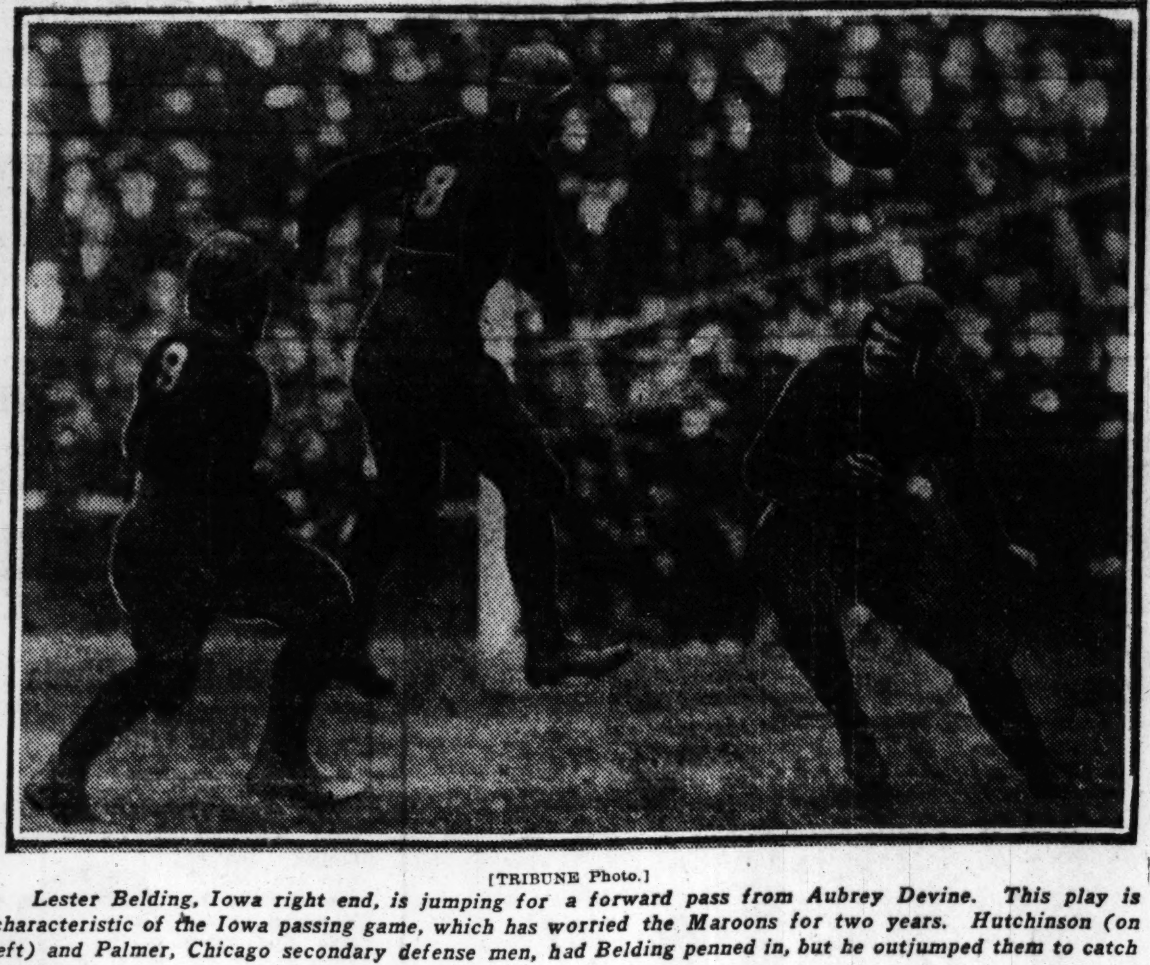
Stagg Causes Fining of 4 Who Bumped His Car

Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago was a complaining witness yesterday in the Englewood court against Edward Lawson, a guest of the Holland hotel, East Fifty-third street and Lake Park avenue; F. R. Hellgren, Aurora; Jane Keith, 1631 East Fifty-fifth street, and Mildred Stevens, 1633 East Fifty-fifth street. The men were each ordered to pay $100 and costs and the women $10 each and costs, on disorderly conduct charges.

SUCCESSFUL IOWA FORWARD PASS



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Lester Belding, Iowa right end, is jumping for a forward pass from Aubrey Devine. This play is characteristic of the Iowa passing game, which has worried the Maroons for two years. Hutchinson (on left) and Palmer, Chicago secondary defense men, had Belding penned in, but he outjumped them to catch the ball.

BREAKS NECK IN FOOTBALL GAME, BUT MAY LIVE

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 23.—Merrill K. Boone of Muncie, Ind., a freshman at Purdue university, had his neck broken in a football game yesterday, it was disclosed at a local hospital today. Boone was playing halfback on the freshman eleven in a game with a junior class team. He dove head first into the opposing line, and somebody jumped on the back of his neck. He was carried from the field, but soon revived and walked to the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity house, where he lived.

Later he complained of pain and stiffness in his arms. The X-ray examination disclosed four of the cervical vertebrae fractured. There is no general paralysis and the young man may recover. His neck was placed in a cast this afternoon.

PRINCETON RAMS NAVY CRAFT, 14-0, AS 25,000 WATCH

Sailors Gain More Ground but Lack Punch.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 23.—Princeton defeated the Navy today, 14 to 0, before 25,000.

The Navy gave the Tigers the fight they had expected. The future admirals tore through the Princeton lines repeatedly, gaining in the aggregate far more ground than the local team. However, the necessary punch could not be produced.

The Navy craft was rammed in the second quarter, when Princeton started a whirlwind offensive. Eight yards was gained in four plays at the start of the period, a touchdown being scored before the Navy realized its danger. Dan Lourie was the star of this attack. He ran around right end for twenty yards. He then skirted left end for fifteen yards, and a touchdown.

The brilliant Frank Murrey posted his claim to fame again. His contribution was a seventeen yard run in the fourth quarter for the second and last touchdown. He starred last year when, as a substitute, he scored field goals against Harvard and Yale. Lineup:

first eleven minutes of play. After several exchanges of punts in which Sundt, for Wisconsin, outplayed Workman, the Badgers took the ball on their own forty yard line. Elliott, the star of the Badger backfield, circled left end and behind perfect interference gained twenty yards, carrying the ball to Ohio's thirty-eight yard line.

Holmes, Sundt, and Barr made it first down and then Barr's forward pass to Elliott gave the Badgers the ball in the shadow of the Buckeye goal. Ohio's line stiffened and held for two downs and then Holmes drove off right tackle for the first touchdown scored against Ohio this year. Sundt kicked goal. Lineup:

SYRACUSE BEATS DARTMOUTH MEN IN 10-0 COMBAT

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 23.—Syracuse scoring in the first and third periods, beat Dartmouth in a hard fought game today, 10 to 0. Gulick, the Syracuse left tackle, kicked a finely judged field goal from placement in the middle of the first period.

Syracuse threatened to score again toward the end of the second period, but the Dartmouth defense held and the ball was in the possession of Syracuse on the Dartmouth four yard line when the first half ended.

In the third period, Syracuse made a vigorous attack. A series of line plunges carried the ball steadily forward toward the Green goal, and Foster, substituting for Abbott at right half back took it across the line. Frugonne kicked goal.

LELAND-BUILT

LINCOLN

In evolving the Leland-built Lincoln Car, the purpose of its creators was not confined to producing a mechanism merely to represent a value commensurate with a specific merchandising figure.

Their purpose, rather, was to produce a superior motor car—superior in stability, in trustworthiness, and in endurance; superior in ease, superior in comfort and superior in performance; superior in the multitude of things and ways which make for consummate utility, for consummate charm and for consummate satisfaction in motor car possession.

High as was this purpose and difficult of accomplishment as it may appear, it is an oft expressed opinion that the selling figure is a scant expression of the unusual character of the car and of its exceptional capabilities.

And it is an estimate in which there is wide concurrence that a car of the Leland-built Lincoln type and proficiency, if produced by conventional practices and methods, would demand—and by sheer worthiness could command—a figure materially in excess of the established sales consideration.

LZ'S LONG RUN PS 7-0 CLASH OR ENGLEWOOD sive Star Takes Hyde ark Punt 60 Yards.

spectacular run of sixty yards by Folz after catching a punt, enabled wood to down Hyde Park yester morning at Stagg field and thus its slate clean in the fight for go High School league footbal s, and the probable trip to New k to meet Gotham's best in a post son game. The score was 7 to 0, only touchdown coming in the sec quarter on the brilliant open field of young Mr. Folz.

other respects, Hyde Park played ewood to a standstill. With a bit care in handling punts, the Hyde kers might have won, for once or fumbles proved costly. They ped Englewood's sweeping offen plays with defensive line work was great. Only twice did Engle make first down on straight foot and both occurred in the last three utes of play, when the line plung of Vickers, Stevens and Gentry ed successful.

Only One Folz.

Englewood's defense was even more superb, for only once by straight football was Hyde Park able to carry the ball ten yards in four plays and that occurred almost at the start of the game on off tackle plunges by Kann and McCarty.

Defensively it was one of the greatest prep battles ever seen in Chicago. Englewood had Folz, so excelled in offense; for there is only one Folz. His open field running was even better than in previous games. It has been years since a prep lad has shown the speed, alertness, and dogding ability of the Englewood quarter back.

Hyde Park had its best chance to score in the first period, when, by means of some clever forward passes, and with the help of a few penalties, they got well into Englewood territory. However, the Purple lads braced on their thirty yard line and on the fourth down Hyde Park attempted a place kick.

Englewood Blocks Kick.

The ball was blocked and went to Englewood. There were two or three exchanges of punts, with Sims of Englewood showing improvement over a week ago, so that he nearly held his own with Simmons of Hyde Park. However, Folz was so far superior to Ballantyne in returning the punts that Englewood generally gained.

It was near the middle of the second period, when the punting battle was on, that Simmons lifted a high one to Folz on his own forty yard line. It looked as if at least four Hyde Park men were down on the kick ready to tackle the elusive Englewood star, but all of them missed when he dodged the first two and then evaded a couple of others who finished with a sprawl upon the earth after missing their man.

Folz then got up speed around the left end and not a man got near enough him to do more than tag him as he flew past for his sixty yard run for a touchdown.

Hyde Park Repulsed Again.

In the third period Hyde Park, with a forward pass and the aid of a fifteen yard penalty, got within twenty yards of Englewood's goal, but again the Purple lads held. The balance of the time the game consisted only of sturdy defensive plays on each side.

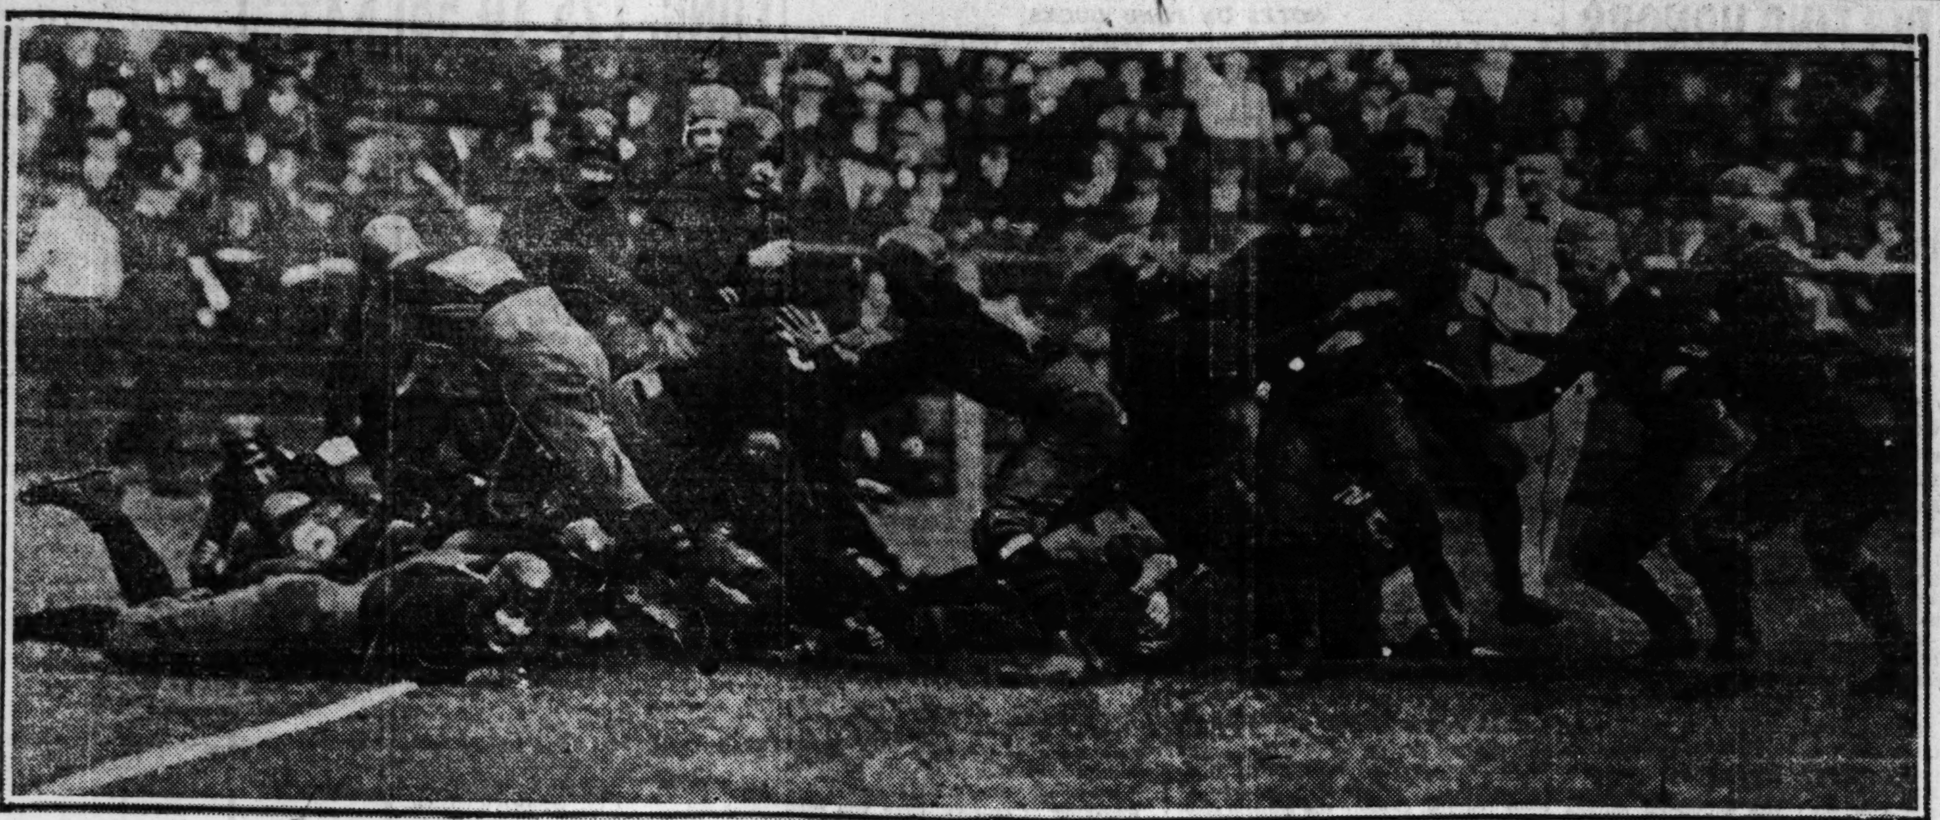
MAROON TOUCHDOWN THROUGH IOWA LINE IN FIRST QUARTER



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Quarter Back Tatge, diving over the Iowa goal line for the only touchdown of the game, is buried in the pile of players. Illegal interference with Hinkle behind the goal line on an attempted Maroon pass had given Chicago the ball on the one yard line. Tatge carried it across on the third scrimmage.

DEERFIELD LADS BEAT EVANSTON TEAM, 7-6; LOSERS PLAN PROTEST

Three thousand rabid Suburban prep fans saw Deerfield win from Evanston, 7 to 6, in a hard fought league game at Foster field, Evanston. Coach Riddell of Evanston declared he would protest the game on the ground that Deerfield had five downs on the ten yards which finally resulted in their touchdown.

Deerfield had the ball on Evanston's twenty-five yard line in the third quarter and Riddell claims that Referee Bobie Cahn allowed five downs to make the ten yards. On the alleged fifth down Full Back Parcells tossed a short forward pass to McIlwain, who romped twelve yards to the Evanston goal line. Parcells kicked goal. Coach Rothacher and Deerfield dispute the assertion this was the fifth down.

Fans Threaten Referee.

After the game Riddell cornered Cahn and presented his case. Cahn upheld his own decision amid threats from some Evanston fans.

Evanston scored late in the fourth quarter when Smith intercepted a short forward from Parcells and raced sixty yards for a touchdown. In the trial for the goal Flood's kick veered to the right under a strong wind and hit the post, rebounding to the center of the field. The game ended with the teams battling on even terms in midfield.

Stewart Hurts Ankle.

The first quarter was a rare exhibition of football, both teams holding for downs and putting back and forth. Stewart, Deerfield's colored half back, was forced to retire in the third quarter when the tendons in his right ankle were torn. Lineup:

Deerfield [7].	Evanston [6].

PROVISO TIES AND WINS.

Following their 14 to 14 tie against Bloom in yesterday's Suburban league encounter at Maywood, players, captain, coach, and faculty men of Proviso High school drew up a resolution of condemnation on the action of a former Proviso player, Herman Ziebell, who rushed on the field and struck a Bloom player in the last period of play. Ziebell will be barred from the Maywood field hereafter, it was stated.

The light game between the school second teams resulted in a 47 to 0 win for Proviso. Bloom led, 14 to 0, at half time in the big game, but Proviso, which had been holding something under cover for the coming battles with Oak Park and Marblehead, Mass., rushed its full strength on the field for the second half. BOWEN, 7; TILDEN, 0.

Bowen pushed aside next to the last rival for the City league lightweight honors by defeating Tilden, 7 to 0, in a scrappy game at Bessemer park yesterday. Hutchinson, Cavenaugh, and Hamquist starred. The break of the game came in the first quarter, when Hutchinson blocked a punt on Tilden's thirty yard line and ran the ball for a touchdown. In the third quarter Tilden made its strongest effort, but Bowen's defense fought the attack off one yard from the goal for downs. Grigsby starred for Tilden. Lineup:

NEW TRIER GIVEN SCARE, BUT WINS BY 7-0 MARGIN

New Trier's unbeaten team captured another Suburban league victory when it trimmed La Grange, but the north shore boys were given a scare. The score was 7 to 0, the count coming in the third period, after New Trier had been badly outplayed during the first half. The Osborn shift, invented and perfected by Coach Osborn of La Grange, kept New Trier badly fussed for half the battle.

This formation, from which numerous plays were executed, was done exceedingly well by the western suburb boys, but they didn't have enough strength and weight to hold on. In the third period the battering plunges of Weinecke, White, and Bartleman broke down the La Grange wall. New Trier marched from its thirty yard line clear over the rivals' goal by terrific bucks, nicely executed split plays, and delayed attacks off tackle. Weinecke proved the star performer.

Cary, Evans, and Williams did splendid offensive work for La Grange in the first half, and Kennedy at center was about half the line on defensive playing. Lineup:

Lombard Easily Beats Chicago Y. College, 28-0

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 23.—Lombard college, although heavily outweighed by Chicago Y. M. C. A. college, scored an easy victory over its rivals today, 28 to 0. Lombard's fighting spirit, coupled with speed, was responsible for the victory. The work of Turner, Murphy, Hannum, and Swanson featured the victors.

De Paul Loses, 61 to 0, to Milwaukee Engineering

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—De Paul college of Chicago was defeated by School of Engineering of Milwaukee, playing its second year of football, 61 to 0. Kibbe, the Engineers' little quarter, was the star, making four touchdowns. A seventy yard run by Rankin also featured.

Oak Park Soccer Team Beats New Trier, 4 to 2

Oak Park's soccer team took another step toward the Suburban league championship by defeating New Trier, 4 to 2, at Oak Park yesterday. Oak Park led, 1 to 0, at the half, but New Trier forwards caged a pair of goals in the opening minutes of the second half. With ten minutes to play, Oak Park scored three goals, Dudycha booting two and Rehm one.

SOCCER WIN FOR U. HIGH.

University High school's soccer team won a 1 to 0 victory over Morton of Cicero at the University High field on the Midway yesterday. Lydon scored the winning point for U. High with a long field goal in the second half.

ROCKFORD, 3; W. AURORA, 0.

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Baker drop-kicked in the first quarter, which play was sufficient to enable Rockford to defeat West Aurora in an important game in the "Big Seven" high school conference. The game was well played on a muddy field. Rockford lightweights defeated West Aurora, 88 to 0.

WHEATON, 51; DOWNERS GROVE, 0.

Wheaton High defeated Downers Grove, 51 to 0, at Wheaton. Grange was the star, scoring 33 points.

DE LA SALLE BATTLES ST. PATRICK, 0 TO 0; ST. MEL WINS, 38-0

The memorable 1905 game, in which De La Salle institute, then captained by Louis Comiskey, defeated St. Patrick's Commercial Academy, 7 to 0, at White Sox park, was recalled yesterday when 6,000 Catholic High School league rooters saw the same teams revive football after fifteen years by battling to a scoreless tie at Pyott field.

The game was half a Catholic league double bill at the west side park, St. Mel's downing De La Salle of Joliet, 38 to 0, in the other contest.

Hold When Threatened.

Once in the second and twice in the fourth quarter the institute was on St. Patrick's two yard zone, but was held for downs. St. Patrick attained the rivals three yard line in the third quarter by means of a thirty yard pass, but also was held. McGrath and Howard for St. Patrick and Gilmore and Curran for De La Salle put up fast games.

The other game left St. Mel leading in the league, with its goal still uncrossed. After getting over a spell of fumbling in the first period, St. Mel rolled the Joliet boys steadily back, and the half ended, 18 to 0. Divane at center and Dunn at quarter were conspicuous for the winners.

Decide Protested Game.

The protested Columbus day game between St. Patrick and Joliet, in which the former, by a misunderstanding, had been deprived of a chance for a goal kick after touchdown, was officially decided by giving St. Patrick's a chance to kick yesterday. The try failed, and the game consequently goes in the league record a 6 to 6 tie.

WAUKEGAN LOSES, 13 TO 6.

Waukegan, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Waukegan lost a bitterly fought game to Riverside Milwaukee, 13 to 6. McCarty was the big man for Riverside. He made the first touchdown on an eighty yard run, and the second came by Joys on a twelve yard plunge. Pistie made a twenty yard pass to Johnson for Waukegan's touchdown.

Cincinnati Reds to Train at Cisco, Tex., Next Spring

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 23.—Officials of the Cincinnati club have practically decided upon Cisco, Tex., as a location for the spring training camp. A proposition satisfactory to the owners has been received, and Business Manager Frank Bancroft will leave in a few days to inspect the grounds and close a contract, providing conditions are found satisfactory.

Stayms Open Grid Season with Kewanee Team Today

The Stayms will make their season's debut on their home lot—Pyott field—at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, when they tackle the Kewanee Walworths, a strong pro eleven. The Kewanee team is the only one boasting a touchdown over the Staleys of Decatur.

ELGIN ACADEMY, 28; ST. ALBANS, 21.

Elgin, Ill., Oct. 23.—Elgin academy defeated St. Albans academy of Sycamore, 28 to 21, in a hard fought football contest this afternoon.

VICTORY, 28 TO 3, FOR NOTRE DAME OVER VALPARAISO

Regulars Displace Subs to Score Touchdowns.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Valparaiso university was unable to cope with Notre Dame's speed and the visitors went down in defeat by a score of 28 to 3 before 10,000 today.

Coach Rockne started a complete second string lineup, but the reserves were inadequate to the task of checking the opponents. Ecklund scored a field goal before the Notre Dame regulars took the field. Stellar line plunging by Gipp, Wynne, and Barry, interspersed with forward passes, brought Notre Dame to the front with two touchdowns early in the third period. A spectacular run of thirty-five yards for a touchdown by Gip featured the final period. Schearing of Valparaiso paved the way to Notre Dame's fourth touchdown by fumbling. The ball was recovered by Hayes of Notre Dame and Mohardt circled end for the touchdown.

After Ecklund's field goal from the thirty-five yard line early in the first quarter, the visitors threatened to score when they rushed the ball to Notre Dame's twenty yard line on line plunges by Dandalet and Gilbert. At this juncture Coach Rockne injected his regulars into the fray and Valparaiso was held for downs. Gipp punted out of danger. Lineup:

Notre Dame [28].	Valparaiso [3].
R. E. Hayes, E. Anderson	Moore, Goheen L. E.
R. T. Voss, Shaw	Omer L. T.
R. G. Dooley, Smith	Sawyer L. G.

CHICAGO TIGERS VS. DECATUR STALEYS IN GREAT GAME TODAY

THE big attraction of the day in the local football world is the struggle between the Chicago Tigers and Decatur Staleys at Cub park this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Both teams are set to go, and the result will have much bearing on the national championship. Jim Thorpe has sent scouts to watch the contest in preparation for the games which his Canton Bulldogs will have with both teams.

The battle should show a clash of two great armies, with long distance kicking barrages from Des Jardien and Koehler, while the pyrotechnics of Ghee, Barrett, Sternaman, Chamberlain, and Halas promise color for the fan who likes fancy action in the game.

The Staley squad arrived yesterday noon to see the Maroon-Iowa battle at Stagg field. They had with them a new star in Hubbard Shoemaker, former Illinois freshman, who has been playing with the Kewanee Walworths. Lineup:

Chicago Tigers.	Staleys.

Looking at the suit that you ought to buy—and buying the suit you ought to have looked at

That happens to a lot of men. Don't let it happen to you this fall.

Here's what they do.

They go into a good store and ask for a good suit of clothes and try it on. So far, so good. That's the only way to get good clothes.

Then they go somewhere else and try on a suit a little lower in price. That old dollar gets in front of their eyes and after that they can't see anything but price. Pretty soon they aren't looking at anything but price marks. The suit they finally buy is one they literally haven't looked at.

No man ever looked his best in a suit of clothes that he bought because it was a few dollars cheaper than the one he wanted.

It is on that theory that we ask you to look at Society Brand Clothes.

TENDLER TO BOX WELLING AS LAST BAR TO TITLE GO

Sees Chance at Leonard if Milwaukee Winner.

BY RAY PEARSON.

Milwaukee goes into the "big time" stuff for the first time of the fall boxing season on Tuesday night, Oct. 26, when Promoter Frank Mulkern introduces Lew Tendler of Philadelphia and Joe Welling of New York for his feature event of a card at the big Auditorium. It ought to be a ripping battle, the sort that always pleases the crowd.

Mulkern hasn't been a lively fellow in the promotion business for a long time, apparently being content to let the other crowd in the Cream City handle the big boxing cards. The Cream City club therefore had a big run last winter, and Matchmaker Tom Andrews put on a lot of attractive cards. That they were attractive is indicated by the fact that only one show during the entire season failed to come up to expectations, proving a money loser instead of a money maker.

Out to Promote Big Bouts.

It seems now, however, as if Mulkern, who is the head, shoulders, and everything else of the National Athletic club, has reached the decision to go out and make some real competition for the Cream City crowd. In matching Tendler and Welling he has advanced the right foot first.

There will be considerable interest in Chicago in this windup event. A lot of fellows from the Windy City are likely to make the trip, for having seen this Philadelphia southpaw in action before, they undoubtedly will want to be ringsiders again to note what he can do with that left hook against a fellow of Welling's caliber.

Tendler, incidentally, is hankering for a match with World's Lightweight Champion Benny Leonard. We think that to hanker after Mr. Leonard's game is almost zero in hankering, even though we do admit that Tendler is a mighty classy mitt slinger.

Tough Foe in Welling.

Tendler is so good that he has removed nearly all the others in his path except Leonard. Now he is to get his chance against Welling, and judging by the way Welling has been boxing of late, it should be a tough battle, as long as it lasts. It might last ten rounds and again it might not, but the chances are it will go the limit, with a good opportunity for the critics to pick a winner.

Whether Welling has solved a way to stop the effectiveness of a southpaw battler will be seen, but the business of solving is tough business, as Richie Mitchell and his brother Pinkie and a lot of other lightweights will admit. Richie made a great effort, but failed dismally, for he received the worst beating of his career at the hands of Tendler, because it was impossible for him to get away from the Philadelphian's left hook.

Beats Dundee in Fifteen Rounds.

Having mentioned that Welling is fighting in great form these days, we'll prove it. Joe fought Johnny Dundee, the little Italian, in the first show that was held in New York under the Walker law, and in a battle which lasted the full fifteen rounds allowed won the decision by a safe margin. Beating Dundee is a feat worth mentioning, and to get a decision over the Italian makes it all the more worth while.

Welling's most recent contest was against Richie Mitchell, whom he met in Philadelphia over the eight round route. Most of the critics gave Mitchell a shade over Joe, but not a large one.

A special train to the fight over the Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul will leave at 6:15 city time.

Inquisitive Fans

CHICAGO.—[To the Editor.]—A batter drives a ball out of reach of fielder. He touches first base but does not stop. He is tagged out trying to stretch his hit into a double. Do the official scorers of the big leagues credit this as a hit?

E. F. EDMONSON.

Answer—Always.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—There are runners on first and second, none or one out. Batter grounds to the first baseman and the runners advance a base. Does the batter get credit for a sacrifice hit and how does it affect his batting average? M. W. HOFFMAN.

Answer—Unless the batter bunted the ball it was not a sacrifice. A sacrifice does not count as a time at bat.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—Runners on first and third, one out. Batter hits long fly to right fielder and runner on third scores after the catch. Runner on first thinks ball is going safe and is doubled up at first before he can get back, but not before the runner on third crosses the plate. Does the run count? Does rule 59 cover this play?

H. J. C.

Answer—The run counts. It does.

MAROON DIVIDES GOLFING HONORS WITH DRAKE DUO

Individual Title Goes to Knepper of Chicago.

BY JOE DAVIS.

Chicago and Drake universities divided the honors of the western intercollegiate golf championship which finished yesterday at Olympia Fields. Rudy Knepper of Sioux City, a student at the Midway seat of learning, won the individual title, 7 down, after a great display of golf, while Drake landed the two man team event against par, 28 down.

Chicago was 37 down, Ohio State, 68; Illinois, 70; Michigan, 73; Northwestern, 81; Wisconsin, 85.

Knepper Plays Great Golf.

Knepper, who holds the Iowa state title, gave a remarkable display of consistent golf over 72 holes of the No. 1 course, his total being 303 against a par of 296. His individual rounds were 75, 78, 73 and 77.

Robert McKee of Drake, the Trans-Mississippi champion, gave Knepper a close race for three rounds, being only three strokes behind, but he took 80 in his concluding effort and was 12 down at the end, giving Knepper a margin of 5 holes.

Dickinson Helps Drake.

Drake's position in the team event was due to the steady play of F. B. Dickinson, who finished 16 down, as George Hartman, the Chicago city champion, who was paired with Knepper, was 30 down. Cards of the two leaders yesterday:

Knepper—Out	4	4	2	4	5	4	4	5	5	37

WOODS and WATERS

by LARRY ST. JOHN

NOTES ON POND DUCKS.

LAST fall, duck hunters in the middle western states were agreeably surprised by the large flights of dusky ducks or "black mallards," as they are known in some regions. These birds came from the north in late October and remained plentiful almost to the closing day of the season. Dusky ducks have always been looked upon as eastern birds, and their occurrence in large numbers in the middle west can probably be attributed to the absence of spring shooting.

Some hunters find it difficult to distinguish between the dusky duck and the female mallard, but the former has no white in the speculum or color patch on the wings. In flight the dusky duck may be recognized by the dark underparts and snowy white wing linings, especially noticeable when they "bank" for a turn.

More important for the hunter's safety and peace of mind is the ability to distinguish the wood duck. This bird is again becoming numerous. In some regions, notably the Illinois river valley, they are just about as plentiful as they were in the early days, showing that a threatened species can be saved if the bars are put down universally and firmly. It is still unlawful to shoot wood ducks—perhaps there will never be an open season on them—and every hunter should be careful what he shoots at.

To an old duck hunter, a wood duck is easily told as far as can be seen; they have a peculiar rolling flight unlike that of any other duck. Closer at hand they bear a great resemblance to hooded mergansers when in flocks, and if the novice who is not sure in his identification will refrain from shooting the handsome but worthless merganser, he is not likely to get in trouble for shooting wood ducks.

The wood duck also has the habit of continuing his wing flapping after he has struck the water and his plaintive, squealing call is peculiar to the species.

Have you ever observed a nesting wood duck? One spring and summer we observed the whole affair from courtship until the time the youngsters took to the water. We trust we will not be accused of gossiping if we say that the wood duck drake is a gallant lover and more constant in his affections than is usual with ducks.

What puzzled us was how Mrs. Wood Duck escaped without a broken neck; invariably she plunged into the entrance of her nest without any noticeable slacking of speed. Her nest was a hollow tree about a foot in diameter, which certainly did not allow for much aerial evolutions after she entered.

Another duck that came down last fall in unusual abundance, and particularly early for the species, was the widgeon, or baldpate. This is a fine duck that seems to be increasing, although this may be due to its extending its flights farther east than formerly.

It is often confused with the gadwall, or gray duck, especially the female; but the widgeon is a much lighter bird than the gadwall, and has green in its wings, while the gadwall's wings have a gray and white speculum, or color spot. Both species decoy to mallard, teal, or pintail decoys, but at times they ignore other ducks. If they do decide to come in, they do so with less suspicion than mallards or pintails.

The American widgeon, or baldpate, differs considerably from the European widgeon, or red head widgeon, which sometimes is taken in the middle west. A specimen sometimes strays from the Old World, but we have never heard of a flock of European widgeon in the middle western states.

When taken, the stray specimen is often looked upon as a great rarity, and frequently is dubbed "a cross between a baldpate and a redhead," or something equally outlandish. It has the green speculum of the baldpate and a reddish, brown head.

Speaking of crosses, have you seen the rather common mallard-pintail hybrids. These curious birds usually have the spiketail of the pintail and more or less of the mallard coloration. They are said to be the result of birds being crippled in the spring. Unable to follow their friends to the northern breeding grounds, they make the best of a bad situation, and mate with a bird of another species, also a cripple. Other curious waterfowl we have seen are an albino teal, an albino mudhen and an albino pintail. What curiosities in this line have you seen?

NELSON DEFEATS LONG, 125 TO 55, IN CUE TOURNEY

Orvill Nelson of Rochester, N. Y., won the nineteenth game in the national pocket billiard championship, defeating Matt Long of Los Angeles, 125 to 55 in 25 innings at the Strauss Auditorium yesterday afternoon. The New Yorker got away to a fast start, runs of 23 and 11 in succession giving him a lead of 42 to 13 at the end of the fourth inning.

Two periods of continued safety play prevented Nelson from getting one of the shortest games in the tournament.

Chicago's chances of first place were shaken when William D. Ricketts of Flint, Mich., outplayed Clarence Safford in the second afternoon game, 125 to 84, in thirty innings, getting high run of 27.

Arthur Woods of Minneapolis went into a tie for first place by taking the first night game from Matthew Long, 125 to 51, in twenty-three innings, making high run of 23. Scores:

Bert Rhines of Akron gave a great display in defeating Charles Weston in the final game of the night. Weston was leading, 31 to 17, when Rhines ran 36, missing a long shot. Weston hardly had a shot after that, and the Akron veteran won, 125 to 32, in twenty-six innings.

On Local Golf Links

MEMBERS of the Flossmoor Country club had their last opportunity of carrying off any more prizes in 1920 yesterday, when the "Last Chance" event was staged. Play was at eighteen holes in classes. A. C. Levis with 83—6—77 finished ahead in class A, while W. W. Low, 90—18—72, won in class C, and J. C. Corbet, 106—26—80 triumphed in D class. R. H. Roberts, 91—14—77 and Marquis Eaton, 94—17—77 tied in class B. The tournament was limited to members who had not won a prize during the season.

CALUMET.

By displaying championship golf, with his card of 79, J. M. Britz won the class A final of the Thomas cup. He triumphed over R. O'Hara by 8 and 7. In B flight F. Koller eliminated J. B. Morris, 5 and 4, while J. H. McElroy won by default from F. J. King in class C. The best ball foursome, match versus par, resulted in a tie between R. O'Hara-J. M. Britz, 1 up; H. Hurry-F. Koller, 1 up; J. D. Wild-D. C. Wing, 1 up. The blind bogey went to P. W. Mobberly, 93—12—81.

EDGEWATER.

As a result of the semi-final round G. M. McConnell and J. P. Harding will meet in the deciding contest of the club championship. McConnell defeated H. A. Lundahl by 3 and 2, while Harding had a less strenuous time with A. J. Kasper Jr., winning 6 and 5.

NORTH SHORE.

Glen Duncan won the handicap with 92—27—65 and Mrs. F. Rogers and H. E. Munn took the mixed foursome with 100—25—75.

GLEN OAK.

Low gross honors went to B. B. Williams with 84, Dr. H. Nicoll having 85. William McGuire, 84—12—72; V. M. Normann, 101—28—73, and R. J. McGill, 104—30—74, topped the net column.

EVANSTON.

W. Ellyson won the low gross with 85, the leading net scorers being B. C. Taylor, 94—23—71; A. H. McConnell, 88—16—72; W. Alschlager, 86—13—73. Alschlager also won the Fellowship cup.

Winners in the class handicap were: Class A, W. Alschlager, 86—13—73; class B, R. C. Calkins, 90—20—70; class C, C. C. Taylor, 94—23—71; class D, R. Ives, 102—28—74.

OAK PARK.

A best ball event was staged, C. L. Peniston and F. M. Peebles winning in class A with 77, G. and F. Gunderson in class B with 77 and H. F. Albright and J. W. Bancher in class C with 94.

CHAMPION FRANK DOUGLAS had low net in the handicap at Bob o' Link, C. S. Williams being second. In the net column J. [illegible] Wilson and E. W. Macavoy were the leaders. Winners in the ball sweepstakes were: Class A, F. Douglas, C. S. Williams; class D, J. T. Wilcox, C. [illegible] Rogers, T. B. Ahara, C. L. Harder; class C, E. W. Macavoy, H. Pomeroy, H. R. Snow, A. S. Klein, G. L. Frid[illegible], A. L. Wilcoxon.

OLYMPIA FIELDS.

In the play for the McVittie gold cup by members of the One Hundred club Frank Robinson, C. Swanson, Dad Esson, and F. [illegible] Poyner lead with an average of 80.

HINSDALE.

The advertising representatives of the Quality Group magazines held their second annual tournament, three eastern members of the association taking part. Don [illegible] Parker of the Garden City club of New York had low gross of 79; Howard P. [illegible] Dunwoodie had low net of 74. Other prize winners were R. W. Richardson, J. H. Lyon, N. F. Peabody of Boston, R. T. Stanton, and H. L. Townsend.

MATCH AT POLO, OTHER FEATURES ON CARD TODAY

A polo contest and eleven other features are billed for this afternoon by the North Shore Polo club at its field, Peterson and Lincoln avenues, the event to be the final of the season. The Orioles and the North Shores will battle at polo. Forty-six horses are entered for the other features, which include a five furlong hurdle race, high jump, and Roman standing race. The polo teams will line up as follows:

Orioles.	Position.	North Shore.
Reno	No. 1	Byfield [capt.]
Sarger	No. 2	[illegible]
Schultz	No. 3	[illegible]
Bering [capt.]	Back	[illegible]

Judges—Dr. George P. Proest, Dr. Albert I. Worms, Fred Adler.

BUTLER BEATS EARLHAM, 14 TO 1.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 23.—Pat Page's Butler college eleven won its third straight victory this afternoon by defeating Earlham college in a hard fought battle, 14 to 1. The winning touchdown was put over ten minutes before the final whistle.

Get the Most for Your Money

PRICE appeal has always had its following. But it is truer today than ever that nothing can substitute for quality.

The winning of the Pike's Peak Hill-Climb, a phenomenal feat of power, endurance, and efficiency, demonstrated what every owner of a Lexington Thorobred already knows.

The fact that the lines of the Thorobred are being copied is the highest form of compliment.

An almost unbelievable increase in economy, power, and all-around performance is produced by the Lexi-gasifier and the Moore Multiple Exhaust System, exclusive with Lexington.

Other features that place the Thorobred in the forefront of fine cars are the Unified Non-rattle Frame, with 100 less parts; the 2-Way Head Lamps, that give full light without glare; the Equalizing Cable-(foot)-brake; and the One-finger Emergency Brake.

Its rare beauty, its maximum of comfort, and the effortless way it seems to skim over the roads are attributes of the Thorobred that beggar description!

It is built for those who want lasting quality and who have no patience with mediocrity.

In fact, it is a masterpiece of the ten great factories, affiliated with Lexington, that make possible a co-ordination of resources and facilities: the only way, in fact, that such a remarkable car can be built.

We invite you to let us show you how to get the most for your money. Why not today?

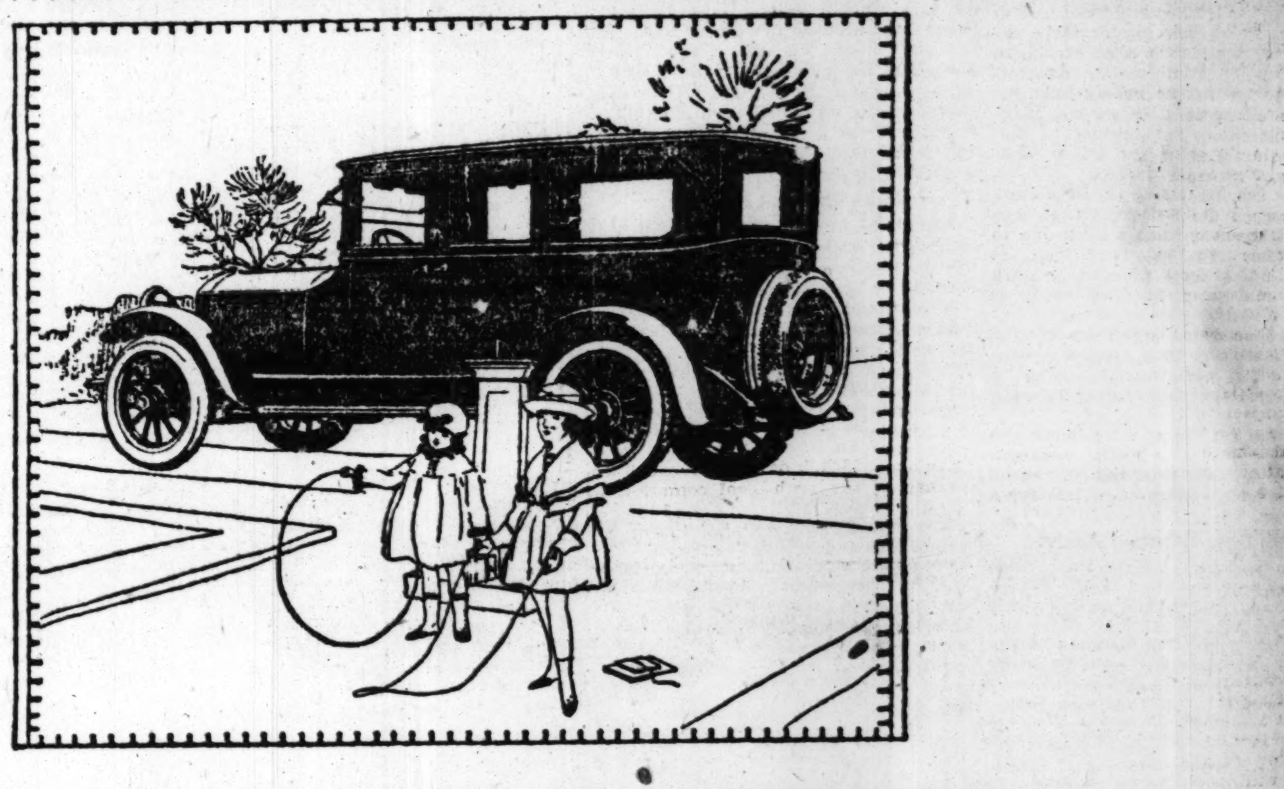
PAIGE

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA



SINCE our recent introduction of the new Paige line of six-cylinder cars, a new chapter has been written in Paige history.

This chapter records nothing less than a totally new experience in the merchandising of enclosed cars.

Paige enclosed models have always enjoyed a generous popularity because of their well-marked characteristics—but the new models have swept away all past records and have already demonstrated that they possess an appeal more potent than even we had anticipated.

Nothing illustrates the truth of the statement better than the reception given the new Paige seven-passenger Sedan, built on the "6-66" chassis.

The reasons why this car proves irresistible to the motorist are obvious as soon as an inspection is made. In no other car, we believe, can be found such a happy combination of comfort and beauty with practical year-round utility.

When you inspect the seven-passenger Sedan or the handsome five-passenger Brougham, you realize that these enclosed cars both Serve and Satisfy.

These cars satisfy because of their exquisite design and very complete appointments. Service to the maximum is derived from a chassis that represents the best the most experienced automotive engineers can offer and a power plant capable of developing speed to seventy-five miles an hour.

In no less a degree the models built on the "6-42" chassis, including the five-passenger touring car, have been stirring the enthusiasm of appreciative motorists.

These cars have a supreme advantage that has placed them apart from all others of their class—a power plant designed by Paige engineers and built by Paige men in Paige shops so efficient, so flexible, so responsive that it is capable of progressing from a speed of five miles to twenty-five miles an hour in nine seconds flat.

At present prices these new Paige models offer such exceptional values—regardless of any comparison you may care to make—that we urge an immediate examination, so that when a decision is made it springs from a full knowledge of the best the market affords.

CLYNE GATHERS EVIDENCE ON HIGH PRICES AT MINES

Circulars Bare Demands That Boost Coal Cost.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

District Attorney Clyne is in a position to ask several coal men some embarrassing questions.

He is known to have collected certain documentary evidence showing the extremely high prices at which they have attempted to sell coal. Some of these figures are above the high "spot" prices quoted by coal trade journals.

The high quotation on Illinois coal for the last six weeks has been $8.50 a ton at the mines, which delivered to the consumer in Chicago means in excess of $13 a ton.

Red Lettered "Hot Stuff."

One of the pieces of evidence in Mr. Clyne's hands is "circular A" of the Reeves Coal and Dock company on which is printed in striking red letters "Hot Stuff." This is addressed "to the trade," dated Oct. 1, and apparently issued from the branch office of the company at 702 Plymouth building.

It says that this company "usually have cars in transit for reconsignment" and makes the promise: "We will try to give you good service."

Among offerings subject to prior sale is the following:

"Five cars, Springfield, Illinois district, six inch lump and five cars 6x3 egg; price $8.75, f. o. b. mines."

Quotations in coal trade papers for the central Illinois district were not above $8.50 at that time and since have decreased to $8.

This Is "Confidential."

"Confidential quotations" is the heading on two other circulars signed by the American Coal and Supply company. This firm advised in these circulars the retailers to "order now and avoid disappointments."

"We operate our own mines and in addition control the entire production of several others, assuring prompt and regular shipments," reads the circular. Through railroad rates to your city. Subject to immediate acceptance. This circular happened to have been sent to Michigan and advised the recipient: "Don't overlook the opportunity."

Here Are "Opportunities."

Here are some of the "opportunities" listed:

"Western Kentucky, mine run, $7; Illinois, Williamson county, mine run, $7.25. Illinois, Madison county, six inch lump, $8.25; 6r1½ inch egg, $8.25; one and one-half inch screenings, $6.25.

"Indiana, fifth vein, one and one-fourth inch lump, $7.50; one and one-fourth inch screenings, $6.25: four inch lump, $8.25."

Mr. Clyne has other evidence that the Aladdin Coal company of Pinckneyville, Ill., has offered coal recently in Iowa for $8.50 a ton. The coal of this company is represented to come from Perry county at mines near Cutler and Tamaroa. Another document asserts that this coal has also been offered at a particular town in Wisconsin.

The man to whom this offer was made said that "this is a grade of coal of which I have bought many carloads for $1.60 a ton."

Price Fixed in Indiana.

The Fidelity Coal company with offices in the Plymouth building issued one circular to the trade: "Seventh vein, Sullivan county, Indiana. mine run at $7 per net ton, mines." The state of Indiana has fixed the mine run price to the mines to $3 at $3.85, except for Brazil block, which was made $5.60.

The coal men have asserted that the prices fixed are too low. One court decision, however, has confirmed the power of the state to fix prices under the conditions presented, but the reasonableness of the prices has not yet been passed upon. The Fidelity Coal company says in its circular that the coal upon which price is quoted above "is the highest grade of Indiana coal mined and is unexcelled for steam and gas producer purposes."

This same company in an earlier circular offered Illinois six inch lump from St. Clair county standard district at $8.25, 6x2 egg at the same price and two inch lump at $8. Fulton county mine run was quoted at $7 and one and one-fourth inch screenings from same district at $6.50.

In still another circular this company offered Linton, Indiana fifth vein, bar screened three inch lump at $8, and shaker screened 3x1¼ nut at $8. At that time the company asserted: "We are in position to make immediate shipments."

It is reasonably certain that District Attorney Clyne has still other documentary evidence showing what coal men have attempted to do and have done in collecting the extreme high "spot" prices for coal. These are the prices which are the foundation for retail prices in Chicago, which a local federal grand jury characterized as "outrageous."

COAL NEEDED; DIG IT; SNAP INTO IT, INDIANA ORDERS

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 23.—The Indiana special coal and food commission today ordered every coal mine operator in the state to produce a given amount of coal each week for sale within Indiana and sell it at prices specified.

Under the order, the average monthly consumption in Indiana of 1,600,000 tons of coal was divided among 25 mine operators, according to their production capacity. The division ranges from fifty net tons to 3,500 net tons a week.

The prices are the same as those previously fixed by the commission, and range from $3.28 to $5.85 a ton at the mouth of the mine.

Jean Lawrence Freed on Bonds in Murder Case

When Miss Jean Lawrence, 28 years old, 4121 Grand boulevard, was arraigned in the South Clark street court yesterday before Judge John Richardson on a charge of murder, her bond was fixed at $5,000. Miss Lawrence gave herself up to the police after a warrant for her arrest was taken out by Israel Slavin, whose brother was shot to death in her apartment in Grand boulevard by Max Cohen, a former aviator.

WILMETTE MAN'S TRIP TO BELGIUM HALTED BY WIFE

A few hours before the steamer Kroonland was to sail for Belgium from New York yesterday detectives boarded the vessel and arrested Leopold Delhaye, Wilmette, Ill., contractor, as a fugitive from justice, charged with the abandonment of his wife and children. While protesting that he was about to make a business trip with his wife's knowledge, Delhaye is reported to have declared himself willing to waive extradition and return to Chicago.

According to the wife, Delhaye aroused her suspicions when he did not return from France after he had been discharged from Y. M. C. A. service. When she threatened a divorce, she said, Delhaye returned. Coincidentally, a French woman came to Wilmette from France, Mrs. Delhaye said.

Mrs. Delhaye took her husband to task, she told the state's attorney, and subsequently the French woman and Delhaye disappeared. It was then learned, she said, that the Delhaye home had been mortgaged by the husband for $1,600 prior to his disappearance. When arrested Delhaye had no woman companion.

11 YEAR OLD BOY CRUSHED UNDER AUTO TRUCK; DIES

Charles Catancano, 11 years old, 2255 Belmont avenue, was killed instantly yesterday when he was struck by a truck driven by Peter Hansen, 1528 North Fairfield avenue, at North Western and Belmont avenues.

Hansen, who is a driver for the Behrens Construction company at 1732 North Western avenue, told the North Robey street police that the boy darted in front of his truck before he could apply the brakes. He is being held pending the inquest.

John Stapleton, 4 years old, 1122 West Sixty-seventh street, died yesterday in St. Bernard's hospital of injuries suffered Friday when he was struck by an automobile owned by O. M. Carry, 6600 Woodlawn avenue, secretary of the Rich Tool company, 80 East Jackson boulevard, and driven by his chauffeur, Arthur Johnson, colored, 6315 Woodlawn avenue.

RED CROSS USED $51,000,000 IN EUROPE IN YEAR

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The annual report of the American Red Cross shows how it expended $51,000,000 during the last fiscal year in finishing up such relief activities in Europe as could consistently be discontinued and in carrying on those activities which still are demanded.

From the signing of the armistice to Jan. 1 last, there was a general consolidation of Red Cross operating departments, after which all operations were consolidated under the direct supervision of the commissioner to Europe. By June 30, operations had been confiened to Poland, Serbia, Montenegro, Albania, West Russia, and the Baltic states, Vienna and Budapest, Constantinople, and South Russia.

In closing its relief work in France and Belgium, the most extensive of all its overseas activities, the American Red Crss furnished supplies to 3,865 villages and directly benefited 3,030,000 persons by gifts, or sales at nominal prices. Hundreds of coöperative stores established by the Red Cross are still being operated by the French and Belgian authorities.

ENGLISH PREACHER AND LABOR LEADER TALKS HERE TONIGHT

"The International Future" will be the subject of an address before the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall this evening by T. Rhonnda Williams, who has been for twenty-five years a noted preacher and labor leader in Great Britain. He was recently described by Dr. Francis G. Peabody, American sociologist, as one of the Englishmen best fitted to talk on international affairs.

STEEL WORKERS ARE REGAINING LOST EFFICIENCY

Post-War Slump in Energy Off.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Recovery from the post-war slump in man power energy seems to have been far more rapid in the steel and iron industry than in most other lines. Competent authorities here estimate that in the skilled end of the metal industry production per man has been almost restored to a pre-war basis.

Best estimates are that iron and steel production in the United States is now about 80 per cent of "normal" output, which is considered quite a remarkable showing in view of the three great strikes in the last year—steel, coal miners, and railroad—which put all industry on crutches for a long time.

Absorb Other Fields' Idle.

In the Pittsburgh district, which has some 375,000 workers in the metal lines, Allegheny alone having 150,000, little unemployment is reported. Conditions are vastly different from those in the textile and garment making centers, for instance, where there have been large "layoffs" and many are out of work.

Pittsburgh has been able to absorb a large quantity of labor released from other sections. The slowdown in Michigan's automobile cities brought many workers here. When 20,000 to 30,000 rubber workers were let out in Akron a large proportion went into the metal plants.

The sudden tide of immigration, too, has aided in reducing the common labor shortage, although the net gain in unskilled workers by migration is not nearly so great as many fancied from the Ellis island figures.

Paradox in Agencies.

At the employment agencies the lines of job seekers are much smaller than a few months ago. Paradoxically enough, when labor was scarcest and work most abundant, the employment agencies in general, experts say, did their most flourishing business—the prevailing unrest led workers to change jobs oftenest. Just now, with work slowing up in many other lines, hundreds of roving workers now appear to be settling down in jobs for the winter.

Wages for skilled workers have been undisturbed. One estimate today was that for the industry as a whole wages for all classes of workers on an average are now 135 per cent greater than in 1914. In some plants, however, common labor has had some reduction, laborers have been discharged and then taken back at lower pay.

Figures out today show that at Youngstown, O., the wage distribution for September, mostly by iron and steel plants, was the largest in its history with the exception of that of January, 1919. It was $8,522,168 for the month. In the first nine months of the year the pay roll ran $69,171,868, which is at an annual rate of $95,000,000, as compared with $81,891,000 for 1919, and $84,393,000 in 1918. It indicates the growing regularity of operation.

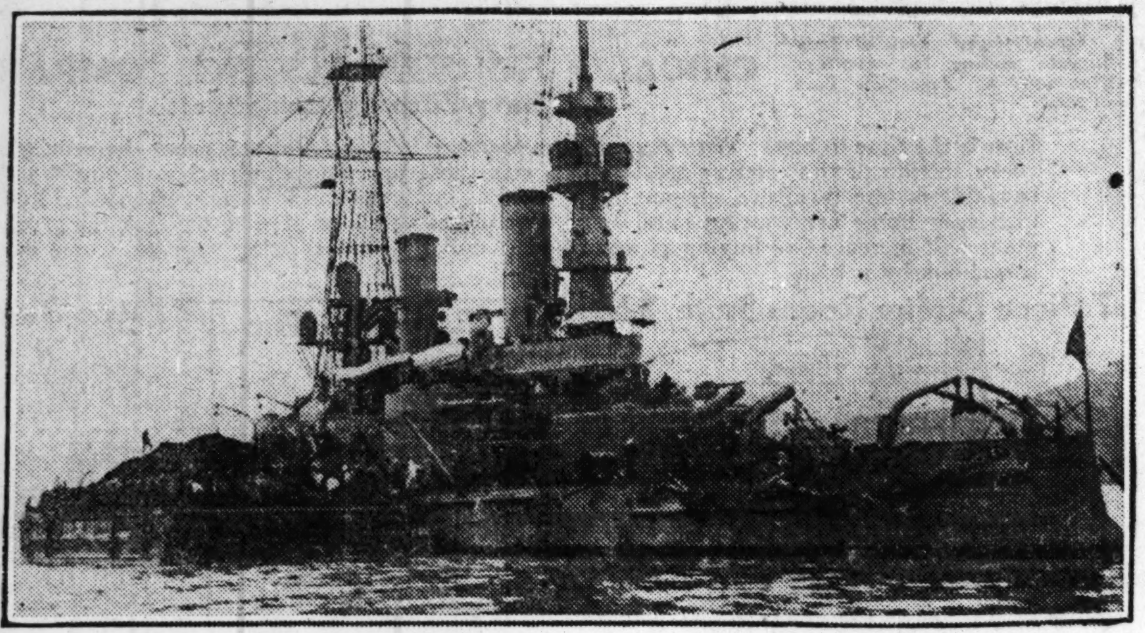
OREGON TO GET FAMOUS NAMESAKE



[Photo Copyright: Underwood & Underwood.]

In Last Port

Portland, Ore., Oct. 23.—According to dispatches from Washington Portland will become the home port of the old battleship Oregon, veteran of the Spanish-American war, if recommendations made by the chief of the bureau of navigation of the navy department are carried out.

The recommendation was made following conferences of navy department bureau heads with George White, adjutant general of Oregon, Rear Admiral Count, chief of the operations division of the navy department, who was quoted in the dispatches are saying he favored the plan.

The Oregon is out of commission and is stationed at the Puget Sound navy yard at Bremerton, Wash. If brought to Portland it will be used as a training ship.

SERVICE ABROAD DUE FOR REFORM UNDER HARDING

Diplomacy to Be Made More Efficient.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Republican leaders predict that one of the long needed reforms certain to be consummated following the confidently expected election of Senator Harding to the presidency of the United States and of a Republican congress to support him will be a complete reorganization of the state department and the American diplomatic and consular service.

Reformation of the foreign service they recognize as one of the greatest problems confronting the government and for some time the subject has been a matter of study by party leaders with a view to formulation of tentative plans for putting the service on an efficient and meritorious basis. Senator Harding, it is declared, is fully aware of the need of reform in the diplomatic service. Republicans who have the matter in mind referred today to the following from one of the Republican candidate's recent speeches: "Our diplomacy as expressed in our foreign policies has a vital effect upon our foreign trade. The consular service built by Republican genius is excellent, but the lack of an organization to collect and digest information about current political affairs in other countries has become notorious."

Foreign Posts as Party Spoils.

"It is equally notorious," says the Republican Publicity association, "that what has amounted to the sale of the higher diplomatic posts in very recent times was responsible in no small degree for our entering the great war uninformed and unprepared. Men whose claim to a share in party spoils seemed to be in direct ratio to their contributions to the party campaign chest were appointed with little or no consideration of their fitness for diplomatic office.

"In a reformation plan under consideration, government scholarships in approved educational institutions, reclassification and regrading, the application of the rule of merit, respectable local allowances to foreign officers, when justified, and an equitable provision for retirement pay are salient features. The advisability of the United States owning its foreign service residences is also an important point in the scheme."

Selection of men who have made special study for such work is favored through a system of government scholarships.

"A feature of the proposed plan," it is added by the association, "which would give greatest assurance of permanent officers—who would make the foreign service a life career—is that providing for generous retirement pay at the end of thirty years' service, and retirement by request, or on reaching the age of 70, when retirement comes automatically. The three-fourths retirement pay of officers of the army and navy should be the basis of retirement for 'foreign service officers.' The latter are as justly entitled to retirement pay, after many years of service abroad, as are military officers. Men long in the foreign service are precluded from establishing themselves in private business abroad or at home."

$1,000,000 FOR "DRESSINGS."

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—Sale of surplus of bandages and absorpent cotton to the Thomson & Kelly company of Boston for more than $1,000,000 was announced today by the war department.

OBREGON HOME, IMPRESSED BY U. S. RECEPTION

Mexico City, Oct. 23.—Gen. Alvaro Obregon, president-elect of Mexico, returned from Dallas, Tex., yesterday afternoon and told interviewers he was impressed by the cordiality of the reception given him there. He declared he looked upon it as indicating a changed opinion toward Mexico on the part of Americans. Asked why President Wilson had not recognized the new Mexican government, Gen. Obregon replied:

"President Wilson wants to know, first, what the policy of the new government will be. He always has acted with extreme caution in international affairs of this kind, and it is probable he has never intended to recognize the new government until absolutely convinced of its good intentions.

The government is strong, popular, and ready to comply with its international obligations, and I believe Mr. Wilson will have no objection to sanctioning recognition. I also believe the people of the United States in close touch with us in commerce desire such recognition."

Immediately after his return Gen. Obregon called upon Provisional President de la Huerta and the two conferred for several hours.

Suspect in Slaying of Dartmouth Student Freed

Philadelphia, Oct. 23.—The man arrested in Maryland early today on suspicion of being William P. Brines, wanted here in connection with the death of Elmer C. Drewes, is not the university student accused of killing the Dartmouth senior. When the man, who said his name is Harry Lamont of New York, reached here this afternoon detectives said he was not the man.

LANSING'S BOOK MAY TELL PEACE TREATY SECRETS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Specail.]—Officialdom in Washington is interested in reports that former Secretary of State Robert Lansing may reveal an "inside story" of the events of the peace conference in a book of his personal experiences. The book, it is understood, will be based on a diary kept by him at Paris.

Mr. Lansing, who is now practicing law in Washington, admits he intends to publish a book, but says it is not yet ready for publication and that he is not working on it just at the present time. He is reluctant to discuss its exact nature or whether it will disclose any secrets of the peace table.

There has been as yet no book written by one of the members of the American peace commission, and Mr. Lansing's story is looked forward to with more than ordinary interest. The fact that Mr. Lansing took issue with the president in his testimony before the senate committee on foreign relations and his feeling toward the peace treaty as indicated in the testimony of William Bullitt makes it possible the former secretary of state's book may cause a sensation.

WILSON TO MAKE TALK ON LEAGUE AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—President Wilson's next campaign statement on the league of nations is to be delivered next Wednesday to a delegation of pro-league Republicans and independents headed by Hamilton Holt, the White House announced today.

Mr. Holt recently came out for Gov. Cox on the league issue and urged other Republicans to do likewise.

In his remarks to the delegation, the president is expected to sum up all the arguments for the league; to answer Republican attacks on it, particularly those made by Elihu Root, former President Taft and A. Lawrence Lowell, and to appeal to Republicans who favor a league to vote for Cox and Democratic senatorial candidates.

It was indicated today this probably will be the president's final statement. It will be the first time since his illness that he has delivered anything approaching a speech on political questions.

It was also announced at the White House today that John W. Davis, American ambassador to Great Britain, will speak on the league in New York on Wednesday.

5% PAID ON SAVINGS

25% Interest Gained

It's good business to keep your savings where they will earn the most, with safety assured.

$1,000.00 deposited in this bank at 5%, compounded quarterly, earns $50.93 per year—in another bank at 4% only $40.60—in a 3% bank, but $30.30

These figures show distinctly the advantage of depositing in a 5% bank, as you would gain $10.33 a year over the 4% rate or $20.63 over the 3%.

Is it good business, is it even conservative, for you to bank elsewhere when you can get 5% as a customer of the largest, strongest bank in North Central Indiana?

For a Greater Chicago
Fort Dearborn Magazine
Published by the Fort Dearborn Banks
November

IN this issue, the first of a series of thrift articles will appear on how to buy furniture economically and yet have it correct. "Fitting the Furniture to the Income" is the title. It is written by Mabel McIlvaine of the Fort Dearborn staff who is an expert on art in home decoration. The article is illustrated by photographs made in Chicago especially for the Fort Dearborn Magazine.

The Harvest at the Fort
The cover on the November issue depicts an Indian Summer scene at Old Fort Dearborn with corn ready to husk, and pumpkins on the vine.

The Sand Dunes—A Playground and Scientific Asset to Chicago
(Illustrated). Experiences of a representative of the Fort Dearborn Magazine in exploring this wonderful region, with some account of its international importance as a natural laboratory.

Lowering the Cost of Eating
Suggested menus for breakfast, lunch, and dinner which are economical without sacrificing food values. By Clara Ingram Judson.

Organized Investors Finance Rails.

There is no limit to the possibilities of good that may be reached by an organization of investors formed for mutual advantage. The primary purpose, of course, is to resist hostile action by legislative bodies and rate making boards.

The rescue of the railroads from their precarious situation of a year ago was due in large part to the efforts of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities. Now having put the roads in a position where reasonable profits are at least a probability, this association is arranging to finance extensive purchases of equipment. Members of the association have formed the National Railway Service Corporation, which is preparing to issue $60,000,000 of equipment trust certificates now, and probably will issue many more later if there is occasion for them.

The carriers were having difficulty with this financing because the interstate commission was inclined to fix the limit of interest that they could pay at a point a little below what investors in general would accept. As a result there was danger of a deadlock that would last till the bond market improved enough to meet the ideas of the commission.

The roads need equipment urgently. It is obvious that neither service nor earnings can be satisfactory without it. The organization of security holders is stepping into the gap, and making possible immediate action. If there was a similar organization of investors in utility securities it could fill a similar need for that class of hard-pressed corporations.

Denver and Rio Grande.

R. M. N.—The Denver and Rio Grande first 4s and first consolidated 4½s are both secured by first lien on 1,627 miles of road at the rate of $24,590 a mile. The road did not fully earn its fixed charges under government operation, but it covered interest on these bonds with a wide margin. As the property is about to be sold at foreclosure, these bonds are not in all respects a desirable investment, but there would seem to be no doubt of their going through the reorganization undisturbed.

Pierce Oil.

W. J. F.—The Pierce Oil corporation earned its interest charges five or six times over last year and the surplus equaled 18 1-3 per cent on $15,000,000 of preferred stock. This year earnings are larger. In the eight months ended Aug. 31 they were at the rate of 30 per cent a year on the preferred. There is $23,168,650 of common stock. The only dividends thus far paid on it are two of 2½ per cent each in stock, paid this year.

Brief Answers.

C. H.—The Hudson and Manhattan refunding bonds, outstanding to the amount of $37,521,234, are subject to $5,944,000 of underlying liens. Interest charges are earned with only a moderate margin of safety. Last year the margin was about 30 per cent.

E. B., Marshfield, Wis.—The Hicks Tractor company has an authorized capitalization of $1,000,000. It is now having parts manufactured by contracts and assembling them. It claims to have orders for 765 tractors. No detailed financial statement furnished.

DRY GOODS MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—Dry goods markets hesitated today, when prices dropped and raw material values were unsettled. Yarns were lower, cotton cloths slightly steadier, linens weak, burlaps dull and wool goods unsettled.

DIVIDENDS DECLARED

ORPHEUM CIRCUIT.

For the thirty-eight weeks from Jan. 1 to Sept. 25, total revenue was $10,534,000. The net profit before dividends, income and excess profit taxes was $2,378,000. Deducting nine months' preferred dividends of $412,900, the balance for the 549,600 shares of common stock was $3.56 a share.

AMERICAN WINDOW GLASS.

Dividends	1,709,573	1,099,019
Surplus	2,828,384	1,911,961

MANHATTAN ELECTRIC SUPPLY CO.

Gross sales for the first nine months of 1920, $5,752,136, compared with $4,976,213 for the corresponding period of 1919. This is an increase of over 15 per cent.

EMPIRE TUBE AND STEEL.

The Empire Tube and Steel corporation reports for the period from Aug. 1 to Sept. 30 last sales of $95,440; net sales of $94,346; operating profit of $25,879, and total net profit of $26,694.

CHILE COPPER.

Chile Copper and Chile Exploration company reports for quarter ended June 30, net profit on copper delivered $1,597,360, against $2,813,548 in preceding quarter and surplus of $424,714, against $1,233,036 in the first quarter this year.

AMERICAN SUMATRA TOBACCO.

The American Sumatra Tobacco company and subsidiary companies report for the year ended July 31 last:

Roads Plan Campaign to Reduce Freight Damage

The American Railway association has organized a department to carry out a campaign among all railroads for the reduction of freight losses and damages which last year cost American railroads $104,000,000. A meeting to be attended by representatives of all member roads of the association will be held in Chicago on Nov. 15 and 16, at which general problems will be discussed and means of coöperation outlined.

GRAIN PRICES DRIFT LOWER AS WEEK ENDS

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Grain markets made a fair showing of strength early when the best prices were made, while the close was at intermediate figures for wheat, with corn at almost the inside and oats at the top. Outside interests and striking and influential news were not in evidence. The markets ran into selling of an influential character, while offerings disappeared on breaks. Most of the business was local.

At the close wheat was 2¼c lower for futures, with cash about unchanged. Corn lost ⅝@⅞c, oats were unchanged to ⅛c lower, rye was off 1½@1⅝c, lard was unchanged to 35c lower, and ribs were 15c lower.

It was a bear week, with net losses of 13@14¾c on wheat, 4⅝@9½c on corn, 2¾@3¼c on oats, 4¾@6¾c on rye, and 7c on barley, while pork showed losses of $2.25@2.50, lard was off 40@72½c, short ribs were 24c@$1.25 lower for the week, the distant futures leading the break in provisions, while in grains they were the strongest.

Wheat Weakens at Close.

Buying power in wheat exhausted the surplus early around $2.04@2.04½. There was good selling by local traders and a few of the commission houses led by Stein-Alstrin. Although the market had support at times, it gave way toward the last and prices declined 5½c from the early high point, with the close about 1c above the inside.

There was little in the news to attract attention. Repors from the English srike were conflicting, although it was generally assumed it is likely to be settled soon. There was a confirmation of the large export business reported Friday, but no new buying by the seaboard of consequence. Cash markets generally were unchanged. Australia shipped 1,272,000 bu for the week, the largest since last July. India shipped 172,000 bu, mostly to the United Kingdom. Receipts for the week were under the previous week's and last year.

Cash Houses Sell Corn.

Corn was sold freely by local and cash interests. A few pit traders tried to bull the market early and succeeded in advancing prices ¼@⅜c over the previous day's close, but they tired toward the last, owing to the absence of outside help, and unloaded around the lowest price of the day, which was 1⅜c under the top. The best buying was by Wagner, Clement-Curtis, and Schwarz. Cash prices were unchanged to 1c higher, with shipping sales 51,000 bu and charters for 400,000 bu.

Oats held good support and closed at the outside prices after showing weakness early. The buying was of a good class, while the selling was lighter. Shorts evened up generally. Shipping business was light, 70,000 bu, and prices were ¼@¾c higher with No. 2 white in the sample market ¼@½c over December. Receipts for the week were larger at primary points and exceeded last year's.

Seaboard Buys Rye.

Rye was bought by seaboard houses and 50,000 bu were given up on exchange for cash sales. Prices averaged lower, with no new features. Barley sold slowly to maltsters and industries, with prices unchanged.

The provision trade consisted largely of scattered liquidation by outside longs who sold January, while the packers and holders had more October to sell. Armour bought November, while Harris-Winthrop sold October lard. Hog prices were firmer and shipments of lard and meats for the week were smaller. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

The general disposition on the part of grain traders is to sell on bulges, as there is little outside trade. The markets, however, become oversold frequently and sharp upturns like those on Friday are to be expected.

Trade reports are not at all favorable for bull markets. There are some in the export trade who believe the buying is nearly at an end, and they are talking lower prices of wheat, while in corn and oats there is less disposition to press the selling side. Winnipeg reports a slackening in the cash demand and says most of the trading was in spreads between that market and Minneapolis, adding that Americans are the best buyers of Canadian wheat. Winnipeg also claimed there was no export demand from abroad.

Wheat receipts at Winnipeg from Oct. 12 to 16 were 6,300 cars containing 7,500,000 bu. Stocks there are said to be accumulating. Fort William stocks increased 2,000,000 bu for the week, and oats show a big increase.

Montreal reported the clearance of a steamer there for Iceland loaded with flour, rolled oats, and provisions. The last week's sailings for England were disappointing, several of the largest cargo steamers leaving port without any grain.

Board of trade memberships sold at $8,400 net to the buyer.

Weather forecast for the week was generally fair with local rains in the great lakes and Ohio Valley and cool and generally fair the first half and unsettled and warmer the last half in the upper Mississippi river and lower Missouri valleys.

Primary receipts of wheat since July 1 aggregate 147,390,000 bu, compared with 324,183,000 bu last year. Corn since November 1 aggregated 219,187,000 bu, against 179,470,000 bu last year. Oats since Aug. 1 show 71,861,000 bu, against 63,618,000 bu last year.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

No fresh business in export grains was reported yesterday by the seaboard, which claimed an absence of demand. There were giveups of 50,000 bu of rye here for the seaboard. Domestic sales of wheat were 26,000 bu to mills, corn 51,000 bu, and oats 70,000 bu. Charters were for 400,000 bu corn to eastern lake ports at 5½c.

Millers were fair buyers of wheat at Chicago and premiums averaged 1c higher, while prices generally were 2 to 4c higher early, although the close was easy. Receipts were 18 cars. Minneapolis was unchanged.

Corn at Chicago was unchanged to 1c higher, with receipts 203 cars. Industries are only running part of the time, and restricted purchases. Oat prices were ¼ to ⅜c higher, with receipts 96 cars. Prices in leading markets follow:

After a continuous decline in hog values throughout the week, the market closed $2.20@2.60 below the previous Saturday and at the low point of last year, which was in December. The best closed at $13.40, with the day's average $12.70, respectively 5c higher and 10c lower than the corresponding Saturday a year ago.

The largest receipts in ten weeks and the smallest shipments, barring the strike period last April, were the principal weakening factors in the week's hog trade, but this is the season of the year when prices seek a lower level. Last week's estimated average weight of hogs was the same as previous week at 239 lbs, against 235 lbs a year ago.

Closing trade in cattle, sheep, and lambs, after higher prices the fore part of the week, was unevenly lower than the high point, yet there were net advances of 25@50c, compared with the close of the previous week.

Traders are expecting increased receipts of hogs and cattle in the near future and unless the outside demand improves materially more declines are likely to follow, especially in hogs.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 28,000 cattle, 29,000 hogs, and 31,000 sheep, against 30,512 cattle, 22,792 hogs, and 50,360 sheep corresponding Monday a year ago. Next week's estimated receipts, 75,000 cattle, 135,000 hogs, and 100,000 sheep.

Estimates on next Monday's probable hog receipts ranged from 25,000 to 36,000. Charles Gross marked 25,000, W. H. Overman 27,000, E. R. Gentry 29,000, F. W. Waddell 30,000, J. M. Waters 31,000, F. R. Burrows 32,000, Lester Armour 33,000, and G. M. Nicoll 36,000.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The United Fruit company has acquired an interest in the Carib Syndicate, Ltd., oil producers, and will be given representation on the directorate at an election to be held Tuesday. The deal results from the wish of United Fruit to assure a supply of fuel oil in South America for its fleet of steamers.

Trade reviews say further curtailment of operations marks the business situation. Retrenching and inactivity are common all over the country, and price uncertainty continues to be the big factor. Wholesale prices of packing house products declined last week.

An important conference has been arranged between a stockholders' protective committee of the Denver and Rio Grande and representatives of the Western Pacific. It is believed that at this meeting a settlement will be broached in connection with a judgment of $33,000,000 held by the Western Pacific against the Denver.

The Morris Plan Bankers' association has just concluded its annual convention in Chicago. The convention reëlected Thomas Coughlin of Cleveland as president of the association. Robert B. Umberger of Chicago and A. A. Blumeyer of St. Louis were elected vice presidents and O. C. Carr of Evansville, Ind., secretary and treasurer.

The net increase in postal savings deposits for September was $1,500,000, as against $2,075,000 in August. The total deposits in the United States on Oct. 1 were $161,151,322. The Chicago office made a gain of $20,151.

The Invader Oil and Refining company has purchased the Arbutus Oil company and will begin marketing oil in Oklahoma and Kansas, as well as continue its jobbing business in Texas.

The Chicago federal reserve bank reports the weekly movement of credits as follows: Debits to individual deposit account reported for the week ending Oct. 20 by 193 banks in twenty-four leading clearing house cities in the Seventh federal reserve district aggregate $1,445,654,000, compared with $1,059,214,000 a week ago. Aggregate debits to individual deposit account amounted to $1,445,654,000, compared with $1,134,212,000 reported by twenty-three clearing houses for the corresponding week of last year.

The Ottawa Light, Heat and Power company, Ltd., has sold $1,200,000 first mortgage and collateral trust sinking fund 8 per cent bonds to the Harris Trust and Savings bank and the Royal Securities corporation, Montreal. The bonds mature Oct. 1, 1940, and are being offered at par and interest, yielding 8 per cent.

A new state bank to serve the northwest side of Chicago is being organized by Charles E. Scheubert and John F. Amberg, who have conducted a real estate and mortgage loan business at 4140 West North avenue for a number of years. The bank will have capital of $200,000 and surplus of $50,000. Officers will be chosen this week.

METAL MARKETS.

WANTED
MANAGER

You are now employed in a similar capacity—you are not out of employment with a bunch of reasons why. You have demonstrated your ability to successfully organize and handle a force of men who know how to sell trucks to truck users. To a man who is a producer we guarantee that the salary will be satisfactory and in addition you will share in the profits without any investment of capital on your part. We have a thoroughly developed and profitable Wholesale Organization with headquarters and a Show Room on Automobile Row in Chicago. Without organized effort we have sold approximately 80 trucks at retail in Chicago in the last 7 months. You will start with a clean slate—no "Pets" to take care of—you will hire and fire your own men; you will be in complete charge, selling a truck which is advertised nationally and you will be supported with local advertising. You will have one of the most complete lines of models in America, six models running from ¾ to 4 tons, which includes a "Speed Wagon" which is some seller.

The price range is from $1,000 to $4,000. Adequate and satisfactory arrangements have been made for financing of the sales in your department. Negotiations will be held absolutely confidential. Address by letter only, E. M. N., 167 E. Ontario Street, Chicago.

UGE FINANCING CUTS RESERVE BANK DEPOSITS

BY O. A. MATHER.

ontinuance of the tight money con was reflected in the weekly ements of the federal reserve ks issued yesterday. The chief nifestation was a decided drop in osits, due in part to large withwals by the government as the re of heavy payments of the previous ek and by corporations, and also to large flotation of security issues ring the week. A practical result the stringency was an advance in e call loan rate on Friday.

oth the New York and Chicago insti ons showed large decreases in de its and in gold reserves. There was ntrast in loans, however, New York wing a moderate increase and Chi wing a fair decrease. The reserve posi n of both institutions remained about e same. The New York clearing house nks showed a sharp drop in reserves, ulting in the largest deficit below legal uirements reported thus far this year.

Aggregrate Deposits Slump.

he consolidated report of the twelve eral reserve banks showed a decline gross deposits of $242,553,000. Gold re ves decreased $2,150,000 and total re ves receded $2,359,000. Loans reced $14,688,000, those on government obli tions increasing $6,329,000, but those commercial paper declining $30,917,-. Bills bought in the market receded ,654,000, so that total bills on hand de ined $43,442,000. The member banks duced their reserve account by $88,992,-0. Holdings of treasury certificates of debtedness declined $20,854,000. Total rning assets receded $64,296,000. Fed ral reserve note circulation increased $2,923,000.

The ratio of reserves to net deposit and federal reserve note liabilities combined rose to 43.3 from 42.7 per cent in the preceding week, while the ratio of gold reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposits rose to 47.3 from 46.6 per cent in the preceding week.

New York Deposits Fall.

The report of the New York Federa Reserve bank showed a decline in gros deposits of $64,241,716, which included a decrease in government deposits of $16,-26,016. Gold reserves receded $21,242,76 and total reserves declined $20,647,97 Loans increased $10,074,055, those on gov rnment obligations expanding $12,285, while those on commercial paper re ded $2,211,120. The bank again became borrower from sister institutions to the tent of $25,000,000, this being represent by bills turned over for rediscount ls bought in the market declined $24,-,806, so that total bills on hand re ed $39,113,751. Total earning assets clined $36,830,452.

The ratio of reserves to net deposit and eral reserve note liabilities combined s 38.6, compared with 38.5 per cent in preceding week, while the ratio of re rves to net deposits, after deducting 40 cent gold reserve against note circu n, was 36.7. compared with 36.6 per t.

U. S. Deposits Gain Here.

e Chicago Federal Reserve bank ement showed a decline in deposits $19,212,742, although government de its increased $1,177,02. Gold re ves declined $2,265,564 and total re ves receded $2,309,119. Below Legal Limit Here.

The New York clearing house bank report showed a decrease in reserves of $50,233,200, causing a deficit in legal requirements of $23,977,180, compared with an excess of $26,256,020 the preceding week. This decline and deficit in reserves was wholly the result of the member banks reducing their reserves at the federal reserve bank by $65,454,000. The aggregate reserve declined $64,801,000.

The other important factors were sharp decreases in deposits and loans. Net demand deposits receded $112,935,000, while time deposits held about steady. The government reduced its balance by $45,849,000, although this does not figure in the reserve position. Loans declined $90,843,000. Cash receded $1,297,000. The figures follow:

The New York Times.

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Outside of a demonstration of strength in certain public utility company shares, resulting in gains of 1 to 4 points, the stock market today was devoid of feature. Business was on a moderate scale.

Short covering advanced several of the sugar issues and a few specialties, but traders showed an inclination to hold off until the influence on speculation of negotiations between the British government and labor interests could be determined more clearly. Liberty bonds were again inclined to recede.

Utility Issues Advance.

In the utilities, Laclede Gas, Montana Power, Brooklyn Union Gas, Consolidated Gas, North American, Philadelphia and United Railways Investment made good gains. In the rails, Pere Marquette gained 2⅝, and Kansas City Southern and Lehigh Valley also advanced. Canadian Pacific declined.

United Fruit rose 7⅝ points with announcement of a purchase of interest in the Carib Syndicate. Houston Oil gained 3¾, but Associated Oil and Standard of New Jersey lost 3 and 6 points respectively. The copper shares were firmer, led by Seneca and Cerro de Pasco. Owens Bottle advanced 3⅝ and Western Union 2⅝. American Tobacco "B" declined 2½ points.

Rail Service Improves.

It has been recognized for some time that the effort of the railroads to effect increased efficiency of operation with existing equipment and to cut down costs will be the primary influence behind net earnings for many months to come.

The American Railway association reports that car loadings in the week ended Oct. 9, with the exception of a single week of 1919, established a new high record. The total was 1,009,787 cars, compared with approximately 975,000 in the preceding week and 982,171 in the coresponding week of last year. And the figures in detail indicated the probability of new increases in subsequent periods.

Handling Materials

Nothing interests a good factory manager more nowadays than to find the best method of handling materials. He sees the benefits to be had from proper handling of equipment, but lacking actual experience in its use, often has difficulty in deciding wisely about it.

For this reason our assistance is of much value. We have had experience with practically every type of handling or conveying machinery, know the advantages and disadvantages of each, and their application to special purposes.

Being Engineers, we are interested only in seeing that the most efficient machinery is installed, regardless of who makes it. This is a decided advantage to you.

There are, no doubt, questions right now about handling your materials that we could help you on. Why not give us the opportunity?

Let Holland Heating Service Put Cheer and Comfort Into Your Home ~ ~

THE HOLLAND
NO. 45
HOLLAND FURNACE
HOLLAND, MICH.

GETTING a Holland Furnace means more than simply a furnace in your basement. Each Holland heated home has a complete warm air heating system, planned individually to fit the conditions of the building.

—Furnace is installed by Holland trained workmen under our own direction.

—Complete installation guaranteed by the largest installers of furnaces in the world.

That's why the Holland is unlike any other type of home heating. Any one may design a heating system, but a Holland plan insures correct heat with economy of fuel. Any one may put a furnace under a house, but the Holland Furnace Company guarantees a comfortably heated home.

Holland Heating Engineers Plan and Install the System Complete

This does not mean an extra cost but an extra saving. The cost of the heating system is saved again and again through years of service. Added to this is dependable cheer and comfort.

It is this kind of home heating service that has made Holland sales multiply and lead wherever Holland Furnaces have been introduced. Holland Branches have been established in over 175 cities in the Central West. And in every city the demand for Hollands exceeds the supply.

Holland Service is fast bringing to the attention of home owners everywhere the advantages of warm air heating over other heating. Everyone admits that circulating, moist, warm air is the ideal method of home heating. The Holland provides this plus a guarantee on the entire installation. Your money will be cheerfully refunded if you are not thoroughly satisfied.

Pipe or Pipeless Installation

We can give you three styles of installation with a Holland Furnace. The complete Holland system with pipes and warm air registers in different parts of the house, the so-called Pipeless Furnace with all the warm air coming up through one register, and the Improved Pipeless furnace with one big warm air register and separate flues for bringing cold air back to the furnace. Our recommendations are to supply the style that fits your home best. In any case you get a quality-built Holland Furnace and have the complete system taken care of and guaranteed by us.

Telephone or Write for a Holland Man

Without obligation to you, let us send a Holland man to study the conditions of your home building and quote you on a Holland Heating System planned scientifically to fit it. No two homes are alike. The doors and windows, the size of air spaces, amount of glass exposure, construction of walls, are conditions which differ with every home. These differences make a heating problem which only an experienced heating engineer should solve!

Ask for the Holland man in your locality to call at your home. This means no obligation or expense to you, and his suggestions may prove more valuable than you expect.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

PART THREE

OCTOBER 24, 1920.

IRST AID TO LAST SEASON'S FROCK

by Corinne Lowe

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

EW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—There is a new game now very popular. It is to distinguish this season's models from those of last season. So far nobody seems to a very high score, but the game provides us with a constant se for faculties somewhat dimmed perhaps by the ease of r approximations.

Don't let any one tell you that a mere lorgnette will do it. The f picking out a real 1920 model will require field glasses and atient scientific temperament. By the aid of these you will ver three or four habits of the autumn modes which may dis- ish them from those of last season.

First of all, the skirts are apt to be odd and uneven. Second, llars have mounted to the ears and are still moving. Third, aists are inclined to be long. Fourth, there are symptoms of oke. For the rest, we have the same old chemise frocks, the embroideries, the same apron tunics and panels, and some- even the same short sleeves.

Under these conditions it really does not require any high al endowment to convert last year's frock into this year's. we are certainly helped in this thrifty intent by the popularity mbining all kinds of materials with each other. You may panels of lace or of ribbon or of other contrasting fabric to old black satin; you may finish off your short sleeves with sleeves of crepe de chine or mousseline, and you may fill in round or elliptical neck of last season with one of the modish yokes.

These yokes range from the thoroughgoing Empress Eugenie piecement that dips down far over the shoulders to the tiny e thing that is merely a self-starter for the new high collar. pire shoulder yokes are found on many of the new crepe de es and georgettes for afternoon wear, while the frock of the ier material, such as serge or duvetyn, generally restricts its activities to a piece in the back that reminds you of a man's t. Whatever its shape, the yoke is new and—well, add your and beat to 1920 taste.

The Drecoll model at the left illustrates the use of the tiny e. It also illustrates some other things—among them the con- ed popularity of pitting corsage of one material against skirt nother. For the skirt is of black velvet and the waist of Chi- blue velvet. This waist is embroidered heavily in black d, but no ambassador of black is sent to yoke, collar, or the r section of the sleeves. These are of confirmed blue.

The draping of the skirt upon one side is a feature of present s which may be located by toil with the field glasses. It is n here in this skirt of Drecoll's in a manner which brings out mooth fitting course to the left side. And please note that the g of this entire one piece frock is at the side.

Let it not be thought that the collar of the moment has noth- o do but to chin itself. There are so many setting up exer- which an ambitious collar may take nowadays; for example, f the newest calisthenics is to wrap around the neck and then a bow at the left side. A collar such as this is bound to bring frock of last year right up to the minute.

nother new collar is the one shown in this frock at the left. e kind that doesn't look as if it had been prepared by a real nurse. It has, on the contrary, the air of being an informal bandage—a rather hurried first aid. But, joking aside, rushed collars are much more becoming to the average n than is the smooth fitting one.

panels we have, as has already been said, a rich field in g over last year's frock. The afternoon dress in the center page points out the workings of some of these panels and shows you just what you might do to revive the drooping spirits of last year's black satin. These are exceedingly narrow and are of black lace over jade green satin. The lower section of the sleeves shows the same arrangement, and forms the only touch of adornment considered necessary to the plain black satin bodice distinguished only by its scalloped finish.

The ribbon counter is certainly a counter irritant to anything that is passe. O, the things that one may do with ribbon this autumn! A girdle of narrow black cire ribbon will bring your chemise frock of blue serge right up to the minute. So will appliqued motifs of ribbon—preferably cire. By binding the cloth panels of your old frock with cire ribbon you will also avail yourself of one of the latest resources of the Paris designer.

As to ribbon panels, of these we have no end. Renee, for example, has sent us over a whole flock of dresses for every hour of the day, which achieve smartness through the ribbon panels. These are not the voluminous looped ones which Cheruit did last spring and which made even the bathing suits loop the loop. They are generally narrow; they hang in a straight line from the waist so as not to disturb for one minute the prescribed narrowness of the silhouette, and quite often they are turned under at the hem. In the dance frocks particularly these ribbons are often two toned, a custom which makes these evening gowns look fairylike as a lighted fountain.

And the good old apron tunic! It is still with us and still presents its services to any woman anxious to freshen up some old gown. These apron tunics, too, may be made of ribbon and they are very effective when the narrow picot edged strands are placed so close together that they just give you a whiff of the gay colored georgette or crepe de chine foundation. One black satin dress I saw the other day used this device of apron tunic in scarlet crepe de chine, to which were applied vertically picoted black satin ribbons about an inch wide. Undersleeves showing the same treatment were the only other touch of trimming.

Do not be nervous about doing picot edges on anything these days. The touch is as pervasive as ever, and sometimes the new frocks of [illegible] materials such as the popular crepe de chine achieve their only trimming by picoted folds and hem of the material. One gray crepe de chine which I saw the other day—and remember that gray is simply overcasting the fashion horizon—worked out its destiny by a long back tunic, picot edged, which fell below the hem of the skirt, and which joined the picot edged peasant sleeves and the little yoke ending in a high fur trimmed collar to make the variety of the model.

The mention of the tunic of this frock brings me again to a truth I have already voiced. Skirts are apt to show many irregularities of hem and of drapery this season. Draperies dart down at one side below the hem of the skirt and on the other show the great possible self-control. Tunics are often pointed and trail below the given boundaries. The draped skirt, too, contributes to dispel any monotony, and altogether the last thing we are apt to ask of a friend nowadays is whether our skirt is hanging straight.

Both sleeves and sash afford avenues for freshening up our old clothes. They also afford introductions of color to our frocks of black and brown and gray. The prominent part played by both of these details in the modern frock is illustrated in the model at the left—a Chanel model in black satin embroidered in motifs of gold thread. The high collar is banded in skunk and to the girdle of self-material are added loops of jade green crepe de chine finished by bands of the satin. The lower section of the sleeves is of the same jade green.

Gold and silver embroideries are given a great deal of play on the autumn costumes and so are those of the familiar wool. Among the most startling manifestations of the latter is the white wool embroidery used occasionally on black velvet foundations. This startling contrast is also effected on black serge.

READING from left to right: To a bodice of Chinese blue velvet a skirt of black velvet sends as ambassador a design of black silk embroidery. Yoke, crushed collar, and the upper section of the sleeves are of the plain blue velvet. This model is from Drecoll. The center model shows black satin negotiating with black lace over jade green, and the following black satin—a model from Chanel—proves by its touch of fur, its gold thread embroidery and jade green crepe de chine sash how colorfully we may go about being simple.

9807—Woman's tie-on blouse. Sizes 36 to 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 1⅞ yards of 36 inch material and 1¼ yards of binding.

9819—Woman's one piece dress. Sizes 36 to 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 36 inch, 3¼ yards of 44 inch, with ⅞ yard of 36 inch contrasting and 7¼ yards of binding.

9808—Girl's one piece dress. Sizes 6 to 14 years. Size 8 requires 1⅞ yards of 36 inch material and ⅜ yard of 36 inch contrasting and 1 yard of binding.

How to Use the Patterns

AN attractive house dress of wash gingham or percale may be made of No. 9819; or, if you want it to wear afternoons, choose satin, taffeta, serge, or cheviot.

Brown is to be one of the popular colors this fall, so if it is becoming, why not get a brown checked serge or cheviot, making the collar, vest, etc., of duvetyn in a shade of tan that will harmonize with the brown?

The dress is cut in one piece from neck to hem, and is in two sections—back and front. It gores out at the under arm seams so it measures, for size 36, one and five-eighths yards around the bottom.

The collar, cuffs, belt, and top of shield are finished with a narrow binding, and this could be of the same shade of brown as is in the check, in satin. The pockets are faced with the duvetyn across the top, and the edge of the lap should be bound also. This will make a pretty dress, and white organdie collar and cuffs should be worn with it to keep the dress clean.

Have the true bias strips for binding three-quarters of an inch wide, and cut them accurately; then lay the right side of a piece of the binding on the right side of the collar, and sew it on by hand in a narrow seam, taking small running stitches. Be careful not to "full" the binding as you sew. Then turn it over the edge of the collar, and hem it down on the wrong side.

The other pieces are done the same way.

The child's dress, No. 9808, is cut in one piece, kimono fashion, and is intended to be slipped on over the head. The dress is cut down a little way in the middle, at the neck, and neck and opening are bound. This is not especially easy to do, and must be handled with care. The binding should be a bias one, and must be put on so it does not "full" at all, and at the bottom of the slit the seam is run off to almost nothing on each side. This part of the facing must be hemmed down on the wrong side a little below the opening, to make the place strong.

Hem a narrow bias strip of the material over each under arm seam at the greatest curve, to prevent the dress tearing there.

For a small child pink or blue chambray with trimmings of pink or blue checked gingham would be charming; while, if a warmer dress is desired, use challis.

With one separate skirt and a number of blouses, a good beginning is made on one's wardrobe. No. 9807 is an attractive design, and chiffon or georgette will be lovely. Some of the most beautiful blouses are in a solid color—say a rather bright, and not too light green, with embroidery in black. For those who can wear purple or lavender that color is also stunning, with beadwork or embroidery in black or some color.

The front of the pattern extends below the waist and on into sash lengths, and the back comes a little below the natural waist line, is hemmed across the bottom, and a casing for an elastic set on, the elastic going entirely around the waist and holding the blouse firmly in place. These sash ends can be picoted in the same color as is used for the binding around the neck, or in the color of the blouse.

There is no other opening than the slashes cut on each side of the front, and they will have to be quite perfectly finished, or else they will surely tear in putting on and off.

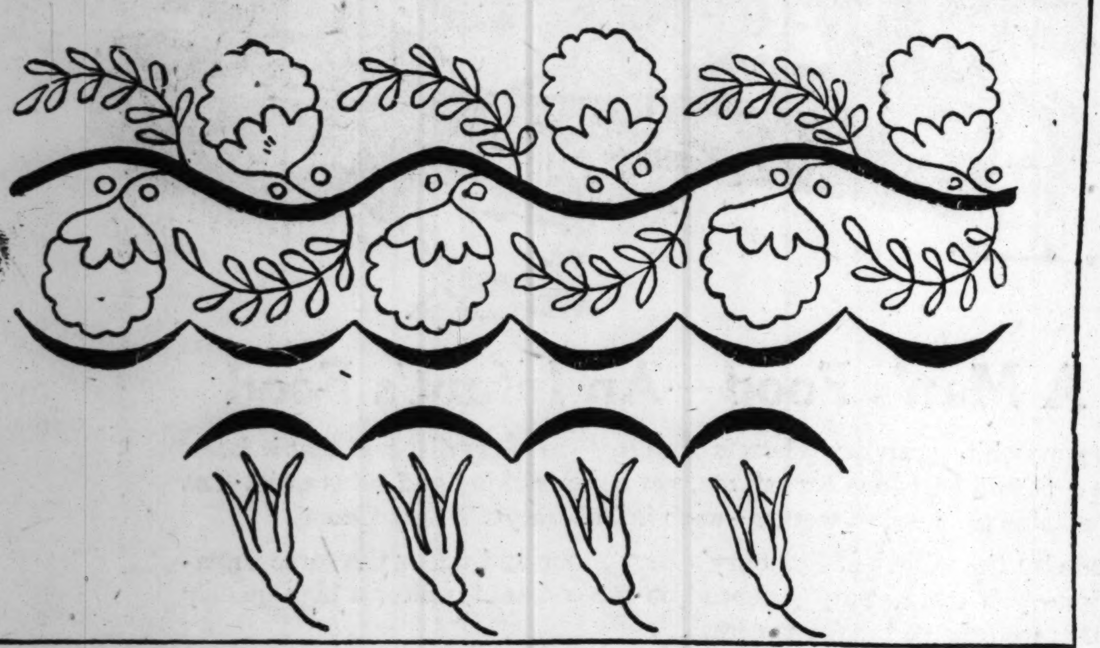
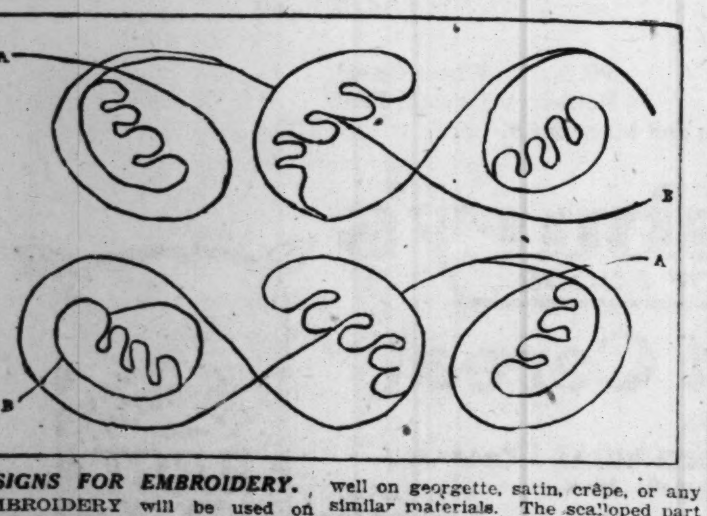
Practical and Fancy Needlework BY CLOTILDE





DESIGNS FOR EMBROIDERY.

EMBROIDERY will be used on clothes more than ever this fall and winter, and it is delightful work for the home sewer. There are a great many wonderful designs for silk, wool, or beads, and it is possible to suit every taste. Three designs that will work up well are given here and they are not difficult to follow.

The scroll design is meant to be a continuous one, and will be attractive looking on any material. It can all be worked in an outline stitch or done in beads.

The other designs are a little more elaborate in character, and will look well on georgette, satin, crêpe, or any similar materials. The scalloped part should be done in the regular stitch used for scallops, first padding the scallops.

The heavy waving line between the flowers and leaves can be done in outline, feather stitching, or chain stitch. The flowers and leaves can be worked in beads, simply outlining them, and if the right colors are chosen the result will be most satisfactory.

The tulip design with scalloped edge would be lovely to finish a collar and cuff set, and the scroll design would be most attractive across the front of the upturned brim of a duvetyn hat.

Is It Harmful?

"Dear Miss Blake: I should like to know if it is considered unladylike and harmful to accept invitations to go motoring and to dinners with my employer, a married man.

"My aunt and my boy friend argue with me about this subject and my boy friend threatens me by saying that he will never come to see me again if I accept another invitation. I can see no harm in it, as my employer is a very respectful gentleman, but they claim that it isn't right to go out with a married man, seeing that his wife doesn't know that I am with him. We have agreed to accept your answer in this matter which, I hope, will settle any further disputes and disagreements. SOLICITOUS."

Your boy friend is more patient with you than I would be. If you are old enough to work you ought to have sense enough to know your employer won't be a "respectful gentleman" nor you a respectable young lady long dining and motoring with him.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

A COAT WITH ART IN IT.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

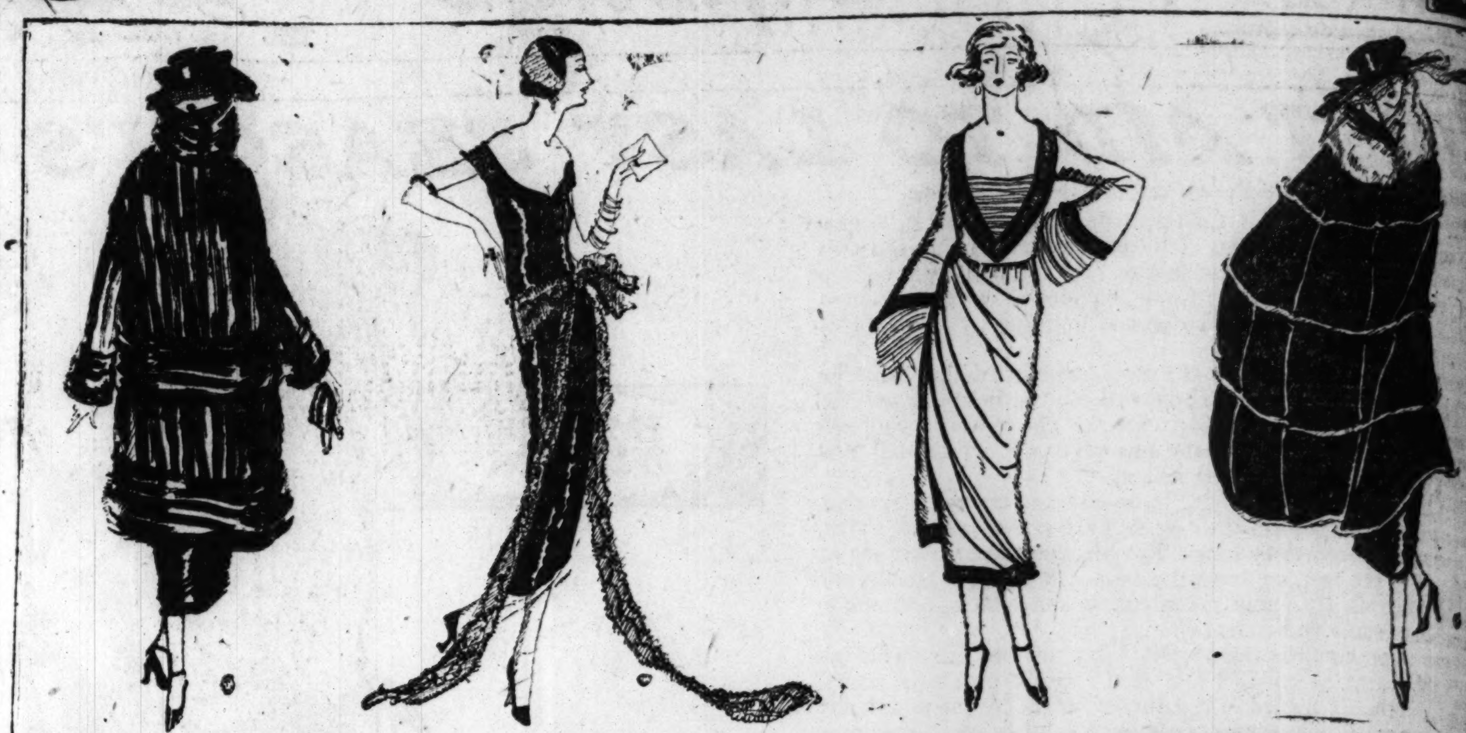
HERE is a modest little conception by Cheruit for 75,000 francs—if you are looking up ways and means for spending your income. I think if I were going to invest such a sum I would put it into a chateau. But if I did the electric lights would be sure not to work right in it, and, besides, with such a fortune as that represents, I would have enough for the coat on the side. This is one of vison, or mink, which is the most expensive fur on the market today for all round wear, and it is made with the effect of a low ceinture, produced by running the small skins crosswise at a point along the hips.

I tried it on and thought that it had as nice a line in a fur coat as I had seen for many a day. It is the sort of thing I should try to arrange to have if I were gambling for large stakes. It would draw you up to the measure of any large occasion. But it was far from representing merely expense. Unlike much that is rich, it has the mark of art in it. I think Cheruit is one of the real artists of the profession. Some one the other day was holding out for a rival house as having the best things in Paris this season. She mentioned as a point that the head of the house had been with Cheruit, and she thought when she left she had taken the brains with her. I answered: "Well, I think she left the art."

The second sketch represents what seems to me to be the spirit of Cheruit's things this year. Maybe it isn't very practical as an every day evening dress, but I told the artist to take off the lid and draw it for you, because I thought it might almost be used as the seal of the house for this year. The dress is of dull green chiffon velvet, so soft, so thin, that it could almost be pulled through a curtain ring, and draped, or really almost wrapped round the lady from a starting and a finishing point on the left side. There is a sash, which is at the same time a train, of yards and yards of black chantilly lace, some six inches wide, which ties on the left hip, where it separates into two floating trains. The headdress for it consists of a tarnished silver net, which demands that the hair be arranged in the style of 1830.

The third sketch shows a more practical version of a Cheruit gown. It is a street dress, but you will observe that it, too, has the pulled up, draped effect on one side. It is of London smoke gray cloth, and embroidered in a curious combination of braid and fine silk threads. The color of this embroidery is a deep brownish gray, and it lies along the edge of a deep V neck and the border of long bell shaped sleeves. Chiffon, smoke colored and finely plaited, fills in the V, and forms a loose cuff that falls low over the hand. The same embroidery runs round the bottom of the skirt.

I thought you might enjoy seeing a picture of your old friend, the Duchesse de Chaulnes, who is now in Paris at the Hotel Ritz. She is always smart, and she always seems to me a little sad. She wears this cape a lot and looks awfully chic in it. The material is of black cashmere, and there is quite a lot of it—in other words, the cape is voluminous. The collar is of squirrel. Four bands of the fur round the body of the cape, and bands go the length of it, thus [illegible] ing the fashionable plaid of the in fur. Under it she often we[illegible] black faille dress, and a black [illegible] hat loosely draped in a black ch[illegible] veil. She also wears black glo[illegible] sandals, but stockings of gray. [illegible] has a lovely necklace of pearls, [illegible] makes a beautiful note of pearly [illegible] against this ensemble of black [illegible] gray.



Coat of mink by Cheruit with small skins running crosswise at a point along the hips. It is priced at 75,000 francs.

Evening costume of dull green velvet, draped on one side and bound with a sash of black chantilly lace which flows into a two forked train.

Fruit in Bottles

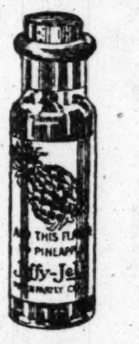
Condensed Fruit Juices in each Jiffy-Jell Dessert

Remember how Jiffy-Jell excels the old-time quick gelatin desserts.

Jiffy-Jell is a real-fruit dainty, rich in fruit. We crush the fruit, condense the juice and seal it in a vial. You get the delights and healthfulness of fruit, not a mere fruity taste.

The fruit is plentiful. We crush, for instance, half a pineapple to flavor one dessert. This is done in Hawaii—fruit too ripe to ship. The fruit alone might cost you as much as the whole dessert.

This is most important. People need fruit daily—real fruit, not mere flavor. Jiffy-Jell serves it in delicious form, with a moment's trouble, at a trifling cost. Join the millions who enjoy it. Start this week and send the trade-marks for the molds we offer free.



A bottle in each package

Eight Fruit Desserts

Eight fruit desserts are placed at your constant call. A package serves a family and costs a few cents only.

The desserts are light, as desserts should be. They are rich in needed fruit. And nothing is more welcome.

Jiffy-Jell comes ready-sweetened. It comes acidulated with lemon or grape acid. Simply add boiling water, as directed on package, then the fruit essence from the vial and let cool.

Mint Jiffy-Jell

Is rich in mint. Serve with roast meats or as a side dish.

Lime Fruit

Makes a tart green salad jell. Serve with your salad, or mix salad in before cooling and make a salad loaf. Or mix in meat left-overs for a meat loaf.

You need it now

Now starts the great season for Jiffy-Jell desserts. Go get a variety. Then send us the circle trade-marks for the gifts we offer this week.

You lovers of Jiffy-Jell know its delights. You who don't know it should try it now. Compare it with the old desserts without the fruit in bottles. It will give you a new conception of these quick fruity dainties.

With the molds we will send a recipe book and offers on all our molds.

MPKIN AND PUMPKIN PIE.

HE newest book on "Dehydrating Foods," the author of which is Mrs. A. Louise Andrea, has the following recipe for drying pump- "Select a firm, deep colored pkin, and cut into strips two or e inches wide. Peel, remove seeds l soft, stringy centers, then cut into s one-eighth of an inch thick. e prepared pumpkin on trays to depth of an inch and place directinto the dryer, without blanching. ring temperature, 110 degrees F., hing temperature 140 degrees F., roximate time about three and one- to four hours. Pumpkin is sufntly dried when no moisture can pressed from a cut edge. Condi-irections for conditioning any dried duct, given by this author, are: ter your product has reached its d stage it is then placed in a rack par and set in a cool, dry place for e days. During this period the d product is poured into another tainer once or twice each day. This s it and allows all parts to dry nly."

Cover with Cheese Cloth.

A cheese cloth is used to cover any oduct while conditioning, to protect from dust, and if out of doors from s and other insects. On a warm y in fall the moths get busy on alost any food product, especially when green leaves are available, and what y leave on it becomes a worm in a rt time.

If a product is not thoroughly contioned mold will attack the damp rts and spread widely. But products st not be dried to a crisp or brittle ge, since then they cannot be reed by soaking. Mrs. Andrea says: Generally speaking, the products ld be leathery and just past the moisture stage."

Pack During Dry Spell.

Another point that is most important drying food is that it should be ydrated in dry weather, and espely should it be packed in dry ther and after a dry spell.

hen we were a truly pie eating dried pumpkin was one of the riable stores of the housewife. All old books give recipes for drying d the following from the oldest of rican cook books contains some s on cooking as well as drying s today to try out:

dia Maria Child's recipe—"It is at improvement to the flavor of kin pies to boil the milk, stir the pumpkin into it, and let them together once or twice. The kin swells almost as much as Inneal and of course absorbs more than when stirred together cold, the taste of the pie is much im- Some people cut pumpkin, s, and dry it like apples. It is h better way to boil and sift pkin, then spread it out thin plates, and dry hard in a warm It will keep good all the year and a little piece boiled up in will make a batch of pies."

Old Method Best.

gging Mrs. Andrea's pardon, and the pardon of all the modern derators, I believe this old method reparing pumpkin is the best. Mrs. d's directions for swelling even the ly cooked pumpkin are worth ing, for the pumpkin pie as we it today generally needs the moded treatment of whipped cream the top, and then cannot compare the old pumpkin custard of New land, where pumpkin pies undoubty originated. The pumpkin probwas bequeathed to the early colonby the Indians along with the corn. e early Yankees did not call their a pumpkin custard, but we may, use it had a skin over the top like of a custard pie instead of the ular top effect common on pumppies today.

he proportion of milk to pumpkin t likely to produce the custard ality, generally is two of milk to one pumpkin, but there may be such a erence in the amount of water in wed pumpkin that it is almost imsible to give a fixed rule. The milk uld at least be hot when it is added the pumpkin, even if the two are not together as Mrs. Child suggests.

Get Two Different Effects.

wo different cooks following the e recipe for cooking pumpkin preatory to pie making will get quite ferent effects, because one will cook pumpkin so that little of the water and that added to it will evapo-, while the other will cook it down t to dryness. In the latter case h more milk will be needed for the than in the other. The cold pack ing recipes recognize that pumpswells, as Mrs. Child says, and a space in the can for it to do so. we take Mrs. Henry Ward Beechrecipe for pumpkin pies we can reason say that it is the recipe of the first families of fifty years It shows, too, that she belonged race of careful cooks. The unful cook adds a great deal of water pumpkin when she puts it to stew, then cooks it so hard and fast as ately to burn it on and ruin it.

Mrs. Beecher's Recipe.

Henry Ward Beecher's recipe. the pumpkin into small pieces; out the seeds and inside, but do re it. It must be a well grown thoroughly ripened pumpkin, and watery. Put the pieces in a saucewith only a few spoonfuls of , not more than four; cover close it cook gently, so as not to until the water has all evapoand the pumpkin has cooked dry and of a rich, dark orange While hot sift it through a sieve. Season only as much as needing for the day. For one pie, one egg, one tablespoonful molasses, four tablespoonfuls of ed milk, and enough of new make it as thin as you wish, or have it half milk and half cream, of condensed milk; sugar and to suit the taste. Ginger and on are very nice. Bake to a rich brown, and do not blister ch."

h more of ancient or semilore might be here accumun reference to the pumpkin pie. randmothers used to bake and these pies for a week or two in chilly place, somewhat as they supply of mince pies. With the pie, the pumpkin pie always erved on Thanksgiving day, in was considered the more essenthe two for that day, as the pie was for the Christmas

Choosing Colors

LIFE is just one optic adventure after another. Before you were born little touches of color were being woven into the baby clothes. In babyhood your life is a field of color—colored picture books and toys and gayly colored little dresses. After that the choice of color in clothes is an abiding problem. Your eye registers color every hour you are awake.

So, a knowledge of color is a feature of education that should not be neglected. It is curious that a theme that is as basic in life as color should be so neglected, as the lack of popular works on the subject shows it to be. Youngsters are made to study music, and yet self-expression in color is not thought of as a study that should be urged.

Lack Color Sense.

The reason you see so many gowns of doubtful becomingness on women is above everything else due to a lack of color sense. One does not have to be born with an eye for color. It is a study you may become proficient in.

A girl will say: "If I had her money I could dress beautifully." Without her money and a well developed knowledge of color you may dress beautifully. You may have a beautiful home without oriental rugs and Persian pottery if you know how to apply color to its decoration. So, you may have a dream of a frock if you know what colors bring out your best points and what complementary colors add to the color of the frock.

Many women with money will see a frock on a model, buy it, to discover on her it makes the eyes dull, the hair faded, the face weak. Such is the influence of color.

Making the color of the dress match the eyes is not a guaranteed formula to achieve dress harmony, although it is a common notion. Take a baby blue eyed women, weighing many pounds dress her in baby blue, and you have a ridiculous looking picture. Or a gray eyed women following gray; a black eyed woman wearing black, and so on.

Color Expresses Mood.

Color may make the short and stout less stocky; the tall and extremely thin less so; it may set off the face with an added luster to eyes and hair, and it may give the skin a warmer glow. It may express mood. It may impart airiness and youthful freshness on one hand, and warmth and good nature on another.

Colors, to be successful, have to be selected more with concern for complexion, features, character of expression, and personality than the color of the eyes. A blonde in one color may be made a sallow looking creature, whereas another shade would make her skin pearl tinted.

It is not only knowing the main color of a frock or hat, but knowing what trimming to use. Related colors like yellow or orange, if there is little contrast in value, tend to deaden one another.

Black Shrinks Figure.

The youthful brunette or olive type will look matronly in unrelieved dark colors; if slim, her features will be made sharp; if plump, the result is a look of maturity.

A sallow person should avoid blue, for it emphasizes the yellow in the face. Black makes a sallow face more yellow. The face of ashen gray, lacking vitality or luster, without being sallow, must avoid pure, warm colors. The intenser the color of the face, the more lackluster the face will seem.

Black tends more than any other color to shrink the figure.

There have been some good books written on the subject of dress and color, which would be of great aid to woman in her planning of dress and home decoration. And I would advise you to study them carefully and follow their suggestions about looking to nature, to the art gallery, to old tapestries and and rugs for help in color contrasts.

A Helpful Table.

Although it is hard to characterize definitely types for certain colors because of varying complexions and heights and weights, the following table may be of help if you are still wondering which is the better color for you:

The fair blonde with flaxen or golden hair with blue, gray, or brown eyes and clear complexion: Black or high luster with touches of bright colors and white; a clear and oyster white; dark brown and bronze brown; peacock, navy, and delft blue; pale and dark green; pearl and dove grays; soft violet and wistaria; no reds; softest yellow and most delicate shades of pink.

The Titian blonde: Black, in velvet, heavy satin, or transparent goods; cream and ivory whites; deep, dark browns; reddish browns and pale tans not so good; midnight and darkest navies; pale greens in evening and summer dress, but dark greens or Irish greens too contrasting; taupe with a pinkish cast; purples, too vivid a contrast; no reds. amber tones and pale yellows; flesh pink or palest blue.

Light chestnut or brown type: Black not especially good; white relieved with some color; golden brown; blue, especially with blue gray eyes; bright blues to be avoided; blue gray; darkest purple; no red; pale pink and soft rose; bronze.

Pale brunette with black or dark brown hair: Black with white relief; cream and ivory white; all shades of brown; electric and sapphire blues, if eyes are blue; orchid; burgundy and dark red; amber and canary yellows; all pinks, unless too highly colored.

Olive brunette, brown or black eyes and hair: No black; ivory and cream white; mahogany and Negro browns; darkest blues; dark green, gray not good; purple not good; dark, warm reds; terra cotta and buff and apricot; pink in warm and pale colors.

Highly colored brunette: Black with color touches; cream and ivory; golden, buff, and nut browns; pale and peacock blues; silver grays; no purple; cardinal and clear red; yellow in every tone; coral, old rose, and flesh pink.

Fair skinned, mature woman with gray or white hair: Black, relieved by white; white; seal and chestnut browns; dull old blues, pastel tints and midnight blue; soft grays with blue touches; heliotrope, grape, and darkest purple; no reds; buff; palest pink and rose.

Sallow, mature woman with gray or white hair: Black with white or cream or bright color relief, creamy white; no browns; midnight and navy blues; avoid green; warm gray; lilac and dull tones purple; dull burgundy; no yellow.

In choosing colors a woman's age has to be taken into consideration, of course. Deep pinks are for the youthful, while a woman of 60 may wear white, delicate pink, flesh, mulberry, lavender, and pink violet. White may be worn by a woman of any age, but the pure and blue white must be softened to creamy and pink whites to suit the individual.

I was sitting at the window one day watching my two smaller sisters, 12 and 8 years of age, and some neighbor girls, playing what they called "ball." Miriam, my 12 year old sister, had a weak heart, and one of the little girls, knowing this, said, "Don't make Miriam run the bases, because she has a heart." H. G.

Ruth, aged 4, was visiting the Soldiers' home with her mother. One of the old soldiers offered her an orange for a kiss. Ruth was bashful, and her mother said, "I would kiss him—if I were you."

And Ruth handed her mother the orange and said, "Here, you kiss him." A. M. C.

"Jimmie, Jimmie," called a hurried mother waiting for the tardy boy who was always late, "haven't you your shoes on yet?"

"Yes, mother, all but one," was the reply. H. R. M.

The Sailors Saw.

When in college two of my friends were leaving for Christmas vacation. The girls had several suitcases to carry, so I went to the station to help them with their luggage. The handle of the bag I was carrying came loose, so that I lost the suitcase several times on the way to the station.

The train was about ready to pull out when we arrived, so we made a run for it. Just as we got to the train I lost the suitcase again. To my horror the bag came open and everything fell out. Two sailors kindly offered their services and helped pick up the things. They naturally thought the bag belonged to me, so I got the laugh. J. E. S.

A Cloudy Day.

One cloudy morning, when I had started out for work, late as usual, mother called me back to get an umbrella. I reached in the holder, took what I thought was an umbrella, and ran to get my car. You can imagine how embarrassed I was when I got seated to discover I had taken my granddad's cane. E. C.

WINDOW TRIMMING IDEAS.

HOME makers are all looking at this time of year for new ideas in window trimming. When to use shades and when to use curtains, what materials to select and what trimmings, what color contrasts to employ, and how to make up the material after it has been selected all are live questions of burning interest.

Fashionable decorators have for some time despised the roller shade. They claim that every physical function performed by the roller shade could be just as satisfactorily and far more artistically performed by curtain hangings. They say that the repeated introduction of roller shades upon all occasions shows utter want of decorative resource. All this may be justified in a sense, but it is extreme.

I for my part find dark roller shades in bedrooms absolutely essential to comfort, because I am easily awakened, my eyelids are sensitive to the early morning light, and because I cannot afford yards upon yards of curtain draperies, lined and interlined, to shut out the impertinent sun that "comes peeping in at morn——." While I find the roller shade expedient in the bedroom, I cheerfully dispense with it in any other part of the house. I must admit that it is not attractive in appearance, and so I have it equipped with a cord long enough to let it snap up to its very extremity, not the least bit of it being left visible. When I please I like to be able to say "Let there be dark," even if it is just for forty winks in the middle of the afternoon.

Painted shades of translucent material have superseded lace shades, though the latter are still used at court windows of apartments, as they shut out intrusive glances of all too near neighbors without excluding the all too [illegible] light.

In the average apartment building the window frames are not architectural features that bear the test of austere treatment. On the contrary, the best course is to hide them under the protective folds of draperies and valances. The most effective concealment is made by means of a painted valance board, fitted straight across the window top, with curtains suspended from inside of it. If you cannot paint a valance board cover one with neutral tinted wall paper and cut out a motif from either chintz or wall paper and apply it with library paste. Or substitute a shaped lambrequin.

Curtains have never been as much trimmed as they are at present. So if you have some old plain curtains, a little contrasting material used as a trimming will bring them up-to-date for another season. Organdy cut in narrow strips and machine-plaited ribbon puffed or quilted, silk scalloped and picoted, all are used as garnishing. Plain bands of silk, too, are used. All of these additions are in delicate colors. A pair of cream voile curtains may be charmingly made over by adding a valance of turquoise mauve or old rose taffeta. The valance is cut ten inches wide, shirred on to a rod with a French heading at the top and decked with two narrow picoted ruffles at the bottom. The valance conceals the rod that holds the voile curtains which hang straight to the sill. At the bottom, the voile curtains are trimmed with three little taffeta ruffles. A cream colored roller shade has a painted decoration on it, and a colored silk tassel. On the window sill is a colored glass bowl filled with Italian flowers made entirely of transparent colored glass beads.

The little bedroom in the sketch is all in black and tan, excepting for the pictures and flowered linen. The walls and furniture are in two shades of deep cream. The poplin bed cover is a creamy tan color, trimmed with black and tan striped silk, made up in plaited ruffles. This trimming is repeated on the pheasant cretonne curtains and day-pillows. The colors of the cretonne are brilliant peacock, garnet, rose, purple, lemon and green, on a dull cream ground. Notice the pudgy little day-pillows. They are encircled with a puff of black and tan silk, and laid on a peacock blue pad trimmed with great tassels. The night-pillows are stowed away during the day time in the little chest-like window seat. The window shades are of glazed chintz in an almost invisible black and tan stripe. The electric light shields have a front panel of chintz, and shirred sides of tan silk. Checkered rug of black and tan.

A "Stylish Stout" Corset Is Back of Many a Woman's Popularity!

Always the "art which conceals art" wins admiration. And in the art of corseting herself, the stout or near-stout woman should refuse to be satisfied until she has achieved natural, young-looking lines.

"Stylish Stout" Corsets are the only corsets designed exclusively to achieve these lines.

They give grace and poise and such a slim appearance—often twenty pounds lighter in weight—that women are always amazed to find corsets with their wonder-working lines so very comfortable.

"Stylish Stout" Brassieres, too, give lovely slender lines. For sale at all good stores, everywhere.

The Theaters

By Percy Hammond

AFTER the loud doxologies following Miss Barrymore's first performance of "Déclassée" one half expected to return to the topic a little remorseful for his excited thanksgivings. Not used recently to plays and playing of the kind one felt that his expressions might have been the excessive transports of a verdant tourist viewing unfamiliar scenes, and that later he might have to indicate the customary reaction. With some trepidation, therefore, he went back to Powers' theater—to find the play even more interesting, under a better performance than that of the opening night, and fully excusing the glad outcries of a day or two previous.

Miss Barrymore and "Déclassée" may suffer among the less experienced playgoers from too much acclaim. For a year they have been the most highly extolled eminences of the theater, and persons go to see them, anticipating the perfect thing that ne'er was, nor is, nor e'er shall be. The reviewers are told by some of these that "Déclassée" is not a great play; that it has faults of construction, characterization, stage direction, and logic. Of course it has, but so have all plays. An important thing about "Déclassée" is that it has fewer of them than have other American dramas, and that it owns qualities, aside from its superior acting, that put it among the best.

I like to ask these protestants where there is a better, and to hear them say, "Welcome, Stranger," or "The Girl in the Limousine," both notable favorites in this neighborhood. Another and more important thing about "Déclassée" is that it stimulates and pleases that theater-going intelligence whose ordinary limit is "Turn to the Right," proving to many, if they care to have it proved, that they have a mind above the cheerful mediocrities. A playgoer who regards "Dear Me" as a masterpiece may attend "Déclassée" and also have a good time.

At any rate, Miss Barrymore's performance of Lady Helen Haden is a landmark in American playing. As that "heroic wordling" she always "lives." There are beauties who cannot act, but Miss Barrymore is not among them. She creates for your mind and portrays for your eye the game, sporting, humorous, drifting, fated, pathetic patrician whose life is "like water that goes o'er a dam and turns no mill wheels."

The scene in the New York hotel lounge between Lady Helen and the quietly magnificent Solomon [a consummate characterization by Claude King] is, in my thinking, the faultless fragment. He, of a race of which Pinero said in "Iris," is a curious blend of "passion and prudence"; she, the unclassed daughter of a hundred life-loving, life-disdaining earls, cast together upon those remote Broadway shores. You think as you listen to his "ambiguous" proposals, that one of her "Mad Verreck" ancestors might, under different temptation, have descended elopement's scarlet rope ladder, "white foot after white foot like snow upon a rose tree," as Oscar Wilde has written it; and you wonder what would have happened had she preferred cruising the south seas on Solomon's yacht, to giving her last pearl to the head waiter in payment for her tea party. I suspect that Mr. King is one of the few actors who could transmute the gold of such a phrase as "the incommunicable technique of magnificence" into the dross of the argot spoken in the lounge room of a Ritz, having at the time no liquor upon his hip.

The Lady Helen of Miss Zoe Akins and Miss Barrymore is a complete picture. It has been said of Mrs. Tanqueray and other figures of the lifelike drama that they are born, mushrooms, in their plays, and seem to have had no antecedents. Lady Helen's forebears hover around and about her career in "Déclassée," giving misty and ghostlike explanation of her as she proceeds to her fatal contest with the taxicab.

One of the best [front porch] speeches I have heard in a theater is that melodious and poetic and enjoyable panegyric to Lady Helen's "mad Verreck" family, delivered by the British ambassador in the tearoom of the Ritz, and describing the mad Verrecks as they ride among the clouds to oblivion. If only the stage director had permitted the actor to make it an emotional observation instead of a spectacular oration! Miss Akins' lines are often Pinerococo in their flamboyant idealization of the language; but I suppose it is also flamboyant idealization to say "I'm not" instead of "I ain't."

Miss Akins has called the doctors in the somewhat threadbare controversy over the details of Lady Helen's demise in the last act. These physicians diagnose Lady Helen's ailment as "hemorrhage of the spinal cord," Miss Akins writes, and they say that her finish violates none of the rules and regulations of that indisposition. Death, in these circumstances, may be a bright thing with a dreary name, it is said, and music, champagne, and the cigaret are probable items in the entourage of dissolution.

Lady Helen at the end has the right to be lovely in death, a beauteous ruin, since her arbitrary, Pinero, conclusion, saves us speculation concerning her life after the thoughtful Solomon has turned her down. But, as the saying is, versimilitude upon the stage is greater truth than truth itself, and Lady Helen's terminus, though truthful, lacks the casual and convincing details of versimilitude. The doctors like it, Miss Akins likes it, Miss Barrymore likes it, the audiences like it; but I do not. "What care I how good it be, if it be not good to me."

Perhaps I do not know the difference between art and craft. It seems ungracious to look too closely at a gift so munificent as Miss Barrymore's performance, but she would be better if she intoned less and were less hurriedly indistinct in the semi-hysterical indignation of the gambling scene in the first act, and in the opening minutes of the last. Thus is gratitude ever unwilling. These rifts were more noticeable in her opening performance, because she was in pain with lumbago, and she was nervous.

She is one of the few players who do not suspect themselves to be barnstorming when in Chicago, and the middle west, and she is just as anxious to please You as she is Them. At Powers' she produces a good, interesting, unusual Anglo-American play, superlative acting, and great, pleased audiences. That it seems to me, is a fine achievement.

Safe sealing of glass-packed foods made possible by Science

WITHOUT science, foods today would not be packed in glass commercially. Glass, of course, is the perfect container, but for 25 years we have employed chemists and other scientific men to work out means of sealing tumblers and jars so that you would receive your foods with their original purity and flavor unimpaired. This has been the problem and we have not failed to meet it.

The Cap that seals your glass-packed foods may never have had a second thought from you, but it is a vital part of the package.

Look for the trade-mark. It stands for all that we have done and means that the packer has provided the best seal possible to obtain. Accept no glass-packed foods without it.

By Mae Tinée.

WHEN stage and screen exponents of life as it should be lived learn to draw the line where love stops and mush begins a long stride forward will have been taken in stage and screen evangelism. The great trouble with pictures that point a moral is, that after teaching the lesson the expounders proceed to rub it in. And how we do hate to have things messed all over us.

"The Soul of Youth" is a story of a boy, considered the worst lad in the reform school where he has been since infancy. Given his chance, however, with a kind word thrown in now and then, he proves himself a gentleman and a hero. The moral is that love can accomplish what discipline and blows can never hope to achieve.

If the director had been content to tell the story simply and directly, letting the italics of acting rest with those who understand the art of accentuation, "The Soul of Youth" might have developed into a powerful picture. There are some splendid people in the cast, as a glance will show you. The producing company is one of the best. The interesting Judge Lindsey of Denver is introduced in a scene wherein he is shown in the Juvenile court, which he has made such a big thing for little sinners. But——

To my way of thinking, the production falls down badly, because of a certain mawkish sentimentality that seeps through from time to time during the picture, and floods the few last scenes.

This sends you away from the theater much more inclined to say: "Oh, bosh!" than: "Well, now, there's a regular picture!"

Let them preach the gospel of right living all they want to—and it seems the producers are all wanting to do that these days—but their preaching should be like what their photography must be if their photoplays are to get across—i. e.: clear cut, with no blurs or false perspectives to mar the beautiful whole.

"The Long Horn Gives the Purest Tones"

Only the Long Horn Could Achieve the Puritan Tone

Completely built in the Puritan Factories—every part Guaranteed

The popular saxophone owes its musical charm in a great measure to its long horn. Without this long horn its sweet, mellow tones would have a decidedly different character.

The long horn, too, gives a distinguishing tone to the Puritan Phonograph. It greatly amplifies the sound waves, resulting in full, rounded tones; and it refines the tone by eliminating all foreign sounds through long sound travel.

The Puritan is the only phonograph with a long horn. This long horn and all other parts of the Puritan, including the high grade noiseless motor, are made in the Puritan factories. So are Puritan Records. Thus, we are able to guard the Puritan standard carefully and you can be certain of satisfaction not only with your Puritan Phonograph but with every Puritan Record you buy.

Dealers: The Puritan Proposition is unusually attractive—Write for it.

The Puritan plays all records—plays them as only a long horn phonograph can. Go to the Puritan store near you for a demonstration.

How Miss Jackson secured a better position—

I met her coming home one night on the car. She was in such good spirits that I commented on it.

"What makes you so happy, Mary?" I asked. "Why, you seem like an altogether different girl."

Mary smiled. "I really believe that I am. For once in my life I am gloriously happy with my work. I feel that I am of some importance—that I am actually doing something worth-while.

"One year ago I was just one of a dozen girls in the office. I did one thing one day and another the next. I didn't seem to be getting anywhere. I was drifting.

"Then one day I got interested in a book on filing. It was a revelation. I had never realized before that filing is such an important part of business.

"I wanted to learn more about it, so I wrote to Miss Gladys C. Bridges, the principal of the Illinois School of Filing.

"Two or three days before I finished the course, Miss Bridges came to me and said she already had a position for me.

"It is a real position, too. The work is pleasant and interesting and I meet nice people. As I said before, I feel that I am doing something worth while. I am making $22.50 a week and just starting."

Mary stopped a minute to arrange her new and very becoming hat. Then she asked me if I had ever read the book called "Filing as a profession for women."

I said I had not.

Mary wrote the address of the Illinois School of Filing on a piece of paper and handed it to me.

"Write for it tomorrow," she said earnestly, "and see if it doesn't appeal to you. Or if you get a chance, drop in to see Miss Gladys C. Bridges personally at 116 S. Michigan Ave. She will be glad to tell you about the work and its opportunities."

Gum neglect is worse than tooth decay

Tooth decay can be repaired by your dentist. But neglected gums—gums that bleed easily, become soft and tender, start to recede—open the way to pyorrhea.

Pyorrhea starts with irritation and infection of the gum tissue. If unchecked, this infection spreads to the bony root sockets.

The sockets hold your teeth in place. They are the foundation upon which the teeth depend; if socket destruction reaches a certain point as a result of pyorrhea, your teeth loosen and fall out, or must be extracted. No dentist can save them, then. All the time and care you have spent in keeping them white and clean is wasted.

So, if you want to save your teeth—watch your gums! Keep them firm and healthy.

Pyorrhocide Powder was compounded for the specific purpose of maintaining and restoring gum health. In addition to its ingredients which keep the teeth white and clean, it is medicated with Dentinol, a germicidal and healing agent widely used by the dental profession in the treatment of pyorrhea at the dentist's chair.

Pyorrhocide Powder tones up the gums, stimulates their blood circulation, maintains hardness and firmness, thereby increasing the power to resist pyorrhea infection. Its effectiveness for this purpose has been conclusively proved by thorough tests in clinics devoted exclusively to pyorrhea study and research. That is why dentists everywhere recommend it.

The economical dollar package contains six months' supply. At all druggists and dental supply houses.

Season's Third Cohan Venture Is Marked Success

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—After two unpromising starts this year as an independent producer, George M. Cohan was not of a mind to take any unnecessary chances with his third venture, which is "The Meanest Man in the World." Both "Genius and the Crowd" and "The Tavern" failed to live up to his expectations, and after trying "The Meanest Man" on the road, first with Alan Dinehart and then with Frank Thomas in the principal rôle, he decided at the last minute to play the part himself, at least until the play got under way in New York.

As a result he has a promising success to his credit—so long as he is willing to play in it. There is no questioning the personal popularity of this lad. He is, I believe, the best liked, partly because he is the best known, player in the American theater.

In this pleasant little comedy the part he plays is that of a college man, a graduate of a law school. And he is not at all the type, which he himself would be the first to admit. But that fact does not in the least interfere with his success. His audiences love him for himself alone, and he can cock his hat over the corner of his right eye the while he is addressing the heroine in her own home with absolute impunity. Any other college man would be laughed out of the theater for so doing, but not George M. Even as captious a critic as George Jean Nathan will readily forgive him.

"The Meanest Man in the World" has to do with a young sentimentalist who is a failure as a lawyer. He hasn't the heart to serve a dispossess notice. And if he earns a fee to which he feels he is not entitled he straightway gives it to the misjudged client of his adversary. Finally, after a five year struggle, when he is about to lose his offices for nonpayment of rent, he is given one more chance by a friendly client. If he will go to a small town in Pennsylvania and collect a long overdue account, and prove by the collection that he can be "hard" and "mean"—as mean as the meanest man in the morld—he will be given another chance.

He accepts the challege, goes to the Pennsylvania village, and then discovers that the firm from whom he is to make the collection is represented by the orphaned daughter of the man who established the business. He also learns that she is the owner of certain abandoned acres which are likely to produce oil, and that the village usurer is about to cheat her out of them. So he straightway engages himself to her as her lawyer, and by the time the last act is reached has been able to turn "a bum town into a boom town," in which everybody has become wealthy enough to support evening clothes. Meanness, he preaches, never pays for long, and the really successful man must be ruled by his heart rather than his head.

Another of the "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" series, this three act combination of wholesome hokum and snappy dialogue. The first act is particularly racy and delights its audiences. After that the descent toward the expected conclusion is a little disappointing, but no one seems to mind. Cohan's performance is replete with those convincing touches of genuineness in character accentuation which endear him to his following, and is technically, overlooking his fitness for the type, as perfect as any actor is able to give. He is ably assisted by Marion Coakley and Ralph Sipperly.

Without lifting the "S" volume of the encyclopedia can anyone present tell teacher who Haym Salomon was? Or what he did for his country? No? Well, teacher is not surprised. He wasn't so very sure himself. Haym Salomon, children, was the patriotic Jew who loaned George Washington money with which to finance the revolution during and following the retreat of the continentals across what is now Washington Heights and was in 1776 a wooded wilderness to the north of New York.

Louis Mann knew about him. Or heard of him last season when a play with Salomon as the hero was submitted to him by Samuel Shipman and Victor Victor. And he promptly elected to play him—partly because he liked the play and partly because Louis, being a Jew, has a pardonable pride of race.

The play is called "The Unwritten Chapter," and it begins with a prologue in which one of Haym Salomon's descendants, a hero in the recent world war, has been invited to the home of a wealthy New York bounder who boasts that no Jew has ever broken bread with him, or ever will. The bounder's son has done the inviting, because young Salomon is the boy who saved his life over there, but father insists the invitation shall be withdrawn. Whereupon the son offers to wager his proud pater that, if he will agree to meet the unwelcome guest, he will not only suffer an immediate change of heart toward the Jewish race, but will himself insist that the invitation hold.

The war hero comes; the snobbish father engages him in conversation and during their talk hears the story of Haym Salomon's sacrifices for America. As the story is begun the scene darkens and the incidents attendant upon the great Jew's revolutionary record are enacted. Haym is shown in his home, as a patriotic supporter of Gen. Washington when the American congress was treating the father of his country rather roughly. There is a Sabbath eve meeting of wealthy Jews whom Salomon induces to loan their gold to the cause of liberty, culminating in his imprisonment by Gen. Howe of the British army and his sentence to be shot at dawn.

Then back to the scene in 1920, the conclusion of the story and the account of Salomon's escape. By this time father is convinced that "we are all Americans after all," young Salomon is urged to stay to dinner and the son wins his wager.

It isn't much of a play, being slow-paced as drama and rather deliberately studded with patriotic speeches in defense of loyalists of all creeds. But it serves a purpose in reminding the forgetful that there was such a man as Haym Salomon. Mr. Mann, without his dialect and with little chance to employ his talent as a comedian, gives a conventionally sympathetic performance as the hero, and is capably assisted by a cast that includes Lucille Watson, Arleen Hackett and Frank Kingdon.

Another new play of the week was "The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer," a frank study of the temperamental actress as represented by Mrs. Patrick Campbell. Mary Young, a popular player in Boston and a gifted actress, plays the Campbell rôle and is amazingly like the Englishwoman in vocal intonations and in those fascinating characteristics that have stamped Mrs. Pat as an outstanding personality of the theater. It is so good an imitation, in fact, that it weakens the character's effectiveness in the drama.

The story has to do with Mrs. Michael Palmer's loyalty to her soldier son—the one person in the world for whom she cares. So strong is her love for him that it breeds an unreasoning jealousy, and she is tempted to boast of his alleged illegitimacy in order to separate him from his fiancée. When she is beaten she admits the boast to be a lie.

The play has had a considerable success in Boston, where the excellent performance of Miss Young carried it. In New York, where she is not at all well known, the play's future is still in doubt.

"Kissing Time," a new musical comedy, is the conventional assembling of those features that go to make up the average entertainment of its kind—a book in which the humor is more or less deadly, and the tunes passing fair. At stated intervals the chorus girls place their hands on each other's hips and weave the familiar snake figures about the stage, after which the hero and the heroine sing a duet and the comedian enlivens the proceedings by insisting that chicanery is afoot and the "cure for chicanery is chicory," whatever that means. There are a half dozen songs that earn encores and a cast that includes William Norris, Edith Taliaferro, and Dorothy Maynard.

Women With Large Feet

have told us that they are happy to find a shop where they receive the most gracious treatment in the selection of their footwear. Women who have been made sensitive by the tactless service they have met elsewhere, will find that in the Cantilever Shop they are courteously welcomed and carefully fitted.

Cantilever Shoes are particularly suited to the needs of large women. The natural inner sole line, permitting the toes to point straight ahead, distributes the weight so that no undue stress falls on the arch. Cantilevers encourage an easy posture; if you are much on your feet you will enjoy the comfort of Cantilever Shoes.

Pulling the laces draws up the underarch sole to meet and uphold the instep. And the shank is not rigid, as in ordinary footwear. The shank of Cantilever Shoes flexes with the foot, allowing the muscles to exercise with freedom. Cantilever Shoes prevent and correct fallen arches by exercising and strengthening the feet.

A graceful boot in black kid, dark tan calf, Havana brown, kid and white Egyptian cloth.

Eatmor Cranberries

Now is the Time to Buy Cranberries for Preserving!

Then you can enjoy the delicious tart flavor of this health-giving fruit every day in the year.

Cranberries are reasonable in price. They are easily and quickly prepared—no peeling—no cores—no waste. Economical!

Try these recipes:

Cranberry Jelly

Cook until soft the desired quantity of cranberries with 1½ pints of water for each two quarts of berries. Strain the juice through a jelly bag.

Measure the juice and heat it to the boiling point. Add one cup of sugar for every two cups of juice; stir until the sugar is dissolved; boil briskly for five minutes; skim, and pour into glass tumblers, porcelain or crockery molds.

Cranberry Butter

Three pints cranberries, ½ cup water, 2 cups sugar. Cook the cranberries and water until the skins of the fruit are broken; then press through a sieve, and cook this pulp until it becomes quite thick; add the sugar and cook for ½ hour over a very gentle fire, stirring constantly. When slightly cool turn into jars, and cover closely. This makes a delicious and healthful spread on hot biscuits, bread, buttered toast, or cake.

Cranberry Sauce

One quart cranberries, two cups boiling water, 1½ to 2 cups sugar. Boil sugar and water together for five minutes; skim; add the cranberries and boil without stirring (five minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins are broken. Remove from the fire when the popping stops.

Strained Cranberry Sauce

If a strained sauce is preferred, cook the cranberries and water; then press through the strainer, keeping back the skins; add the sugar and finish the cooking as suggested.

Cook cranberries in porcelain-lined, enameled or aluminum vessels—never in tin.

To be sure of a selection of the choicest, cultivated varieties—ask for EATMOR CRANBERRIES.

A recipe folder, containing many ways to use and preserve cranberries, will be sent free on request.

UILD ROADS TO MEET OURS," COOK COUNTY TELLS STATE

rty Miles of rd Surfacing Sets Fast Pace way Department s Important Arter- s Into the City

BY J. L. JENKINS.

EE thousand miles of perma- nt roads might have been built Illinois this year if every dis- ict had maintained the highway ction pace set by Cook county. ds authorities throughout the y have spent the 1920 building bewailing conditions which, clare, have made it next to im- to lay down permanent trunk Yet Cook county, laboring under tical hardships, excessive costs, y of labor and materials and proper transportation facilities, ady completed thirty-one miles fifty-six that the county board wn as its 1920 goal.

me out and beat the record," is eerful invitation issued by the board to like organizations tate, "come on and meet us with good roads. It can be done!"

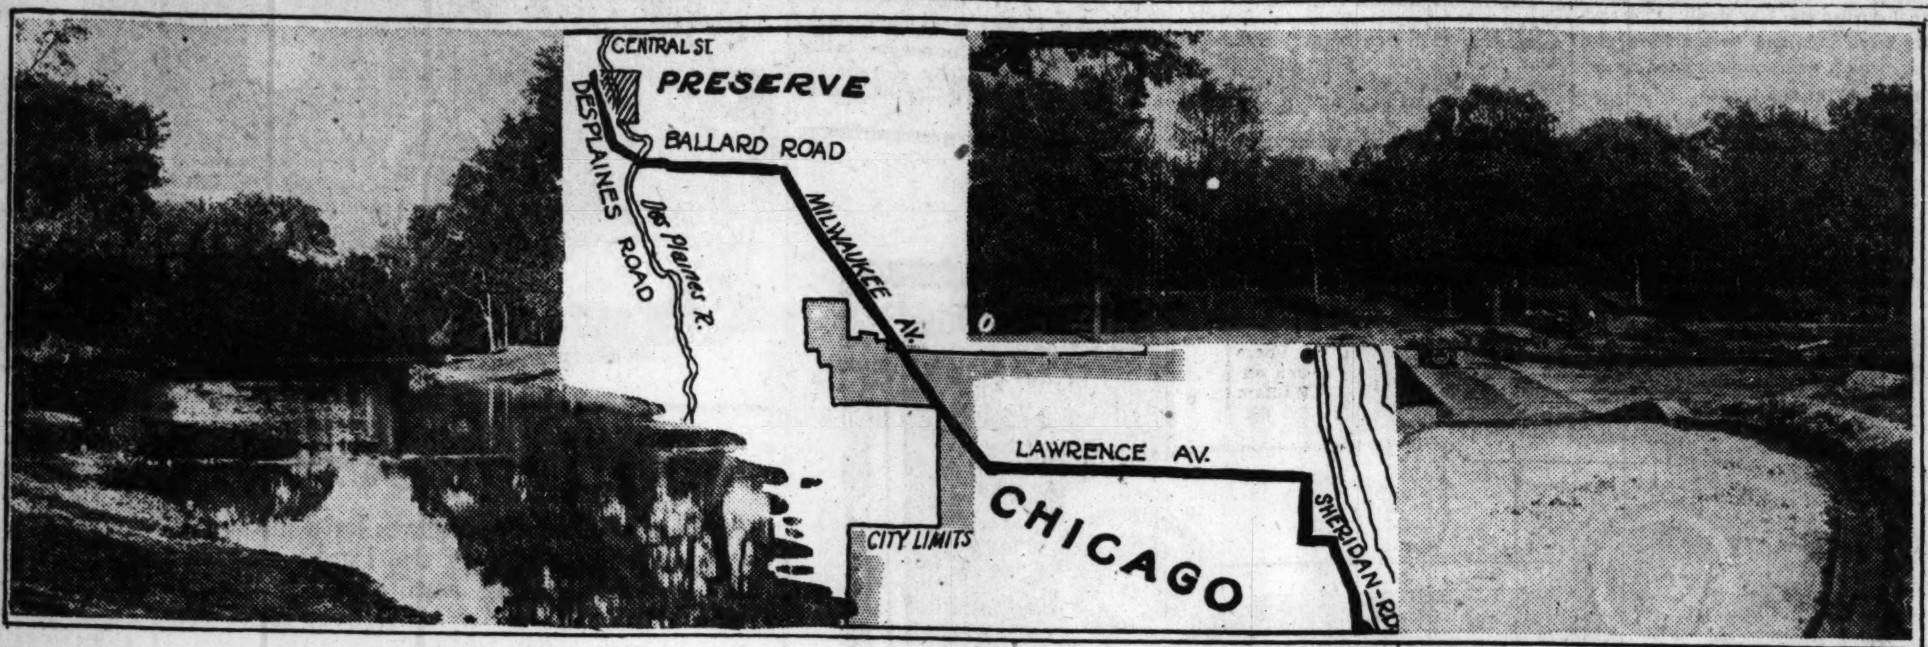
rd members are highly elated the showing made by the county ay department and its contract- ho, during the adverse year, have a construction campaign that equired hard fighting for every of road surface. They are par- rly pleased with the generalship has opened transportation arter- onnecting Chicago with the prin- production centers of the county dition to carrying concrete roads nnect at the county lines with the rtant state trunks and main high- leading to the larger cities.

orts compiled for the federal gov- nt last week by the highway rtment show 7¼ miles of paving leted on the important Archer e contract, which will give direct ections to the southwestern in- ial district; 6½ miles completed on Ogden avenue link into the same et; 5 miles finished on the Hig- oad, bringing concrete transpor- o hundreds of truck gardens and as far as the west county line, l as a direct hard road for twenty-five miles into Elgin; 3 miles connecting the gaps in the Waukegan road for heavy north county travel, and other vital links in the county's highway circulation system.

The Higgins, Waukegan, and Lincoln highway contracts are now practically complete and the new concrete stretches are being allowed to harden sufficiently before they are thrown open to traffic. One mile remains to be finished on the Ogden avenue job, and a quarter mile still remains on the Archer avenue contract. Other work to be completed before the season closes includes: One-half mile on the Canfield road; 2¼ miles on State street leading into Glenwood; less than a half mile on Western avenue, and less than a quarter mile on Twenty-second street. This leaves a total of 6.95 miles to be finished before snow flies. About eighteen miles of work on these contracts will be carried over for completion next spring.

Here are the present blockades on important county roads, a table of consequence to the Chicago motorist: The stretch on the Waukegan road connecting with Milwaukee avenue at Niles, to be open Nov. 1; road open otherwise from Dempster street to Dundee road; half mile in Twenty-second street closed west of Berwyn; Ogden avenue closed both east and west of Lyons; short stretch in Archer avenue incompleted just north of Summit; short stretch in Chicago-Joliet road closed just west of Archer avenue connection, to be opened Nov. 1. To reach Joliet now take Western avenue to Ninety-fifth street, right to Kean avenue, right to Justice, and left in Archer avenue to Lockport. The new Lincoln highway stretch leading into South Chicago Heights will be open to traffic about Nov. 20.

INTO INDIAN SUMMER—A SUNDAY RUN TO THE FOREST PRESERVES



REMEMBER way back when—October meant walnuts and woodland wanderings? Indian summer is waiting for you now in the forest preserves—15,000 acres of unspoiled wilderness and every inch of it yours for the taking. Drive out today over the concrete roads, the bridges, fords, and pathways built to help the motorist enjoy Chicago's great natural wonderland. Gather the nuts, meet nature in her carnival colors, and learn at first hand why hundreds of pilgrims have come hundreds of miles to revel in the primeval beauties that you allow to go to waste at your own front door. The Desplaines river valley, a twenty-one mile stretch of superb woodland pictured here, is easily accessible. Here's the way to go:

California Kids Find Method to Beat Reformers

CHAOS in state reform institutions and city schools will be brought about by motorists in California if they don't stop giving strange children free rides.

This fact has been conveyed to the officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California by state reform officers and by the chief probation officer of Los Angeles county. According to the club, it is not a whim but a serious fact.

Children everywhere are begging rides along the streets and roads in the southern counties, say motorists, and it is hard to refuse them. But motorists should figure the consequences of such an act, points out the auto club, for not only is the driver of the car responsible for the safety of those riding with him, but he is also liable for heavy damages if a strange child is hurt while in his machine.

Further than this, however, the truancy officers report that free rides given by motorists do more than any other one thing to encourage "ditching" from schools and classrooms. It is just as dangerous to give a child a free ride as it is for him to steal a ride on the back of a truck.

Boys and girls who succeed in escaping from state reform schools are often helped in this by motorists who give them free rides along the road. It enables the children to evade the vigilance of the officers.

THE WORLD'S WORST ROAD

You've been over it. Unburden yourself by addressing "World's Worst Road." The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. Give the exact location of the stretch you struck. The Tribune will pay $1 for each letter published.

Wauconda vs. Milan.

Recently I noticed a script about Wauconda's main street in your picturesque column. I have traveled it, and the story is all true enough; but I maintain that Milan's main street has it backed off the road map for rottenness. The horror begins at the steel dam of the Rock river outside of Rock Island, and extends as the main street through Milan. If one has ever ridden the "witching waves" or played crack-the-whip, he will have a conception of what it is to travel this road at five miles an hour. This is no Andy Gump stuff. It's the nearest I can come to the touring sensation.

E. J. R.

Echo!

We wouldn't feel so much like singing "We're Marching to Zion" if we thought the roads to that final home were anything like those leading through the place named after it—what?

MRS. F. G. D.

Picturesque.

Why argue further? Of course the worst road in the world is the rocky one between Flagstaff and Winslow, Ariz. We were coming down from the Grand cañon some time ago and struck the rock pile in the forenoon. When we completed its forty-five miles of bowlders and ruts it was late at night. During the time we passed just one man, a herder, who was talking to his sheep—I suppose his mind was wandering after traveling that road afoot—one automobile, and just two trees. If they haven't fixed that part of the Santa Fé trail yet I will gladly donate THE TRIBUNE dollar to the cause.

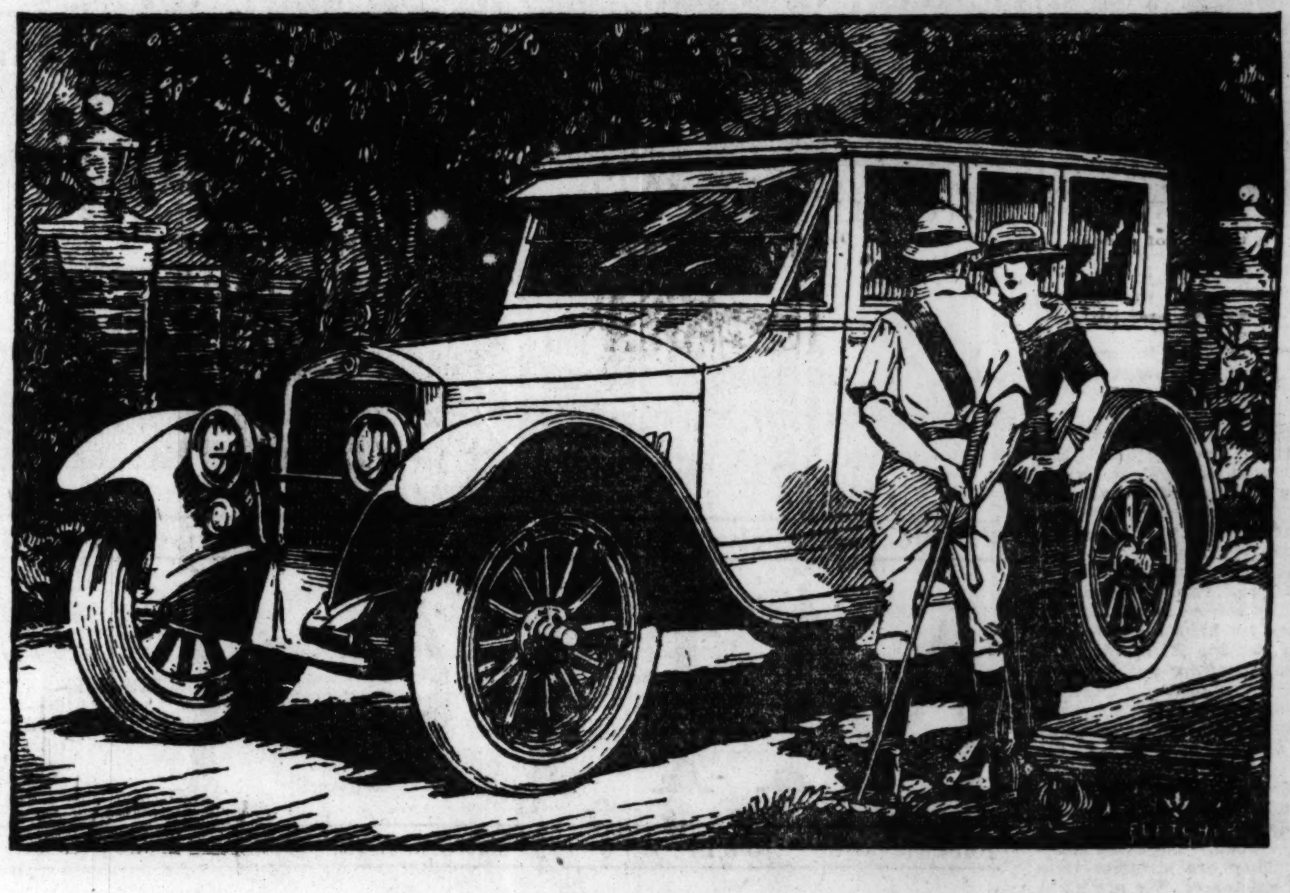
STANDARD EIGHT



A POWERFUL CAR

The joy of motoring, like most of the joys of life, comes from the use of power.

To be conscious that there is no hill you need to avoid, no motor-way where your car cannot, without effort, hold your place on the road, is to realize the top joy of automobiling.

Some say that this happiness which lies in the sense of power is just plain vanity. Call it whatever you will, every car owner likes the sensation which comes from the control of power.

Tremendous power, under perfect control, is what every Standard Eight owner always has in his car. Its motor actually levels hills.

Flying Advances in Giant Zooms Every Day of Year

You Must Visit Fields Every Day to Keep Pace

RESEARCH

BY MORROW KRUM.

"AN absence of a month from experimental flying fields will leave an aeronautical expert woefully behind the times," said Lieut. H. R. Harris, officer in charge of test flights at McCook field, Dayton, O., to a visitor last week.

A tour of this army air service research station is sufficient to convince one of the truth of his statement.

This field, upon which the few successful battle planes were developed during the war, is located on the edge of the Ohio city. The hangars, living quarters, research buildings, and flying field occupy 254 acres.

Maj. T. H. Bane is the commandant. At present he is on leave. Maj. A. L. Hobley is acting commanding officer. Capt. H. S. Martin is the chief engineer. Maj. V. E. Clark has charge of airplane design. During the absence of Maj. Rudolph W. Schroeder, Lieut. Harris, a multi-motored expert pilot, has charge of test flights, and Maj. G. E. A. Hallett is head of the aero motors division.

There are forty-eight officers on the field, twenty-three high grade master signal electricians, who are the only enlisted men on the field, and 1,250 civilian employês.

This is said to be the only field working on war basis. The civilian employês start at 8 o'clock in the morning and quit at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The soldiers work on the same basis, except the test pilots, who are in the air with the dawn, and many times late into the night.

Dayton probably sees more advanced flying than any city in the country. All day long the sharp staccato of the Hispano-Suizi, the thunderous roar of the Liberty, the even purr of the rotary motor, and the mournful whine of flying wires on fast gliding ships keep the citizens of this city constantly aware of the presence of the most modern inventions. A twin motored armored triplane roaring over the downtown district will hardly cause a head to turn to the sky, so sophisticated in aviation are the people.

Let us accompany Lieut. Harris through the hangars.

At the entrance is the air foil construction room. The men are putting the latest design of camouflage on the wings of a cross country D. H. Half circles, having a radius of about five inches, colored in green, pink, silver, white, maroon, and pale yellow are painted on the wings. It is said this ship becomes almost invisible at 3,000 feet.

"When they silence the motors this will be a phantom ship," says Lieut. Harris.

Then we go to the hangar proper.

The first ship in the long line is the parachute test ship. A big D. H. rigged for the testing of 'chutes under all conditions. The back of the pilot's seat is lined with polished metal, as is the observer's seat.

"American people are wondering why we haven't made more progress in parachutes," remarks Lieut. Harris. "The progress we have made is surprising. You can see from this ship. A man can sit in either one of those two cockpits with a packed parachute strapped on his back. When we make a test the man slides out of his seat into the air and starts a drop to the ground.

"After a drop of about 200 feet he feels the chute jerk open and then sails slowly down to the ground. Our chutes always open. They are absolutely safe. They are stronger than any chute in existence. We are miles ahead of France and England.

"The old idea of a war machine being set on fire by tracer bullets, the pilot jumping from the ship and falling to his death is gone. Now if anything happens to a ship the men aboard will just slide out into the air, release their chutes, and descend safely to the ground."

Next comes a big D. H. with the gasoline tank moved forward ahead of both pilot and observer. This ship carries a nine hour supply of gas. There are big Handley-Page tires on the landing gear, suitable for cross country chance landings. The ship is equipped with wireless, carries heavy bombs, four machine guns; has a signal light under the fuselage—a modern reconnaissance ship of remarkable ability.

"Flies at 100 miles an hour—carries pilot and gunner, camera, wireless, bombs, machine guns—duration of flight about nine hours—great ship, a great ship," says Harris.

"This is the Vought training ship," he continues, "better than the Curtiss for teaching men how to fly. We only have a few Curtiss Jennys left, two or three for wireless work. There is one over there. They take it out and float around up there for hours at a time, making experiments with wireless."

The walk continues around the "ordnance" ships, now called Orenco, bombing D. H. ships, the new armored G. A. X. triplane, the big Martins, the tiny Thomas Morse scouts, the Leperes, a Fokker, a Sopworth, a Briguet, a Spad, an S. E. 5, and Maj. Schroeder's altitude record ship.

Each ship bears new features. A new control on this one, a novel placement of machine guns on that, modern stream lining on the one over there. Any ship in the long hangar will fly circles around the planes that fought the war.

The tour of McCook field will be continued next Sunday in this department.

ONE ARMED PILOT

C. E. Lay, president of the Cincinnati Aircraft company, has the distinction of being the only one-armed pilot in the world. His right arm was torn off in an accident, yet he flies his own ship every day.

Fort Sill, Okla.

Ground gunnery constituted the work in the air service observation school during the last week. Good results were obtained in machine gun firing, which was supplemented by excellent work at the traps.

Flight B, 104th air squadron, commanded by Lieut. Raley, arrived during the week from Kelly field for temporary duty. Lieut. Meyer and thirty enlisted men arrived by train on Sept. 8, and Lieuts. Raley, Sheridan, Moon, White, and Larson, with one mechanic each, arrived in five DH-4-B airplanes Sept. 10. They have been attached to the 135th observation squadron, and are coöperating in the activities of the school.

Pope Field.

Three successful artillery shoots were conducted with the 5th brigade, Camp Bragg, N. C., during the week. Remarkable results were obtained in all problems fired. This success is due greatly to the wonderful coöperation received from the artillery officers of Camp Bragg.

MITCHELL

There were only 250 miles of railroad in 1834 when Mitchell was founded

A Mitchell Sedan brings constant enjoyment . . .

We are very proud of the Mitchell Sedan and the many compliments it is receiving.

We would like to have you come in and see this excellent example of fine coach-building. And to see also the Mitchell Coupe.

These closed cars bring unusual advantages. There are many new improvements, many interesting refinements.

They typify the Mitchell policy of building well. They show what years of experience can bring.

They combine smart appearance with great comfort. And they are sturdily built. The upholstery is of rich, velvety velour. The fittings, the carpeting, and all the details show fine craftsmanship and a sincere desire to give full value.

Before you decide upon which car, inspect these Mitchells. We are certain that you will join in approving them and that one of these Mitchell models will be your choice.

Oldsmobile

Integrity of Value Permits No Price Reduction

The thinking man digs deeper than the surface; he knows that back of the sensational price reductions being announced on automobiles must lie reasons.

He knows that prices which have not been inflated cannot be deflated. The puncturing of the abnormal price balloon does not influence his judgment of values.

When manufacturers proclaim themselves martyrs for the public good in taking a loss by reducing prices, he sees further—it is the public that bought their cars at swollen prices who stand the greatest loss; for the amount of those reductions will be added to the usual and normal depreciation when they trade their cars in.

He recognizes in the Oldsmobile a car—and a car value of integrity. In its twenty-three years the Oldsmobile has been consistently and honestly priced on the lowest possible basis considering Oldsmobile quality.

It has always represented and it represents today the greatest value we can possibly give—not the highest price we can get.

The common opinion that the Oldsmobile must be a high-priced car, the genuine surprise of many Oldsmobile buyers when they find out how low the Oldsmobile price actually is, evidences the great value it represents.

Students of comparative motor car values find in the Oldsmobile a genuine dollar-for-dollar price advantage—a value advantage that holds good today and that the Olds Motor Works intends to maintain. They also know that the price raise on the Oldsmobile in the last four years was approximately 24 per cent less than the average.

The quality that has made the Oldsmobile the choice of the discriminating, regardless of price, will never be compromised.

The honest price that has made the Oldsmobile the outstanding motor car value contains no profiteering that can be eliminated.

We do not anticipate a reduction in the price of present Oldsmobile models. We state honestly that there is not, in our opinion, a better buy in motordom. And to the shrewd buyers who desire a car such as the Oldsmobile we give the assurance of guaranteeing prices on current Oldsmobile models to July 1, 1921

Should the factors that enter into Oldsmobile making, skilled labor and high quality materials, reduce in cost, enabling the Olds Motor Works to reduce Oldsmobile prices in the meantime, the amount of that reduction will be refunded to everyone who buys an Oldsmobile of present models between Oct. 1st, 1920, and July 1st, 1921.

Time Payments If Desired

The General Motors Corporation have met the present money situation by establishing their own Finance Division, known as the General Motors Acceptance Corporation. Their retail and wholesale time payment plans are very liberal and satisfactory.

HALLOW-E'EN LORE

by Doris Blake

MAUDE MARTIN ELLIS

HALLOW-E'EN or Hallow-even is the last night of October, the eve of All Saints' day. This holiday is endowed with more mischief-making, witchery, ghosts, elves, and fairies than any other of the festive days of the year. Prying into the future with tests innumerable has been the chief source of amusement at every Hallow-e'en party. Just for your amusement and to help make your Hallow-e'en party a greater success, I will give you some of the popular methods of fortune-telling for that evening.

APPLE SEEDS: Take two wet apple seeds and stick them on the forehead, after giving each one the name of a possible suitor. The first seed to fall is the fickle one and not the one in whom your hope may be placed.

APPLE PARINGS: Peel an apple without breaking the peel. Then swing this whole paring around the head, and let it drop to the floor. The letter formed is the initial of your future mate's name.

APPLESEED TEST: Eat an apple to the core; then pick out the seeds therefrom. If only two are found, that portends an early marriage; three, a legacy; four, great wealth; five, journey; six; great fame; seven, possession of the things you wish for most on earth.

RAISIN TEST: String a raisin on a thread a yard long, and let two persons hold the string in the mouth. Whichever reaches the raisin first by chewing the string will be wedded first. Be sure to have the raisin exactly in the middle of the string between the opponents.

TRUE LOVE TEST: Throw two nuts into the hot coals after secretly giving a sweetheart's name to each. If one nut bursts, that means the sweetheart is unfaithful, but if it burns with a steady glow until it becomes ashes, that sweetheart will be true to the end. If both nuts burn steadily, the maid's heart is sore perplexed, or if both burst, she is in harder luck.

RING AND GOBLET: Take a wedding ring or a key, tie it to a silken thread, and hold it suspended in a glass. Then say the alphabet slowly whenever ring strikes glass, begin over again, and in this way you may speel the name or initials of your future mate.

THREADING A NEEDLE: To find out if you will be married within a year, sit on a round bottle laid lengthwise on the floor, and try to thread a needle. If you succeed on the first attempt, you will be married early.

NEEDLE GAME: Grease as many needles as there are guests, and give them names before putting them in a basin of water. Impelled by attraction of gravitation the needles will act most curiously, some separating, some clinging. The manner in which one person's needle behaves towards another causes amusement, and is supposed to be prophetic.

PUMPKIN ALPHABET: Carve all the letters of the alphabet on a medium sized pupmkin. Put it on a dish, and set on a stand or table. Each guest in turn is blindfolded and given a hatpin, then led to pumpkin, where he or she is expected to stick pin into one of the letters on the pumpkin, thus indicating the initial of future life partner.

JUMPING LIGHTED CANDLE: Place a lighted candle in middle of the floor, not too securely. Each one jumps over it. Whoever succeeds in clearing candle is guaranteed a happy year, free of trouble or anxiety. He who knocks candle over will have a twelve month of woe.

THE FOUR SAUCERS: Place four saucers on table in line. Into first put dirt; into second, water; into third, a ring; into fourth, a rag. Guests are blindfolded and led around table twice; then told to go alone and put fingers into saucer. If they put into dirt, it means divorce; into water, a trip across the ocean; where ring is, to marry; where rag is, never to marry.

Let This Booklet Tell You of the Year-around Allurements of the Pikes Peak Region

Talk to a resident of the Pikes Peak Region for awhile, and you're almost sure to hear that he considers it worth real money to live here—twelve months in every year.

Ask him when he seems to enjoy it most, and he will almost surely say "Fall and winter."

The Chamber of Commerce has prepared a booklet giving an intimate, season-to-season glimpse of the Pikes Peak Region. It's a fittingly handsome booklet.

It tells of Colorado Springs and the Pikes Peak Region as a community; it tells of the climate—the good with the other; it reveals the possibilities for home and social life, for school and college advantages, for the enjoyment of sports, for business—yes, even a chapter on farming prospects; it tells of the Springs of Manitou, with their famous waters and the magnificent new $400,000 Manitou Baths.

It's a booklet which may interest you greatly, whether you think of a different vacation, a change of residence or a new field of business.

It will be sent gladly upon request.

WEST INDIES CRUISES

Continuing the Cruise Successes of last Winter, the American Express Travel Department Announces

Two cruises of twenty-three days each on the palatial steamers of the Great White Fleet

January 15th, S. S. ULUA February 19th, S. S. TOLOA

These new steamers built for cruising in the tropics have all the comforts and conveniences of a modern ocean liner. Nearly all staterooms have windows facing the ocean and many have private bath.

Twenty-four hours out of New York the ship enters the Gulf Stream. Winter is left behind. Cruising on the placid waters of the Caribbean Sea, visiting the quaint and historic cities of the Spanish Main and at the same time enjoying all the luxuries of modern travel, offers the traveler the ideal vacation trip.

Visits will be made to Havana and Santiago, Cuba; Port Antonio and Kingston, Jamaica; Cristobal, Panama Canal; Port Limon and San Jose, Costa Rica; Havana and return to New York. There will be many shore excursions and sight-seeing trips, dancing, deck sports and numerous entertainments on board ship. Everything will be done to make the cruise a perfect success.

Early reservations are recommended as these cruises are most popular and the number of persons on each cruise is limited.

23 days under tropical skies—$450 up—write for details

uthern Illinois rops Doubled by Soil Improvement

By Frank Ridgway.

thinkin, 'bout our Egypt for quite a lengthy spell,
I reckon if I'd talk a week I couldn't rightly tell crops I'm gettin' from what was worn out land,
I limed 'er up, b'gosh, things grow to beat the band.
I didn't take no stock in bildin' up the sile, a banker he persuaded me to give the thing a trile;
man," says he, "your land is sour— you ought to sweeten it;
limestone, phosphates, nitrogen—jist try 'em out a bit."
by heck, I went an' done it—I jist limed her up f'r fair, b'lieve me, crops have doubled! Old Nature's done her share.
is in Egypt, an' both's in Illinois, mark my word—Old Egypt is goin' to make a noise.
Egypt is a section that's been misunderstood,
's got the idee that our land 'ain't any good—
Egypt won't grow nothin' much 'cept chills and ager-cake, woodticks an' miskeeters—which of course is all mistakes.
the truth is jist the opposite, f'r the richiest of the sile rival fields and pastures in the valley of the Nile.
And scenery! Broad prairies roll like ocean waves afar,
While lake and stream where waters gleam, reflect each trembling star.
Our Ozarks, too, have beauty spots with woodsy nook an' glen—
They offer change, and rest, and peace to all the sons of men.
I tell you, folks, Ma an' me have sure renewed our youth;
We're boosters for this Egypt land, an' that's the solium truth;
It'll serve mankind with bounteous hand, an' all its riches give,
An' millions will yet bless the day that they come here to live.
SILAS.

ONLY a few years ago tourists used to stop on the west end of Eads bridge at St. Louis, after crossing the "Libyan Desert" of Egypt, the southern end of Illinois, and tell how lazy, indolent and old fashioned the farmers were in that section. It is a different story today, for the average "Egyptian" farmer is alert, ambitious and progressive in his methods of farming, and they are all becoming boosters for their "empire."

For years the farmers in southern Illinois have been told that no good things could come from Egypt, and many of them believed it themselves. Much of the poor land was branded hopeless. Not all of the people who live in that section believed this and as a result there has been a "pull together" movement launched to make a survey of conditions, resources and possibilities, so the people can boost for their community and tell outsiders what they have in the "Egyptian empire."

Thirty-two Counties Interested.

Farmers, bankers and merchants have recently formed an organization which will work with the farm bureaus to improve agriculture in Egypt. An attempt will be made to develop the natural resources and improve the economic, social, religious and educational conditions in the thirty-two counties that are enlisted in this work. The development of the agricultural possibilities in the lower part of Illinois is a realization of the things Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, "the savior of our soil," dreamed of. He once said: "The Egyptian empire contains more cultivable land than all New England, has the climate of Virginia, and a network of railroads scarcely equaled in any other section of this country, and in addition is more than half surrounded by great navigable rivers." It was Dr. Hopkins who demonstrated how a poor, worn out farm could be improved, and made his tests on his Poorland farm in Egypt.

Awake to Land's Possibilities.

"Dr. Hopkins' teachings have convinced and aroused us to a realization of the possibilities of our soil," said J. P. Gilbert of Carbondale, secretary of the development organization that started its active work last month. "Many of our soils in Egypt were made poor by the lack of foresight which is now being shown by a great many corn belt farmers. We are tremendously concerned in seeing that our farmers do not make this mistake in the future."

More than $25,000 will be spent each year to improve general farming, fruit farming, and dairying. Mountains of limestone deposits are found in Egypt, and plans are being made to establish three or four large crushing plants. Only small amounts of limestone are being dug out in that section now. Most of the limestone spread on the southern Illinois farms is shipped from the Chicago and Kankakee districts.

This is the way Olney, Ill., turned out when the special train of fifty carloads of limestone rolled into town. The limestone was hauled out and spread over the farms around Olney to sweeten the soil, making it possible for farmers to raise clover and other legumes.

Legumes Factors in Improvement.

The use of the limestone, rock phosphate, sweet clover, and other legumes are revolutionizing agriculture in the southern counties. The introduction of soybeans, sunflowers, and other crops have enabled farmers to disregard the chinch bug, corn ear worm, and other serious farm pests in that section. But probably no single factor has had so much to do with improving that part of the state as the application of limestone. Hundreds of carloads are used there every year.

Farm advisers have carried on educational campaigns, encouraging the farmers to use limestone on their farms. In Richland county, for example, 300 carloads of limestone were spread over the farms. The farm bureau handled the orders for 229 cars. This method of improving the soil is rapidly increasing. Before limestone was used on the land little clover and other egumes could be grown for roughage on many of these farms.

"The live stock farmers were trying to grow animals economically on feed not adapted to their particular needs," said H. B. Piper, farm adviser of Richland county. "Dairymen were trying to produce milk and fat on red top as the roughage. Grain farmers and orchardists were seriously handicapped by the low content of organic matter and the nitrogen in the soil. Orchard owners were paying $100 a ton for nitrate and $2 a ton for stockyard manure, primarily because their soil was not in condition to grow legumes—it needed lime."

As a result of the work of bureau men trainloads of limestone have been hauled into Richland and other counties during the last few years. As a result farmers are feeling encouraged and are making a noise about everything in Egypt. They are not confining their stories to great development in the production of their crops, but tell about their dairy cows, oil and gas fields, coal mines, clays, shale deposits, and parks.

It is claimed that many of the large tracts of land in Egypt cannot be surpassed in the production of nuts such as pecans, walnuts, and hickory nuts. One pecan tree produced 1,500 pounds of nuts last year that sold for 20 cents a pound, or a total of $300.

Greatest in Fruit Production.

"But Egypt is greatest in its fruit production," says Mr. Gilbert. "From Effingham to Cairo and from Carmi to East St. Louis large areas are devoted to peach, apple, and pear orchards. The western states have standardized and advertised their products, but many southern Illinois fruits are superior in quality to the boasted products of the west.

"Nature gave us a splendid fruit soil, a location not surpassed, and a climate with length of season and sunlight sufficient to give our apples the texture, flavor, and color most desired, and if our apples were half as well advertised as the California products we could back their apples off the market."

Plans are being made for the development of the fruit growing business. Preserving plants will be established and uniform grading and packing of fruit will be practiced throughout the fruit section, in order to save the culls, get a better market for the best grades of fruit, and eliminate the enormous waste of fruit that rots on the ground most every year.

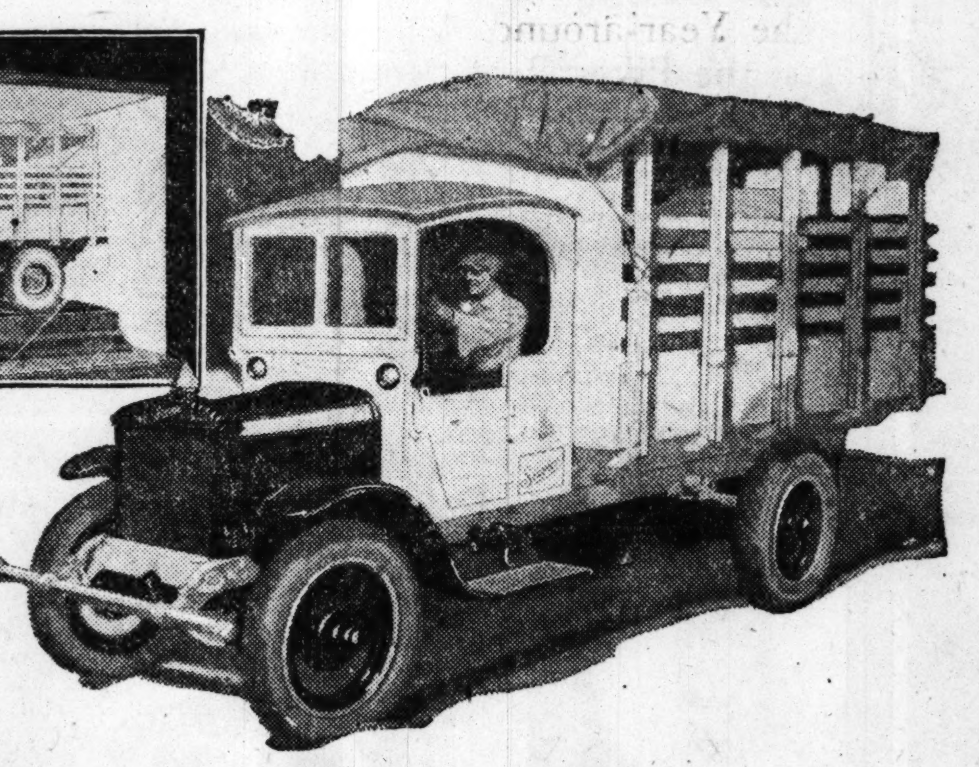
If Motor Trucks Could Operate in Glass Cases

If you could place a motor truck in a glass case, absolutely protected from the Five Fundamental Shocks and Strains which all trucks must meet on the road, and operate it against resistance equivalent to its load capacity, its "works" might remain in good condition indefinitely.



Road Shocks
Their Deteriorating Effects Avoided by SCIENTIFIC CUSHIONING

Chicago motor truck owners and drivers know what a terrific strain these continuous shocks impose upon a truck. They know their ruinous effects. And nowhere has there been more instant recognition of the advantages of the Service method of SCIENTIFIC CUSHIONING.

Results have proved, right here in Chicago, as everywhere else, the value of this scientific system of insulation against shocks, strains and stresses.

The remarkable records of performance and long life made by Service Motor Trucks are due in large measure to this SCIENTIFIC CUSHIONING of the entire mechanism.

It protects not only from Road Shocks but from all five of the deteriorating influences which shorten the life of motor trucks: (1) Load Strains; (2) Road Stresses; (3) Road Shocks; (4) Driving Strains and Shocks; (5) Braking Strains and Shocks.

The ruinous effects of these arch-enemies of motor truck endurance are largely neutralized by this Service method of SCIENTIFIC CUSHIONING.

The entire mechanism of the truck is free to function perfectly without the tremendous handicap of these deleterious shocks, strains and stresses.

And Service Motor Trucks, as a result, are piling up exceptional work and endurance records.

If you are a truck user, you want to know all about this SCIENTIFIC CUSHIONING. Drop in and let us show you just what it means. Or telephone, and we'll call on you.

Our 24-hour service is much appreciated by Chicago owners. We are open all night. "In before 10 P. M. out before 8 A. M." is our slogan.

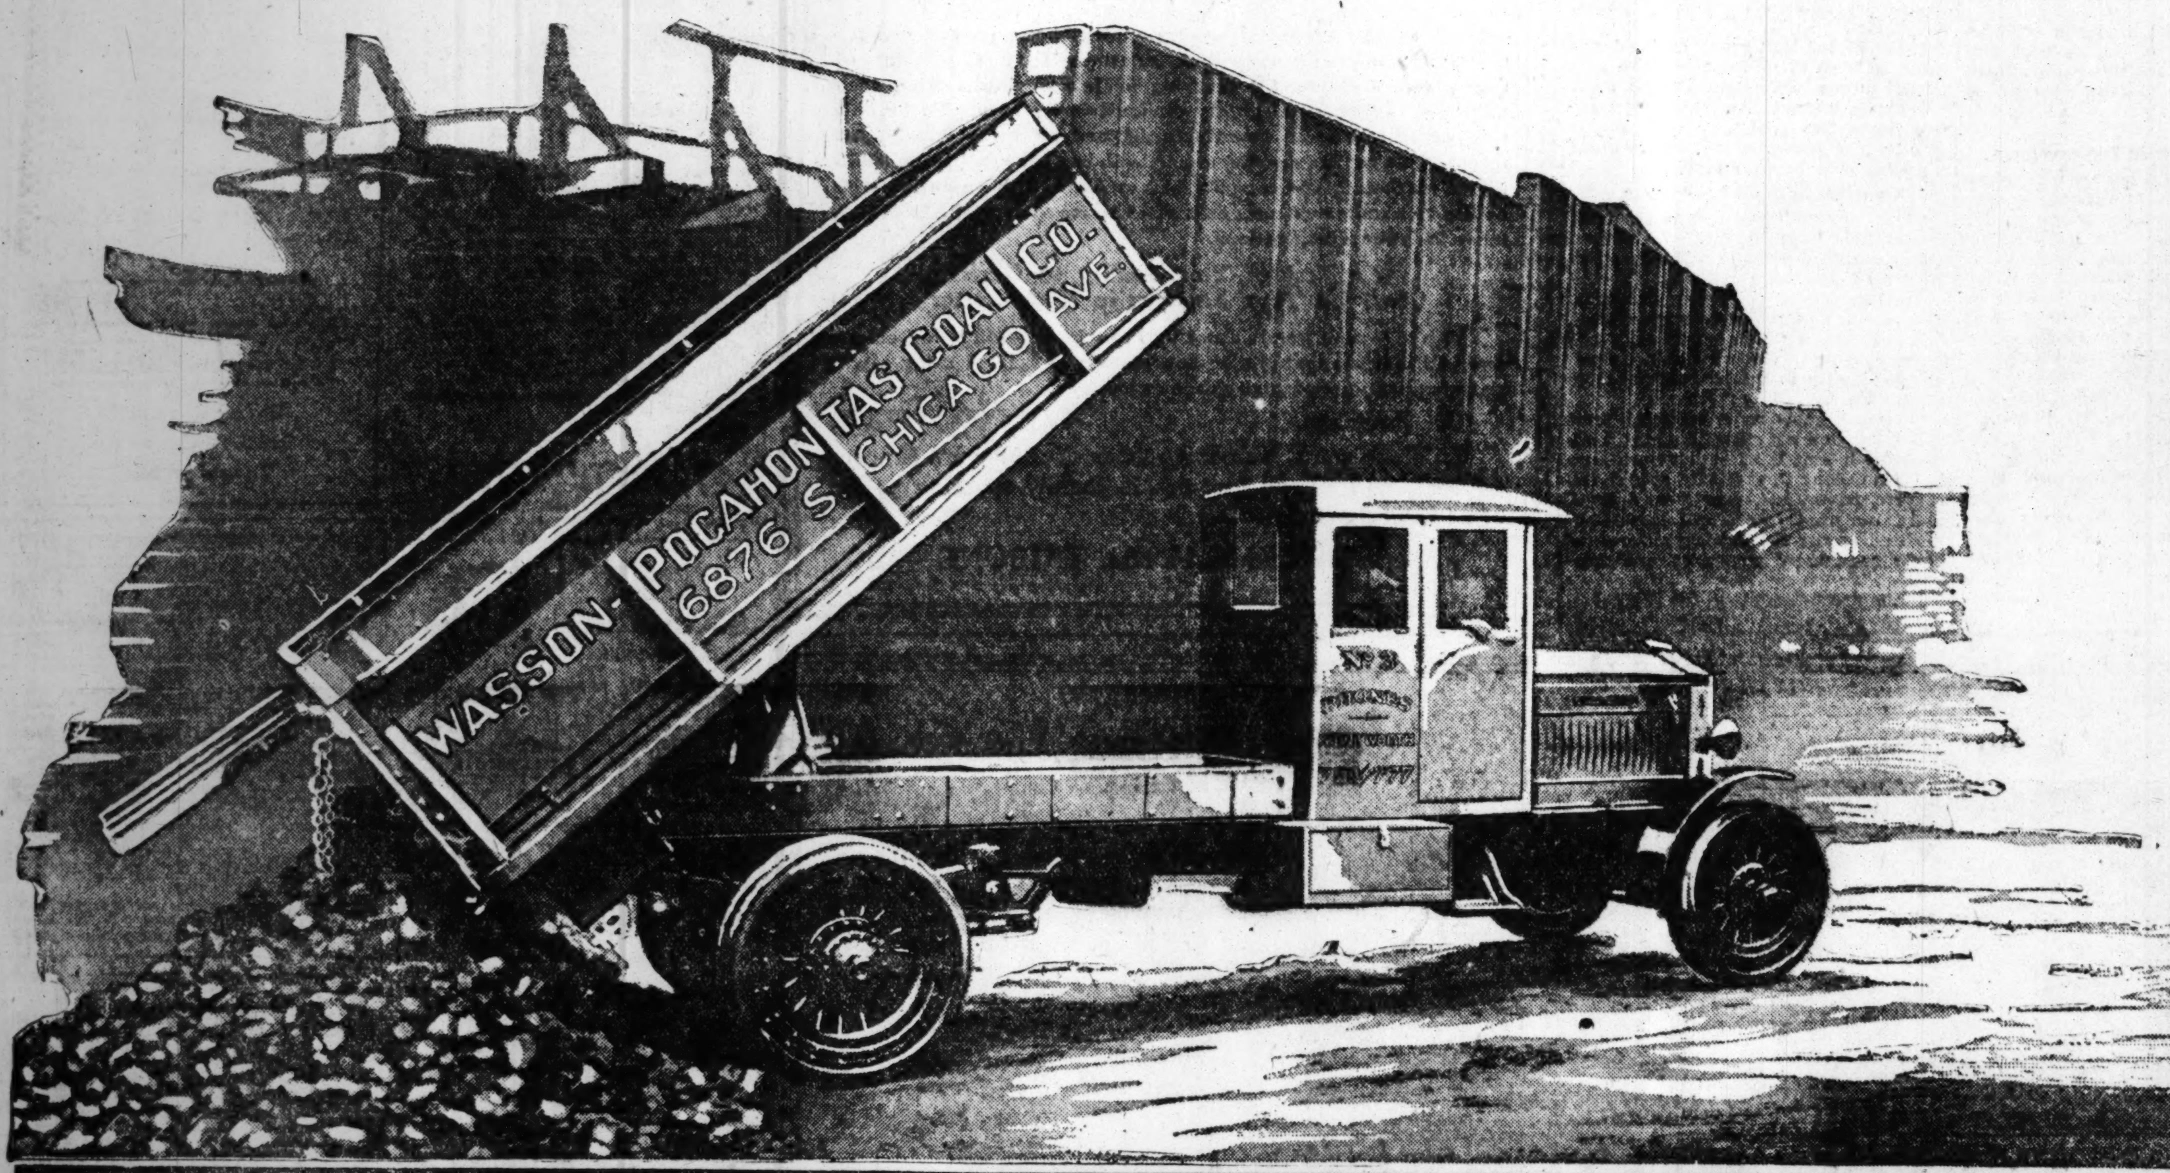
DEPENDABILITY

ONE TRUCK ON THE ROAD IS WORTH TWO IN THE SHOP

THE motor truck is only profitable if it is kept moving. To keep on the road and out of the shop, a truck must meet two important conditions: it must first be dependable in itself, and then it must be properly serviced. Dependability is paramount, though, for sometimes a truck must operate where service is not always instantly available.



WASSON-POCAHONTAS COAL CO.
6876 S. CHICAGO AVE.

AND the Wasson Pocahontas Coal Company of 6876 South Chicago Avenue, through the most severe tests in delivering coal to all parts of Chicago, have learned that Clydesdale service is just as dependable as the trucks themselves, with a factory branch to insure satisfaction. They say:

> "Each truck in our fleet of Clydesdales is delivering from seventy to one hundred tons of coal every day. We fully realize that the service Clydesdale Trucks are giving us is a big factor in maintaining our slogan, 'An order today means coal right away'".

YES, JEFF, MY WIFE HAS FORGIVEN ME AND TAKEN ME BACK BUT I AIN'T AS SOLID WITH HER YET AS I'D LIKE TO BE! THAT'S WHERE YOU CAN HELP ME OUT!
HOW, MUTT?
ALL WOMEN ADMIRE HEROES! FAKE UP A WAR STORY AND MAKE ME OUT A BIG HERO! GET THE IDEA?
SURE! JUST LEAVE IT TO ME, OLD DEAR!
FINE! SHE'S SEWING A DRESS FOR LITTLE CICERO! I'LL TIP YOU OFF WHEN TO SLIP HER AN EARFUL!
JUST SLIP ME A WINK AND I'LL DO THE REST'
HELLO MUTT! I'M SO HAPPY SINCE YOU'VE CUT OUT THE CLUB!
YES, I'M A CHANGED MAN, DEAR! HERE'S LITTLE JEFF!
HOW DE DO, MRS. MUTT!
I SEE CONDITIONS ARE STILL UNSETTLED IN RUSSIA! WAR IS A TERRIBLE THING!
M-M!
YES, MUTT! MANY A SLEEPLESS NIGHT I SPENT WHEN YOU WERE FIGHTING FOR YOUR COUNTRY.
MRS. MUTT, DO YOU KNOW THAT MR. MUTT PERFORMED ONE OF THE MOST HEROIC FEATS OF THE WAR? HE REQUESTED NO PUBLICITY AT THE TIME!
WHY, I NEVER HEARD ABOUT IT! TELL ME ALL ABOUT IT, MUTT!
BUT DEAR, IT WAS NOTHING!
MR. MUTT IS TOO MODEST! IF IT WASN'T FOR HIS MODESTY HE COULD HAVE BEEN AN ADMIRAL OR A GENERAL! I'LL TELL YOU WHAT HE DID!
YES, YES GO ON!
OUR TRANSPORT WAS TORPEDOED AND MUTT AND I CRAWLED ON A RAFT! WE DRIFTED TWO DAYS, WHEN SUDDENLY TWO SUBMARINES APPEARED!
MY WORD!
THE COMMANDERS BOARDED OUR RAFT AND ASKED MUTT FOR A MATCH! HE REACHED IN HIS POCKET BUT INSTEAD OF A MATCH HE PULLED OUT A GUN AND MADE THE 'SUB' COMMANDERS SURRENDER! THEN HE TOOK THE SUBMARINES TO THE NEAREST U.S. SEA PORT
MY HERO! WHICH SEA PORT WAS IT, JEFF?
M-M-M! DENVER!
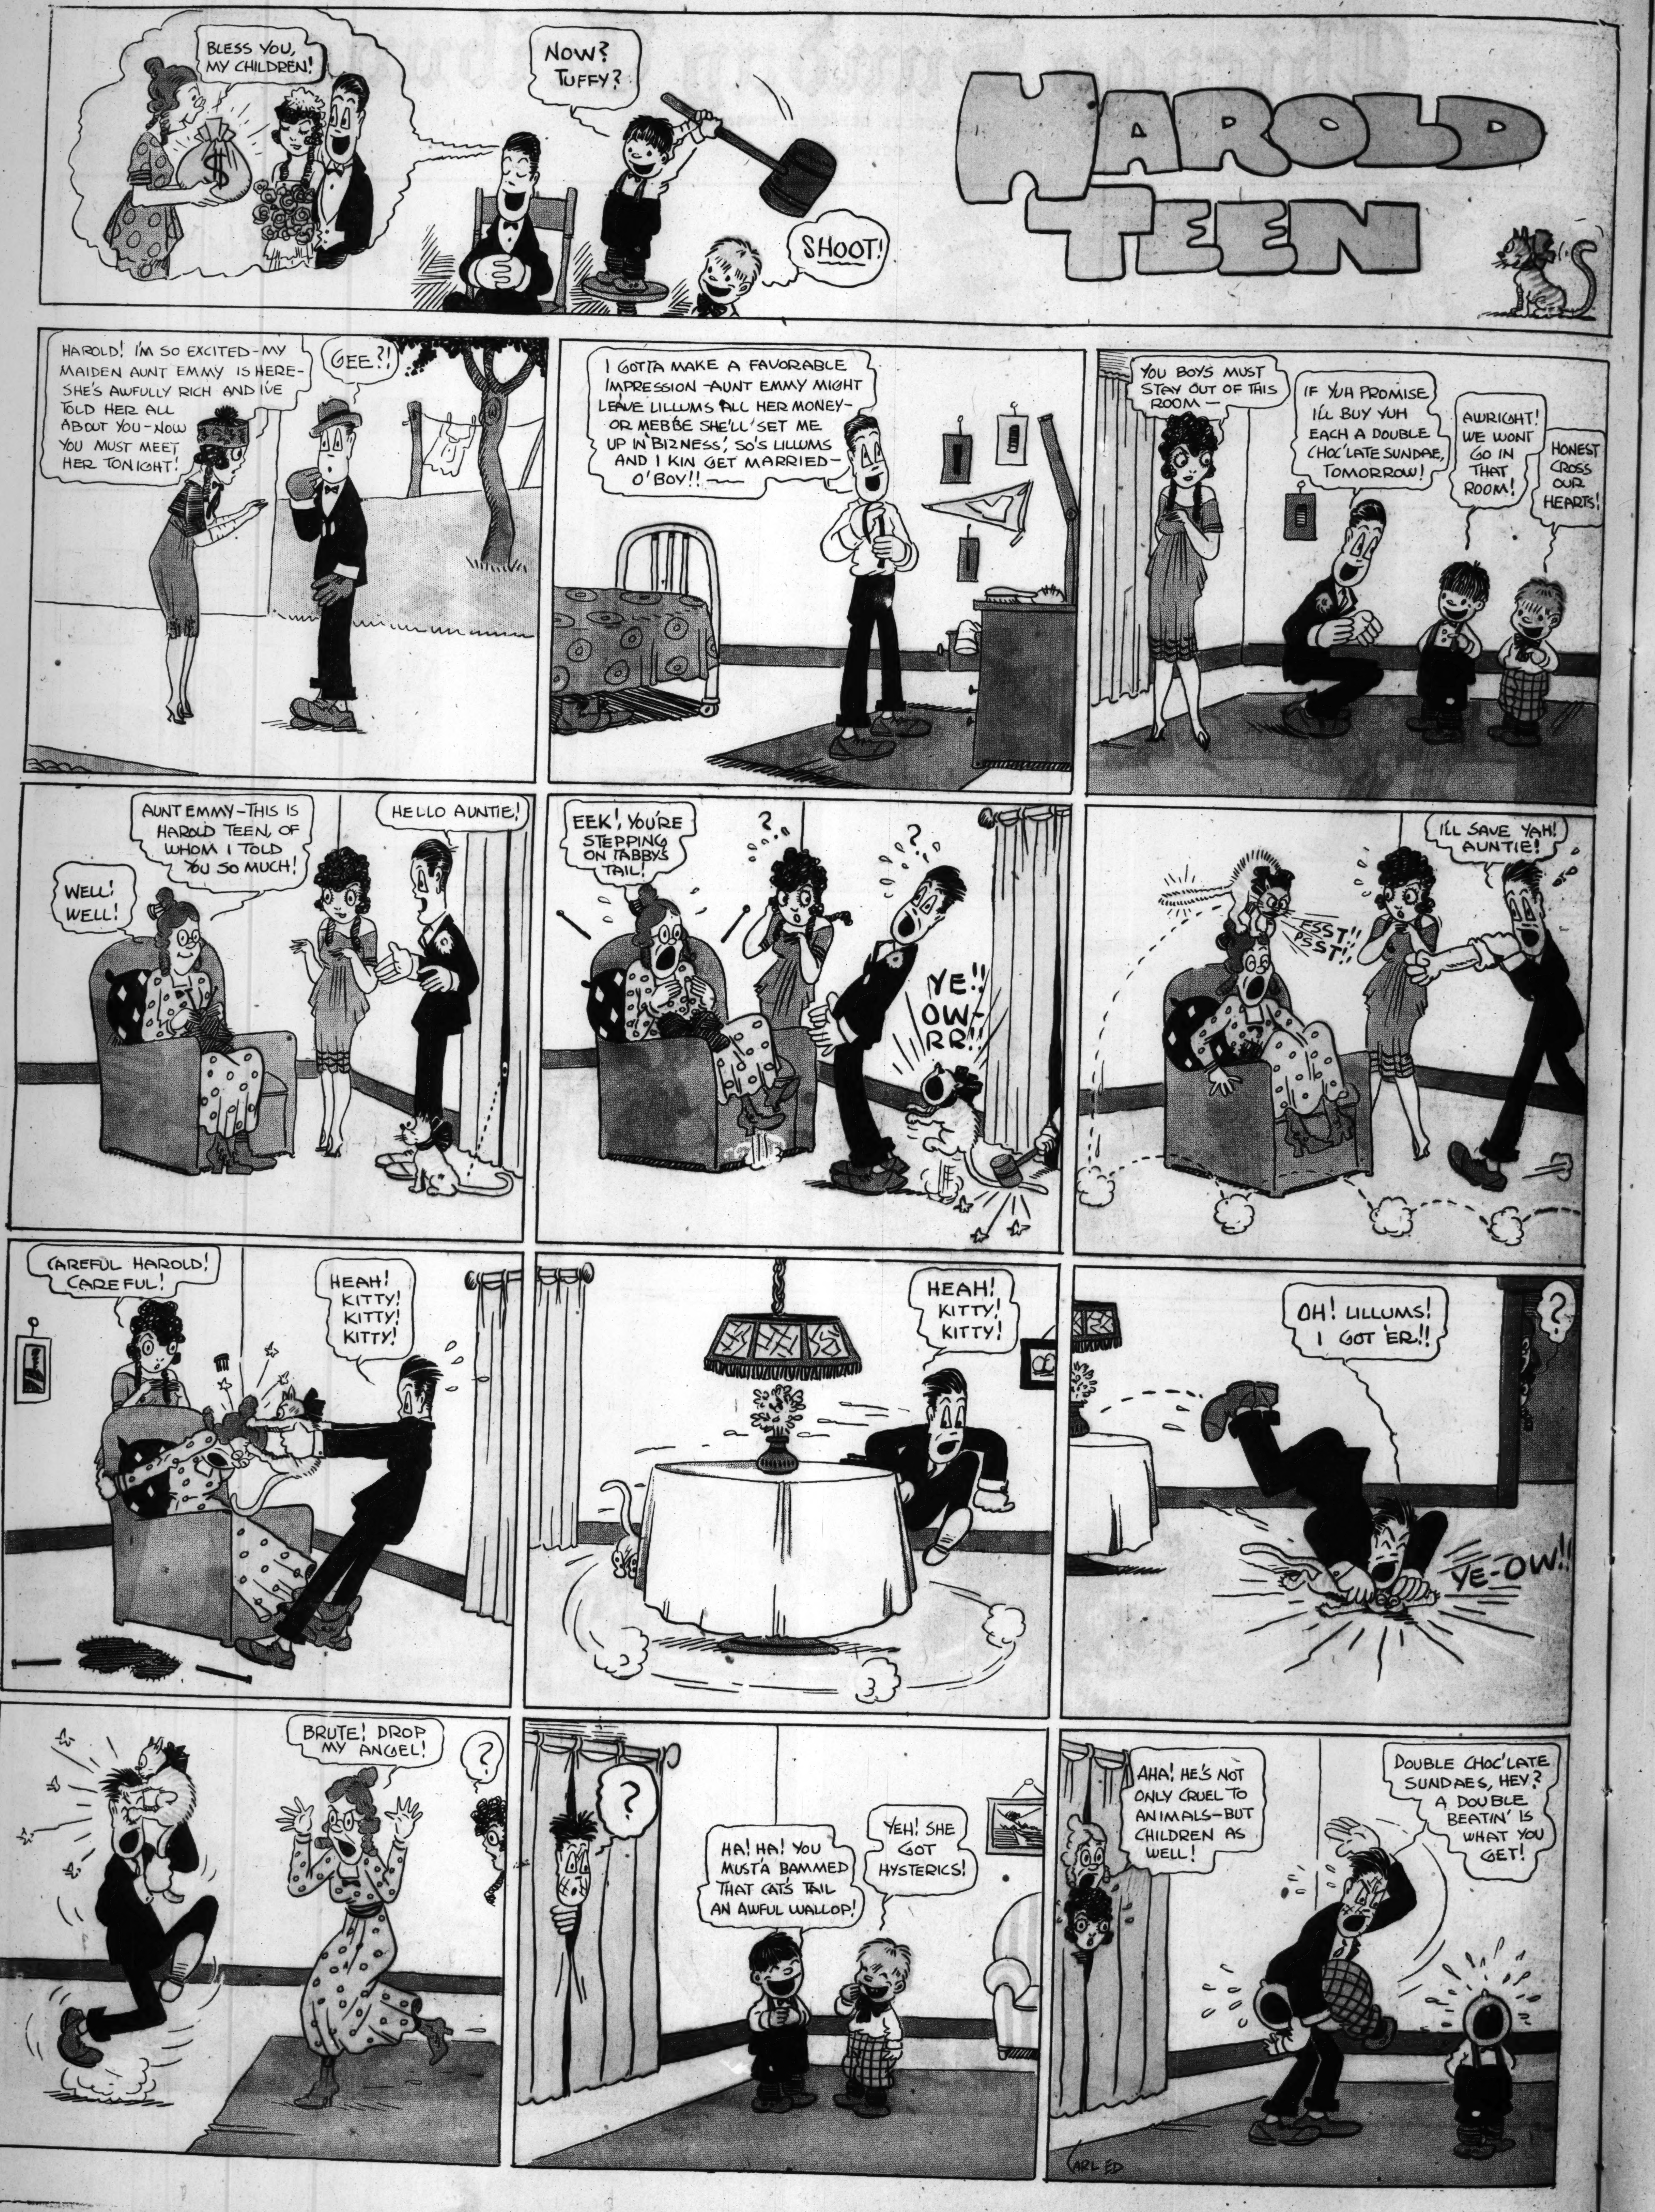
MUTT, FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE. USE DISCRETION!
YOU INSECT DONT YOU KNOW THAT DENVER'S IN THE MOUNTAINS?



BLESS YOU, MY CHILDREN!
NOW? TUFFY?

WELL—HOW IS LITTLE CHESTER? IS HE BETTER?
HE STILL HAS A FEVER—THE DOCTOR JUST LEFT POOR LITTLE FELLOW—HIS FACE IS SO HOT—HIS PILLOW IS ALL WET
POOR KID
DOESN'T IT SEEM A SHAME—AND LITTLE MARION HIRSCH SENT THIS BOX OF CANDY TO HIM YESTERDAY AND HE JUST TEASES AND TEASES FOR IT—
OH BOY!!
HE JUST RAVES AND WANTS CANDY ALL THE TIME AND CAN'T GIVE IT TO HIM
I SHOULD SAY NOT—KEEP HIM ON A DIET—DON'T LET HIM GET NEAR IT
THAT'S WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH HIM NOW—TOO MUCH CANDY—HE'S BEEN EATING SWEETS TILL HIS STOMACH IS ALL UPSET—
I KEEP PUTTING HIM OFF TILL TOMORROW—I TOLD HIM I WOULD GIVE HIM SOME IF HE TOOK HIS MEDICINE REGULARLY—
NO MATTER HOW HE TEASES DON'T GIVE HIM A BITE OR HE NEVER WILL GET WELL—I'LL GO IN AND SAY HELLO TO HIM
IT JUST SEEMS A SHAME THAT I CAN'T GIVE HIM A PIECE
WELL CHESTER HOW'S MY LITTLE MAN THIS EVENING? WHEN ARE YOU GOING TO GET WELL ENOUGH SO WE CAN GO TO THE MOVIES? HOW DO YOU FEEL?
I'M ALL RIGHT—
LET ME FEEL YOUR PULSE—WHY YOU'RE DOING FINE—JUST KEEP ON TAKING YOUR MEDICINE—PAPA—WHAT DAY IS THIS?
THIS IS SUNDAY—DON'T YOU KNOW THAT? THIS IS THE DAY I WAS GOING TO TAKE YOU TO CHURCH IN YOUR NEW SUIT—
I KNOW—BUT IS THIS TOMORROW?
WHY NO CHESTER—THIS ISN'T TOMORROW—THIS IS TO DAY—
WELL WHEN IS TOMORROW?
TOMORROW'S TOMORROW—BUT YESTERDAY—TOMORROW IS TO DAY—BUT TOMORROW IS TOMORROW—WELL YESTERDAY MAMA SAID I COULD HAVE A PIECE OF CANDY TOMORROW—SO CAN I HAVE IT TODAY?

Your Own Home

VS.

A Bundle of Rent Receipts

Don't ask yourself in years to come why you FAILED TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS OPPORTUNITY, those who now have a little money, but lack judgment, will say, WHY DIDN'T I KNOW ENOUGH TO BUY REAL ESTATE, regrets and rent receipts, that's all they will ever have.

THOSE WHO ACT PROMPTLY AND WISELY when opportunity presents itself, and buy real estate, ARE ASSURED OF A PROSPEROUS FUTURE. Your savings discreetly invested in real estate is AS SAFE AS A SAVINGS BANK, and PAYS YOU A MUCH GREATER PROFIT.

Be sure to USE GOOD JUDGMENT in selecting your location, because a lot located far away, where transportation is poor, and without sewer, water, sidewalks, gas, electric light, etc., WILL PROVE COSTLY, UNDESIRABLE AND A BURDEN. Buy close in, where location is developing rapidly, IMPROVEMENTS ALREADY IN and where LOTS ARE PRICED RIGHT.

SOUTHLAWN HIGHLANDS.

Ripe for rapid development, and quick profits. On EAST SIDE OF STONY ISLAND-AVE., at 83rd-st., SOUTH OF JACKSON PARK, the ideal home site and garden spot of South Side, ON A BOULEVARD 200 FT. WIDE and a link in the city beautiful plan.

BUY SOME OF THESE LOTS NOW BEFORE PRICES GO UP, either for investment or a home site, they will prove A SAFE and PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

RESIDENT OR BUSINESS LOTS
(at pre-war prices on easy payments).
Sewer, water, cement sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light and telephone are in the subdivision.

Don't be a life long renter, a man can borrow money on what he puts into a home, he can't on what he pays out for rent. Buy direct from the owner and save middle man's profits. Prepare now to save money by buying a lot on the easy payment plan.

START TODAY. PUT YOUR MONEY IN THE WORLD'S GREATEST SAVINGS BANK, "YOUR OWN HOME."

TAKE COTTAGE GRV.-STONY ISLAND-93RD-ST. CAR to 83RD-ST.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

80%

OF THE FARMERS IN THE UNITED STATES OWN AUTOMOBILES.

THERE IS A MESSAGE of great importance in those figures for every man who is not working for himself—for every man who is constantly producing for the "other fellow." There is no other class of people on the face of the earth of which 80% are independent and successful enough to own automobiles. The days of "hayseeds and sodbusters" are over—the farmer of today is a wide awake, ambitious man taking advantage of all his opportunities, making a mighty good living, and saving money for the "rainy day."

STOP AND THINK about YOUR job. Are you getting anywhere in life—or are you just working along from year to year, getting a little more money perhaps, but still dependent on a "boss" for your living. Have you a mortgage on your job—or could a strike or shutdown take away your income and bring hardship to you and your family? There are things that a man must consider and explain why more and more men are clamoring for good farm land at a price within their reach.

OUR LIBERAL CREDIT PLAN

combined with some of the best land left in the U. S., offers an opportunity that no man can afford to pass up without investigating. Hardwood land in Antrim, Kalkaska, and Otsego counties, Mich., close to markets, schools, and railroads, at $15 to $35 an acre is a real bargain. Beautiful lakes and streams, good roads make this an ideal place for a home. Our liberal credit plan—small down payment, easy terms—is based on the idea that many men who want farms are not able financially to pay out at once a large sum of money. When you find a combination like that—offered by a responsible company with many years' experience in getting people started on farms of their own—IT IS TIME TO INVESTIGATE.

WE HELP YOU.

A warranty deed and abstract of title protect your ownership and we do not reserve the oil or mineral rights. We give you free insurance protection while paying for the land and the free advice of practical farmers as to the best farming methods. Michigan exempts from taxes for five years the settler who makes some improvements on his land. We loan money in proportion to your investment with which to erect buildings or buy equipment for the farm. We stand ready to help you—but YOU MUST MAKE THE START.

WRITE FOR BIG FREE BOOKLET

telling all about this district and the conditions for farming. It will be cheerfully mailed without obligation on your part and will prove of much interest to you. Ask for date of our next excursion for homeseekers. START YOUR INVESTIGATION TODAY.

WISCONSIN CUT-OVER LANDS.

Through a favorable combination of circumstances we are now prepared to offer a land investment opportunity which should be decidedly attractive to any man seeking a safe, yet profitable investment for his money. We have 100,000 acres of wealth bearing soil in the heart of Northern Wisconsin's cut-over belt, which offers even greater possibilities than the land which farmers pioneered in Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa, and which is now selling at $200, $300, and $400 an acre.

This is an exceptional opportunity. Splendid railroad facilities, fine roads, convenient to markets, and excellent schools and churches. Land will be sold at wholesale prices—$12 to $25 per acre—easy terms. Write for complete details to

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Wisconsin.

Special Terms of Credit.

Special terms of credit will be extended to buyers of lands in two new tracts of fine cutover lands, comprising 36,000 acres, in Florence and Vilas counties. These lands are offered by the owners through us.

You will have an opportunity to choose your farm from some of the choicest land in northern Wisconsin, close to railroad towns, schools, and in a district where there are good roads and many lakes and streams. The soil is a silt loam and a heavy sandy loam.

When we opened up our tract of land in Forest and Oconto counties, we expected to have several years' work ahead of us. Our customers, however, bought up all the land fit for agricultural development in less than a year. Therefore, it will pay you to take advantage of this new opening. It will only take a few days of your time and a small expense. The round trip ticket is only $25.46.

CREDIT.

The owners realize that many of the settlers who have not sufficient capital to finance themselves need help. Therefore, if you mean business and want to get started on a farm, this is an excellent opportunity for you. You will meet the owner himself, make the contract with him direct, and will be in position to arrange for such credit as you may need.

The plan under which we are selling land and our credit system are both practical and beyond the experimental stage. Only a little over a year ago the land of the Holt Lumber Co., Oconto Company, and Menominee Bay Shore Lumber Co., in the counties of Forest and Oconto, were offered the public under a similar plan. The fact that they are sold out will prove to you how popular the plan is. We have only small scattered tracts left, though we, as years go by, will have a new crop of land for sale in these districts every year as the timber is cut. Settlers are moving into our districts by the scores.

No doubt you realize what it means to have the first chance to pick your farm out of two tracts comprising 36,000 acres. If it means anything to you, you should come at once to our Chicago office and make arrangements for a trip north. The season for showing and selling land this year will soon be over, as winter is knocking at the door. You have only, at the best, fourteen days to take action, unless especially favorable weather conditions will make it possible for us to extend the season. To accommodate you we will run excursions every day this week and next week, and in the latter part of next week we will notify you of future developments.

As you will meet and do business with the owners, you can get the contract at once. You should, therefore, bring a draft with you covering such payments as you are able to make, as we cannot hold land for anybody unless a payment is made. We are duty bound to follow the old rule, first come first served. As we want you to be satisfied with your selection you must go over the land and personally inspect every acre of it. Therefore, bring with you your old clothes or your overalls and old shoes.

We have a number of farms and summer resort lots with lake frontage to offer on reasonable terms. Also several improved and partially improved farms.

QUESTIONS

AND ANSWERS.

Are your farms (?) "made-to-order" from cutover land or are they "GOING" FARMS? Our farms are REAL FARMS, with good acreage under cultivation, substantial buildings, well, fences, live stock, etc. Prices $50 to $125 per acre. Liberal terms.

Have your customers had success?

They certainly have. Go and see for yourself; talk with farmers to whom we have sold; we will be glad to give you names.

Do all who buy from you succeed?

Certainly not. Farming is a business. It takes brains, good management, industry, and enough capital to go ahead. Where these elements are present, success goes with them.

Do you make trades?

We do; we take in property in part payment of farms, taking mortgage back for balance. We want property only in live towns, and income producing.

Do you advise getting in touch with the Wisconsin State Immigration Commissioner's office?

Certainly; they will give you complete, accurate dope on soil, climate, etc.

How about live stock?

We sell on terms of one-third down, balance over a period of two years; we have horses and cows on hand all the year round. (We do our very best to represent our farms accurately and instruct our representatives accordingly.)

These are a few of the questions put to us every day; there are many others. Write TODAY for FREE literature, booklet, and list.

FURS.
It wholly depends upon the fur house with a reputation for quality that makes your fur purchase a good investment.
BEAR IN MIND THAT GOOD FURS ARE THE ONLY KIND IT IS SAFE TO BUY.
If you could see some of the furs that are brought in to us by people who looked only at prices when they bought—furs made of "seconds" or improperly cured pelts and just thrown together—you would realize more than ever that without high quality low prices mean nothing. This exclusive fur establishment handles nothing but furs of the most reliable quality—furs that will give you years of satisfactory service and maintain their original luster and beauty during that time. And even on such fine quality furs our early season prices are as low or lower in many cases than you will find on greatly inferior furs elsewhere. COMPARE—then decide.
Four months' charge accounts invited.
OPEN EVENINGS.

TURN YOUR OLD FURS INTO THE NEWEST STYLES
Economy alone does not mean to buy new furs and throw your old ones away. We realize that labor and materials are high, but it pays to bring your old furs to Miller & Co., and let us do your remodeling and repairing. You might think that it isn't worth bothering with them, but after you take them back we assure you that you will not recognize them. At very little expense we will make them over into the newest and latest styles.

Mercer 1920 Sport
SERIES 5.

Current model 4 passenger. An extremely smart looking special Mercer. Without exception this is the most beautiful and "best dressed" Mercer car in Chicago. While distinctive in appearance, there is about it an atmosphere of quiet refinement and the touch of an artist. Finished in a rich wine color, with six lighter shade wire wheels. Tire covers and a wonderful set of leather seat covers and top boot to match. Silver lamps, radiator, wind shield and ventilator. 6 excellent Silvertown cord tires. This car has been carefully driven by an expert only a few thousand and is just 5 months old. Priced at an attractive figure. Besides this car we have a number of other Mercers at low prices. Open Sunday and every evening.

DANIELS 1919 SPORT

The Daniels car is known among the "first families" as a very fine car and is gaining rapidly in prestige. We have one of these well tailored, smart appearing custom built sport models, finished in a Burgundy wine color and for beauty and quiet refinement we have never seen anything to equal it. The Daniels is a high price car and this one we are offering has been used just enough to remove the first stiffness, but can be bought at a price that you could not buy a used mediocre car. Presents the appearance of new. Five new cord tires. Special cape top, trunk, etc. Open Sunday and evenings.

MERCER
SPECIAL BUILT
4 PASS. SPORT

I have decided to dispose of my specially built and equipped Mercer 4 pass. Sport car. This is the prettiest car of its kind in America. Cost me over $12,000 to build. Will make a very attractive price for immediate disposal and sell with a written guarantee of one year. Car has only been used by me personally and has been given best of care. The equipment of this car includes 6 silver plated wire wheels, practically new cord tires, imported French shock absorbers, silver plated hood with special ventilator, Tannon lights, beautiful windshield wings. All the parts of the motor have been cast especially for me and the gears have been specially made also. Every part will be guaranteed. Painted a beautiful cream and purple; upholstered in purple and gold. The top is made to match the car. Side curtains are made of plate glass; special made tire covers, Mirro fender reflectors, extra heavy bumpers, special lanterns on running boards. The entire car is trimmed in purple silver and gold and is just like new. If you are in the market for a real high class Sport car or are looking for an opportunity of buying a car that cannot be duplicated anywhere in America give this your immediate attention. Call and see me personally and I will be glad to give complete details regarding this car. Curiosity seekers kindly don't waste your time. Will make terms to suit or take your car as part payment.

FINEST MATTRESSES MADE TO ORDER AND SOLD DIRECT AT FACTORY PRICES.

If the careful person could see what is inside the average mattress we believe he would prefer to sleep on a clean floor.

But no one can see what the average ticking is stuffed with. The cheap mattress-maker knows this and trades on that fact.

The retail dealer sometimes cares, but his main interest is in the difference between a low cost price and a high selling price.

Our sole business is to make Restgood Mattresses, Box Springs, and Pillows the highest quality possible, not just fancy ticking to help the dealer "put it over."

Dealers in Chicago say they cannot buy our quality and sell it in competition with cheap goods. Therefore we have no local dealers—But—if you live in Chicago and want bedding of the highest quality, purest materials, and finest workmanship, we will sell you direct at factory prices and save you fully 50%.

Come and select your own materials and have your mattresses made to order at the same price the retailer pays for best quality. We also make upholstered Davenports and Chairs of Restgood Quality.

Take any Archer-av. car to 35th and Archer, or write or phone for samples and prices.

Also a quality line of brass beds, steel beds, and cribs at a great saving.

INJUN SUMMER

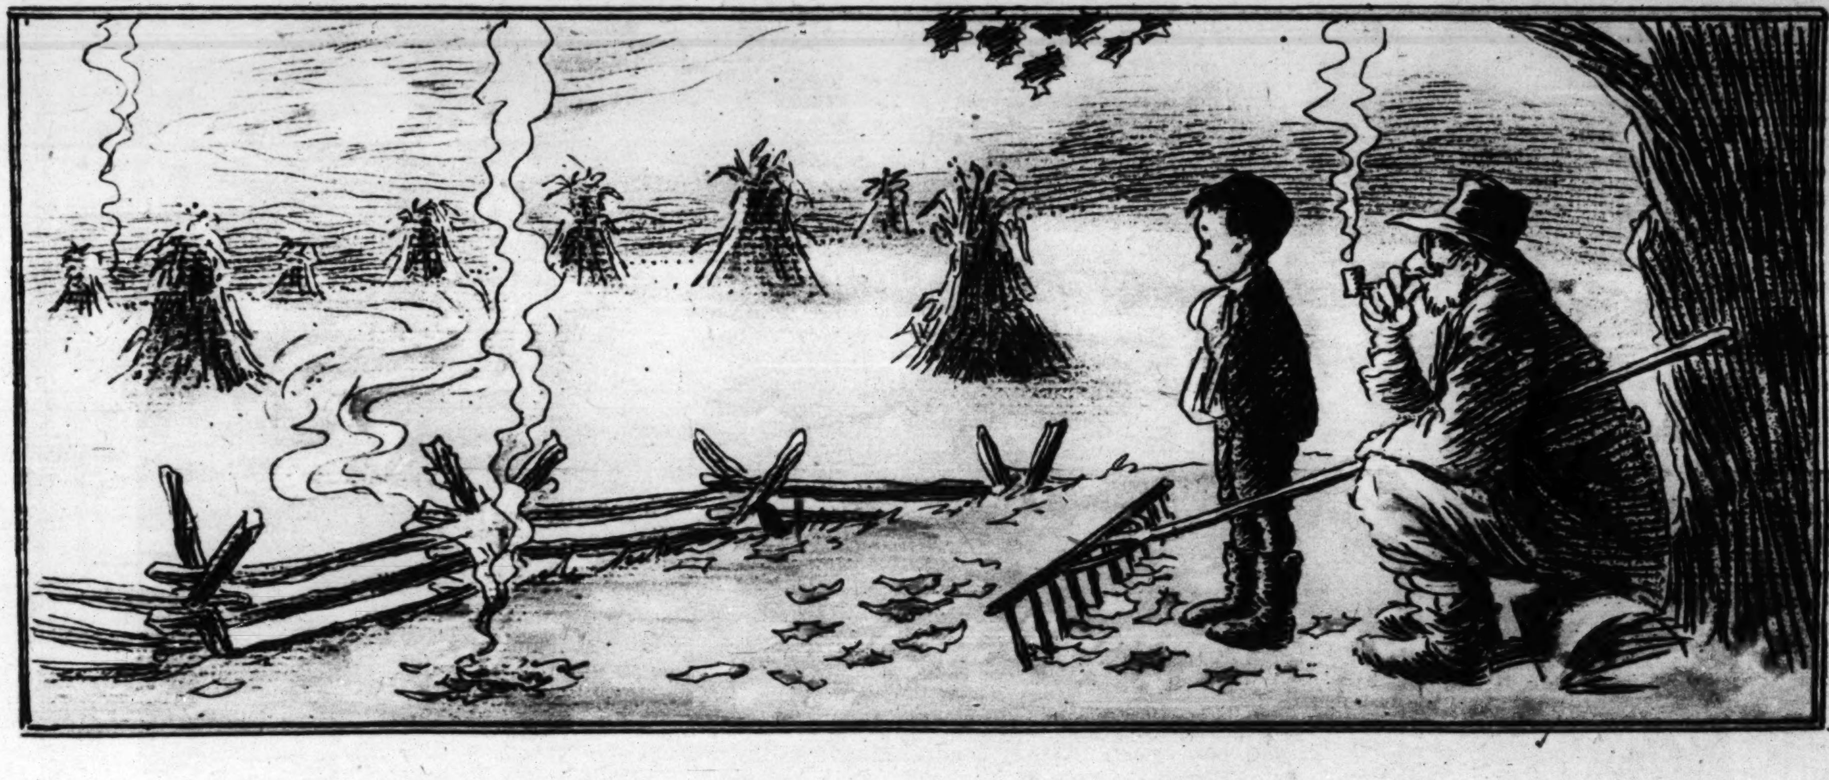
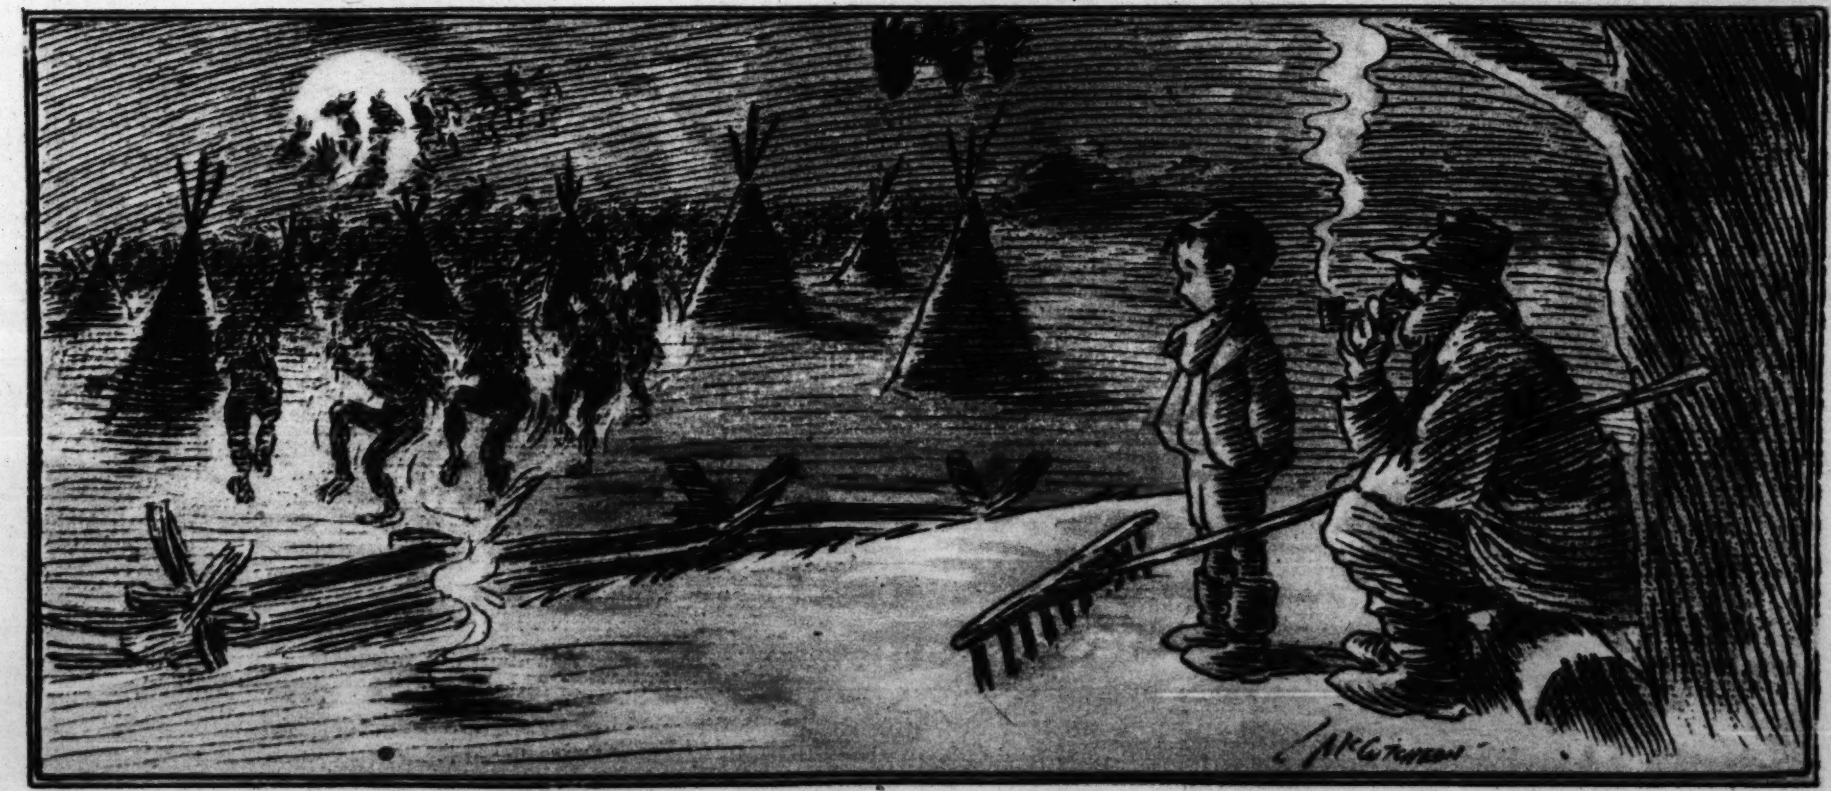
(This famous cartoon first appeared in The Tribune in the autumn of 1907. It is republished in response to many requests.)

Yep, sonny, this is sure enough Injun summer. Don't know what that is, I reckon, do you?

Well, that's when all the homesick Injuns come back to play. You know, a long time ago, long afore yer granddaddy was born even, there used to be heaps of Injuns around here—thousands—millions, I reckon, far as that's concerned. Reg'lar sure 'nough Injuns—none o' yer cigar store Injuns, not much. They wuz all around here—right here where you're standin'. Don't be skeered—hain't none around here now, leastways, no live ones. They been gone this many a year. They all went away and died, so they ain't no more left.



But every year, long about now, they all come back, leastways, their sperrits do. They're here now. You can see 'em off across the fields. Look real hard. See that kind o' hazy, misty look out yonder? Well, them's Injuns—Injun sperrits marchin' along an' dancin' in the sunlight. That's what makes that kind o' haze that's everywhere—it's jest the sperrits of the Injuns all come back. They're all around us now. See off yonder, see them tepees? They kind o' looks like corn shocks from here, but them's Injun tents, sure as you're a foot high. See 'em now? Sure, I knowed you could. Smell that smoky sort o' smell in the air? That's the campfires a-burnin' and their pipes a-goin'. Lots o' people say it's jest leaves burnin', but it ain't. It's the campfires, an' th' Injuns are hoppin' round 'em t' beat the old Harry.



You jest come out here tonight when the moon is hangin' over the hill off yonder an' the harvest fields is all swimmin' in th' moonlight, an' you can see the Injuns and the tepees jest as plain as kin be. You can, eh? I knowed you could after a little while.

Jever notice how the leaves turn red 'bout this time o' year That's jest anuther sign o' redskins. That's when an old Injun sperrit gits tired dancin' an' goes up an 'squats on a leaf t' rest. Why, I kin hear 'em rustlin' and whisperin' an' creepin' round among the leaves all the time; an' ever' once in a while a leaf gives way under some fat old Injun ghost and comes floatin' down to the ground. See—here's one now.' See how red it is? That's the war paint rubbed off'n an Injun ghost, sure's you're born.

Purty soon all the Injuns'll go marchin' away agin, back to the happy huntin' ground, but next year you'll see 'em troopin' back—th' sky jest hazy with 'em and their campfires smolderin' away jest like they are now

At Last—Dandruff Ends

War Discovery Does It Easily

Quick healing antiseptic, originally invented for wounds. Wonderful for skin eruptions or itching anywhere. Free trial proves it.

To really end dandruff, dissolve a few Kloria Tablets in water and simply wet the scalp thoroughly with it. The results from the first application will prove how easily this scalp disease can be ended by a few of these simple treatments. It stops the annoying itching instantly and is as harmless to the hair as water.

This is the same wonderful antiseptic agent discovered in the war, which healed wounds often in one-fourth the usual time, and conquered infection where all old-standard antiseptics had failed.

Kloria doesn't smart, is soothing, pleasant and absolutely safe, because not poisonous. Yet by scientific test, it is over 40 times more germ-destroying than carbolic acid.

Never before was there an antiseptic so healing, so effective in destroying germs and with so many uses in every home.

Compare Kloria with anything ever used for eczema, itching skin eruptions, irritations. Note how quickly wounds, sores, boils and burns heal. Test it for pyorrhea (sore, bleeding gums), and notice how promptly the soreness and bleeding disappear, usually in one week. Try it for mouth-wash and gargle—see how quickly it relieves sore throat—how clean the mouth feels. Harmless, yet far more effective than poisonous antiseptics for personal hygiene.

Dissolve a few Kloria Tablets in water and instantly you have, at a cost of a few cents, a large bottle of liquid antiseptic which is clean, colorless, stainless and virtually odorless.

All druggists. 50c. Money refunded if not satisfied.

FREE SAMPLE
Write for a free sample, enough for a convincing test. The results will be a revelation.

"WOMAN'S DAY" ON THE HARDING FRONT PORCH—Representatives of twenty-five nationalities, each in her native costume, headed the big delegation of women voters which visited the Republican candidate at Marion early in October. They were welcomed by Senator and Mrs. Harding, whom, if you look closely, you will find in the center of the group.

Never a corn
on millions of feet nowadays

Do you know that millions of people who use Blue-jay keep entirely free from corns?

If a corn appears it is ended by a touch. A Blue-jay plaster or a drop of liquid Blue-jay is applied.

The corn pain stops. Soon the whole corn loosens and comes out.

The method is scientific. It is gentle, easy, sure. Old-time harsh treatments are supplanted by it with everyone who knows it.

It is made by a world-famed laboratory, which every physician respects.

It is now applied to some 20 million corns a year. You can see that corn troubles are fast disappearing.

Then why pare corns and keep them? Why use methods which are out of date?

Try this new-day method. See what it does to one corn. You will never forget its quick and gentle action. Your druggist sells Blue-jay.

Solidified—Cocoanut Oil Cubes

Coconol Shampoo—is easy to use, inexpensive and very cleansing. It is made by an aerated process, that solidifies the cocoanut oil into snow white cubes, which saponify quickly—in either soft or hard water—and produce a thick, creamy lather.

Coconol makes the hair fluffy, lustrous and beautiful without any bad after effects. It does not leave the hair harsh, and will not split, discolor or injure the hair. Try Coconol—the perfect shampoo.

PLUTO WATER
America's Physic

WITH those who know the efficacy of Pluto Water, it is never a question what laxative to take. Pluto Water, with its perfect blend of health-giving minerals, gives sure and quick results.

Pluto Water, though prompt and complete in its action, is wholly free from unpleasant griping effects. It is recommended by physicians everywhere as the safe laxative—certain always, yet pure and harmless. Bottled by French Lick Springs Hotel Co., at French Lick Springs, Indiana.

Your physician prescribes it

See that CORN?

WATCH it go! With a touch as light as a feather I apply one or two drops of GETS-IT. Ah-h-h! What delightful relief from its hurting pain! Like magic all soreness and aching disappear, instantly.

"Gets-It"

"GETS-IT means the end of corns. It removes them, quickly, painlessly, completely. Observe how the corn or callous shrivels, dries up and loosens so I can peel it right off, cap and root, with my fingers."

Dainty, easy to use—no cutting, scraping or paring—could any corn remover be simpler, safer or more efficient? Costs but a trifle at any drug store. Your money back if it fails.

Aren't you tired of washing dishes?

I was—so tired of it that I made up my mind I was going to get out of it someway. And I have. My dishwashing days are over.

The Western Electric Dishwasher and Kitchen Table

washes all the dishes and washes them clean. A rapidly revolving paddle wheel, electrically driven, simply deluges the dishes with hot cleansing water. It's more sanitary than the old way and so much easier!

Not only are the dishes washed, but rinsed and dried as well in the dishwasher.

This dishwasher is always useful, for it is a splendid kitchen table as well as a dishwasher—the top is white enameled.

Unless your family is unusually large, you'll find when you use this Western Electric Dishwasher that there'll be not only better dishwashing, but less of it. Because the dishwasher is large enough to hold the dishes for three meals of an average family, there's one dishwashing instead of three. Thus the housewife is free from the task that used to occupy two months of her working time every year.

You'll find this Western Electric Dishwasher sold by reliable dealers everywhere. Ask to see it demonstrated.

You can see for yourself how it washes dishes clean.

La-may Face Powder is Guaranteed Pure and Harmless!

PURE face powder cannot injure the most delicate baby skin. The trouble is, too many powders are made in the old-fashioned way, with rice powder. Rice powder is starchy and, like bread flour, it is quickly turned into a gluey paste by the moisture of the skin. This paste clogs the cuticle, swells in the pores, causing enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. A specialist makes a harmless powder by using an ingredient doctors prescribe to heal the skin. Every time you apply this improved powder you give your complexion a real beauty treatment. There is a thousand dollar guarantee of purity printed on the box, certifying it does not contain white lead, rice powder or any harmful substance. This guaranteed pure powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and harmless, La-may is now used by over a million American women; it is now the most popular complexion powder sold in New York. Women who have used even the most expensive face powders say La-may stays on better than any other; they say they cannot buy a better powder than La-may anywhere at any price. There is also a La-may Talcum that prevents the souring of perspiration.

Confidence in the House of Bishop

THE confidence with which the House of Bishop is held by its patrons in the Great Middle West is founded upon more than sixty years of fair dealing. It has been carefully fostered since the inception of the establishment; and now in this period of change its patrons know with absolute certainty that prices asked for furs are just prices—value giving prices for worthwhile merchandise.

The constant surveillance of the world's fur markets explains the present moderation in the price of furs at Bishop's. All of the skins being sold this season were purchased last year at last year's prices, far lower than those of today. This alertness to market conditions has been a potent factor in bringing the House of Bishop into the position of greatest prominence among the fur merchants in this great territory.

At Bishop's prices are always right, and the quality of the fur is up to the standard demanded by the Bishop label of quality within. The selection is so complete that it is possible to gratify your exact preference for model and skin.

CHENEY SILKS

FOR GARMENTS REALLY DISTINGUISHED

THE characteristic note of the smartest evening frock or wrap is conservative distinction, attainable through elegance and richness of fabric, combined with beauty and simplicity of design.

And Dame Fashion has whispered that again this Fall, because more than fourscore years of earnest endeavor have achieved for them an unrivalled degree of perfection, the preferred fabrics for smartest garments will be Cheney Silks.

Cheney Satin de Lyon, Satin Panne and Brocaded Satin—of subtle lustre and gorgeous colours, for frocks or wraps.

Crêpe Chenette, sheer but sturdy, to adorn the satin frock with a soft mist of the same colour, or introducing a new tone.

Cheney Bengaline, plain or with metallic embroidery, for the evening wrap that would be "different."

Illuminated Satin Panne to contribute the last note of luxury in smarter linings.

Stores with a reputation for fine merchandise will be quite sure to sell Cheney Silks, either by the yard or in garments ready to wear.

CHENEY BROTHERS

Smartly conservative is an evening wrap of gray Cheney Bengaline, fur-trimmed, and correctly low-girdled with jet and coral beads. The looped side-drapery permits a peep at the lining of Illuminated Satin Panne.

When you cut the cuticle you leave unprotected places all around the delicate nail root.

Remove the surplus cuticle without cutting –have the firm, smooth, even edge Cutex gives

The wrong and the right way to manicure

You can get the Cutex preparations at all drug and department stores

WHEN you cut the cuticle, you leave little unprotected places all around the tender nail root. These become rough, sore and ragged; they grow unevenly and cause hangnails.

Soften and remove surplus cuticle without cutting. Just apply a bit of Cutex, the harmless cuticle remover, to the base of your nails, gently pushing back the cuticle. Cutex does away with all need for cutting or trimming, and leaves a firm, smooth, even line at the base of your nails.

Wrap a little cotton around the end of an orange stick, dip it in Cutex and work around the base of the nail, gently pressing back the cuticle. Wash the hands, pushing the cuticle back with a towel. For snow-white nail tips apply a bit of Cutex Nail White, underneath the nails. Finish your manicure with Cutex Nail Polish.

Now see how well-groomed your nails look. To keep them looking beautifully manicured always, give them a Cutex manicure regularly.

Cutex, the cuticle remover comes in 35c and 65c bottles. Cutex Nail White, Nail Polish and Cutex Cold Cream are each 35c.

New facts on constipation—

a simple food now recognized as a corrective

"A PERSON who uses laxatives never gets rid of constipation: his bowels never get into order of themselves."

This statement made by a well-known physician carries a message of deep importance to thousands of men and women. It summarizes the experience of the medical profession.

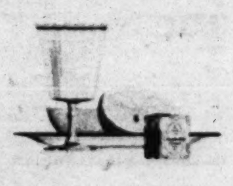
Ordinary laxatives are of three kinds: coarse substances that may injure sensitive intestines; drugs that may form a habit; oils that merely lubricate. All of these bring only temporary relief. For many years there has been great need for some simple food that would help restore normal conditions. And now scientists have discovered it—

The familiar little cake of yeast used in baking bread is today known to the medical world as a corrective for constipation. Being a food, Fleischmann's Yeast is better suited to the stomach and intestines than either drugs or oils. And it cannot form a habit.

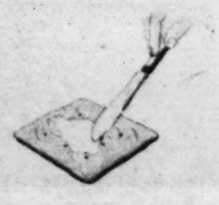
First came the dramatic discovery by a group of nutrition experts that yeast in itself is a wonderful food, rich in life-giving vitamine — a valuable conditioner for those who are "run-down," or suffering from pimples and boils.

Then it was found that this simple food brought remarkable results when used for constipation. In leading medical institutions, even chronic cases, some of years' duration, have responded.

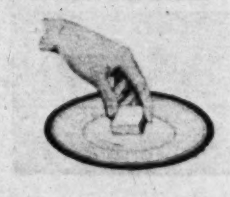
How to take yeast



Some take it in fruit juices or in water



Some spread it on crackers or bread



Others like it plain

To be eaten before or between meals

Some people ask: "Won't yeast, when eaten, have the same effect as in raising bread?" No. In the body yeast is assimilated just like any other food. It is easily digested at any time. Only one precaution is necessary: people who are troubled with gas find it better to dissolve the yeast in boiling water.

Take 1 to 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast a day before or between meals. You will soon learn to like its taste. In cases of constipation remember that yeast is a corrective food — not a laxative. It should be taken regularly over a period of time. In long-standing cases do not discontinue the customary cathartic abruptly — but gradually reduce the amounts taken. In acute or extraordinary cases, always consult your doctor. To secure booklet giving many interesting facts on "Yeast for Health," fill out and mail coupon below. Place a standing order with your grocer for Fleischmann's Yeast.

PREMIER

THE ALUMINUM SIX WITH MAGNETIC GEAR SHIFT

THE refinement of the Premier Sedan and its general beauty of line strike even the casual observer at first glance. But, the gratifying completeness of its conveniences wins full recognition only after an extended acquaintanceship.

As soon as you close the door, which shuts with a solid sound that indicates excellence in coach work and body construction, and your eye glances at the steering wheel, you see the little lever that controls the famous magnetic gear shift. For, right there it is within easy reach of the thumb as your right hand rests in its natural position on the wheel. Preselected speeds—what a joy that is in traffic! Just set the finger-lever at the speed desired, depress the clutch pedal—and the gears click smoothly into place.

This magnetic gearshift is, of course, a convenience of major importance, but there are many lesser, though very desirable ones: roof and cowl ventilators (five in all), Perfection heater, reading and foot lights, hassocks and pillows, vanity case with two Dorian boxes, address book, mirror, a gentleman's smoking set with two ash trays and an automatic cigar lighter.

These are a few of the conveniences—great and small. One needs, however, to use the car, in order to realize fully the exhaustive completeness of Premier's elegant but unobtrusive appointments.

Prices on Premier cars are guaranteed against decline and a refund will be made in case of decline.

Wasted energy saved—output of an age-old occupation nearly trebled

Not by working faster, but by saving energy—

THIS is the principle which Frank B. Gilbreth, the noted Industrial Engineer, applies to increase the efficiency of workers in both office and factory.

Studying even an age-old occupation like that of the stone mason, Dr. Gilbreth was able to demonstrate to hundreds of artisans that they could lay almost three times as many bricks each hour by avoiding unnecessary fatigue.

The tremendous waste of energy which he has discovered in work of every sort, from typewriting to toolmaking, occurs also in the daily life of the modern city dweller.

Useless fatigue—needless waste of energy—drags down the man who works with either hand or brain.

Within the memory of us all, the soft dirt paths and streets of our cities and towns have disappeared. The demands of modern city life now require hard, unyielding pavements, sidewalks, and floors. Today, no matter where you go, every step you take on modern pavements with old-fashioned leather or ordinary "dead" rubber heels is a shock to the delicate nervous system.

If you are a person of average activity, you take 8,000 steps a day—suffer 8,000 jolts and jars which are a constant drain on the nervous energy.

One way to save your energy

You cannot change these modern pavements, but you can change your heels. You can eliminate this great source of fatigue. O'Sullivan's Heels absorb the shocks that tire you out.

To secure the resiliency, the springiness of O'Sullivan's Heels, the highest grades of rubber are blended by special formula. With this blend of live, springy rubber are "compounded" the best toughening agents known. The compound is then "cured" or baked under high pressure.

The same process that makes O'Sullivan's Heels resilient gives them their great durability. O'Sullivan's Heels outlast three pairs of leather heels—they often outlast two pairs of ordinary rubber heels.

Stop pounding away your energy. Go to your shoe repairer today and have O'Sullivan's Heels put on your shoes.

Back cut narrower than the front

IMAGINE making a blouse with the back the same width as the front! Yet, heretofore, knit underwear has always been made this way.

But on Kayser knit garments the back is a good four inches narrower than the front. The front does not draw, the back cannot bunch or wrinkle.

This marked improvement in knit underwear can be found only in Kayser garments. Each garment is cut separately by hand to insure a uniform and perfect fit.

The styling which Kayser had developed on their "Italian" Silk Underwear after years of study has been successfully applied to their Knit Underwear. Julius Kayser & Co., New York.

Beautify Your Hair with

"DANDERINE"

35c a bottle! Freshen your scalp! Stop falling hair! Remove dandruff! Have lots of wavy, glossy, beautiful hair! You can!

IF YOU care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair; besides, it eradicates every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength, and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy, or too oily, get a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine, apply a little as directed, and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually, why not now?

GENUINE ASPIRIN

"BAYER" introduced Aspirin to physicians in 1900.

To get the true, world-famous Aspirin, used for over twenty years, ask for genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," plainly stamped with the "Bayer Cross."

Accept only an unbroken "Bayer Package," which contains proper directions.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer Packages."

He is interested in your charming guest, and for a moment, do you wonder which of you two wins his greatest commendation? Or are you secure because you followed the advice which a great woman editor gave you?

For just a moment she doubted—

As you pass the tea and talk with laughing carelessness, you see your husband's admiration of her golden hair, her sparkling eyes, and skin like a soft pink rosebud. How do you compare in his eyes?

Your clothes may be just as chic and your eyes just as bright, but if your complexion is not as matchless as hers, he will not think you as pretty.

If you have given the care to your skin that makes it soft and radiant as morning sunlight, you have every reason to be happy! And every woman should be!

What the great editor advised

"Find the soap that agrees with your skin," she says, because this is the foundation of skin-loveliness. But she tells us that every soap doesn't agree. Some are too harsh and go down too deeply into the thousands of tiny oil ducts which keep the complexion young looking and fresh. These soaps dry the skin too much, because the soap-making process has not been completed. Such soaps are considered half-raw.

The soap that does agree with the skin is scientifically treated by heat until it is really finished. In just this way, Pears' is made to agree with the skin through its Heat-Toning process. That is why it is mild enough for the most sensitive skins, and yet its mellowed purity is the best cleansing agent in helping to restore "ugly" complexions.

Andrew Pears is the Master soap-maker. He made good soap many, many years ago, but because he had studied skins and knew how sensitive the skin membrane is, he was not entirely satisfied with it. But at last he worked out his great experiment.

The old, old secret—Heat-Toning

He took some of his soap which he had considered "finished", and putting it back into the retorts which are closed against outside air impurities, he bathed it in a hot, purifying liquor.

This Heat-Toning process ripens and mellows Pears' as fine fruit ripens under summer rains and sun. Even the former creamy color changes gradually and naturally to the deep wine tone which we all know is Pears'.

Pears' agrees with your skin

Most important of all, Heat-Toning changes the lather—makes it light and creamy, unlike ordinary soaps whose lather permeates too deeply into the inner life of the skin, as lather should not do.

So Pears' agrees because the bubbles of its fine lather cleanse and purify the surface of the skin, where skin impurities are reached by soap. It makes the surface texture clear and soft and radiant. Thus it works scientifically for your skin-beauty.

THE NEW "KULTUR"—Germany is going in strongly for physical development and, among other things, has opened a school for the scientific advancement of athletics. Here is a machine with which the savants are investigating the best ways of taking the broad jump. A board with springs registers electrically the exact amount of resistance to the take-off, and this is reduced to a minimum by adjusting the angle and altering the position of the body.

Of a Girl Who Slept for Twenty Years, and What Happened to Her After She Waked Up

BEFORE the great war, in the peaceful days when people thought of other things than the price of shoes and sugar, every one talked about the Strange Case of Jessamine Lynd. At least, so I'm informed. Being myself the Strange Case, I know only from hearsay. I'm told that, in what the English call the "silly season," there were paragraphs about me in the big newspapers day by day, and pages weekly in the scientific journals. When the war came, however, there was no room for me in the papers or in the people's thoughts. The "Sleeping Beauty," the "Enchanted Princess," was forgotten.

That's what they called me, you see—I mean, the Fleet street men. It made a good heading for a column. O, I've seen lots of these columns since! Darling old nurse cut them out and made a scrap book for me, in case I should ever wake up and come back to life. But I had better explain, in case you're one of those who forgot, or else so young that you never heard of me.

"So young that you never heard of me!" That does sound funny, when I look and feel no more than 18, and practically am no more than 18. Yet all the same I've been 18—or rather 17—for a long, long time.

I lived in Santa Barbara, Cal., till I was nearly 17, just having fun and playing at lessons with a governess, who had been my mother's governess, too. My father had died when I was a tiny thing, and mother had married so young that she was more like an elder sister than a parent. I adored her, but I never thought of obeying her unless I liked. When I was growing up she decided that the best way to turn me into a "young lady" of the right pattern would be to take me to Europe.

We were going to Paris to stay a year; but we stopped in England on the way, because father had been an Englishman, and mother thought it might be nice to meet his relatives.

If he'd lived a few years longer he would have come into a title, and inherited a big house in London and a place in the country. He would have been Sir James Lynd, eighth baronet, a rich, important man, instead of just dear Jimmy Lynd, with a California ranch that never paid. As it was, his younger brother, Richard, was the baronet, and had the houses and money. Mother had managed to sell the ranch for all that it was worth, however, so we weren't exactly poor relations, and we were invited by Lady Lynd to spend a couple of weeks in Norfolk street, Park lane, before we crossed to France.

I remember well the day we arrived!

My uncle's house was different from anything I'd ever seen, and I didn't know whether I admired it or not. But it was tremendously dignified, with brocade curtains, and satin coverings on rich looking, carved furniture. There were a great many portraits of haughty ancestors and ancestresses of ours, and at dinner the silver was splendid. There was a middle thing on the table almost like a pagoda, with flowers sprouting out of it, and under that was a square of gold tissue nearly covered with jeweled embroidery.

My uncle had three little children, one boy and two girls. The boy was 6 or 7 and the girls—twins—were 5. I was taken to see them in their nursery and at dinner they were allowed to come down for dessert, beautifully dressed. All three were as well behaved as marionettes, at the table, except that they stared a good deal at me, because I was American, and Lady Lynd explained that they'd never met any Americans before. I felt grown up compared to them (I would be 17 in a month), but self-conscious because they, and all the family, had the air of thanking God that they'd been born happy, English people, and not foreigners of any sort.

That was in the year 1899!

Lady Lynd was something of an invalid, but an attentive mother. In order that she could be both without too much trouble when in London, the tall house had what we called an "elevator" and she called a "lift." I was much impressed with it, not dreaming of the terrible thing that was to happen, changing my whole future.

Even now I can't bear to dwell on that. The night of our arrival my darling, pretty mother fell down into the lift shaft. She uttered an agonizing scream. I think I screamed, too. I was standing in the hall, and I should have jumped down after her, like a mad creature, if some one hadn't held me back. I struggled and knew no more, for something seemed to snap in my brain. I'd always been a nervous, excitable child—and once I'd only just been saved as I was walking into an ornamental pond on our ranch in my sleep.

When I waked it was with a sensation of a million sharp little needles pricking my skin. As I opened my eyes and looked about the pricking instantly stopped.

"Miraculous!" said some one.

I wondered what was miraculous!

At first I didn't remember or try to remember the past. I was puzzling over the present and my queer surroundings.

After that one exclamation nobody spoke, so I had time to take everything in with a long, wandering look. I was in the whitest room you can imagine. I lay in a narrow white cot, and two women dressed in white, as nurses, stood near. There were also three men, and their clothes were very odd. They had on what seemed to be white smocks.

I lay on my side. There was a wet pad on my forehead, another at the back of my neck, and a third at the base of my spine. I seemed to be strapped into a weird apparatus, and there were wires and pulleys like those you see at a dentist's.

Suddenly I remembered about mother and the horrible lift shaft.

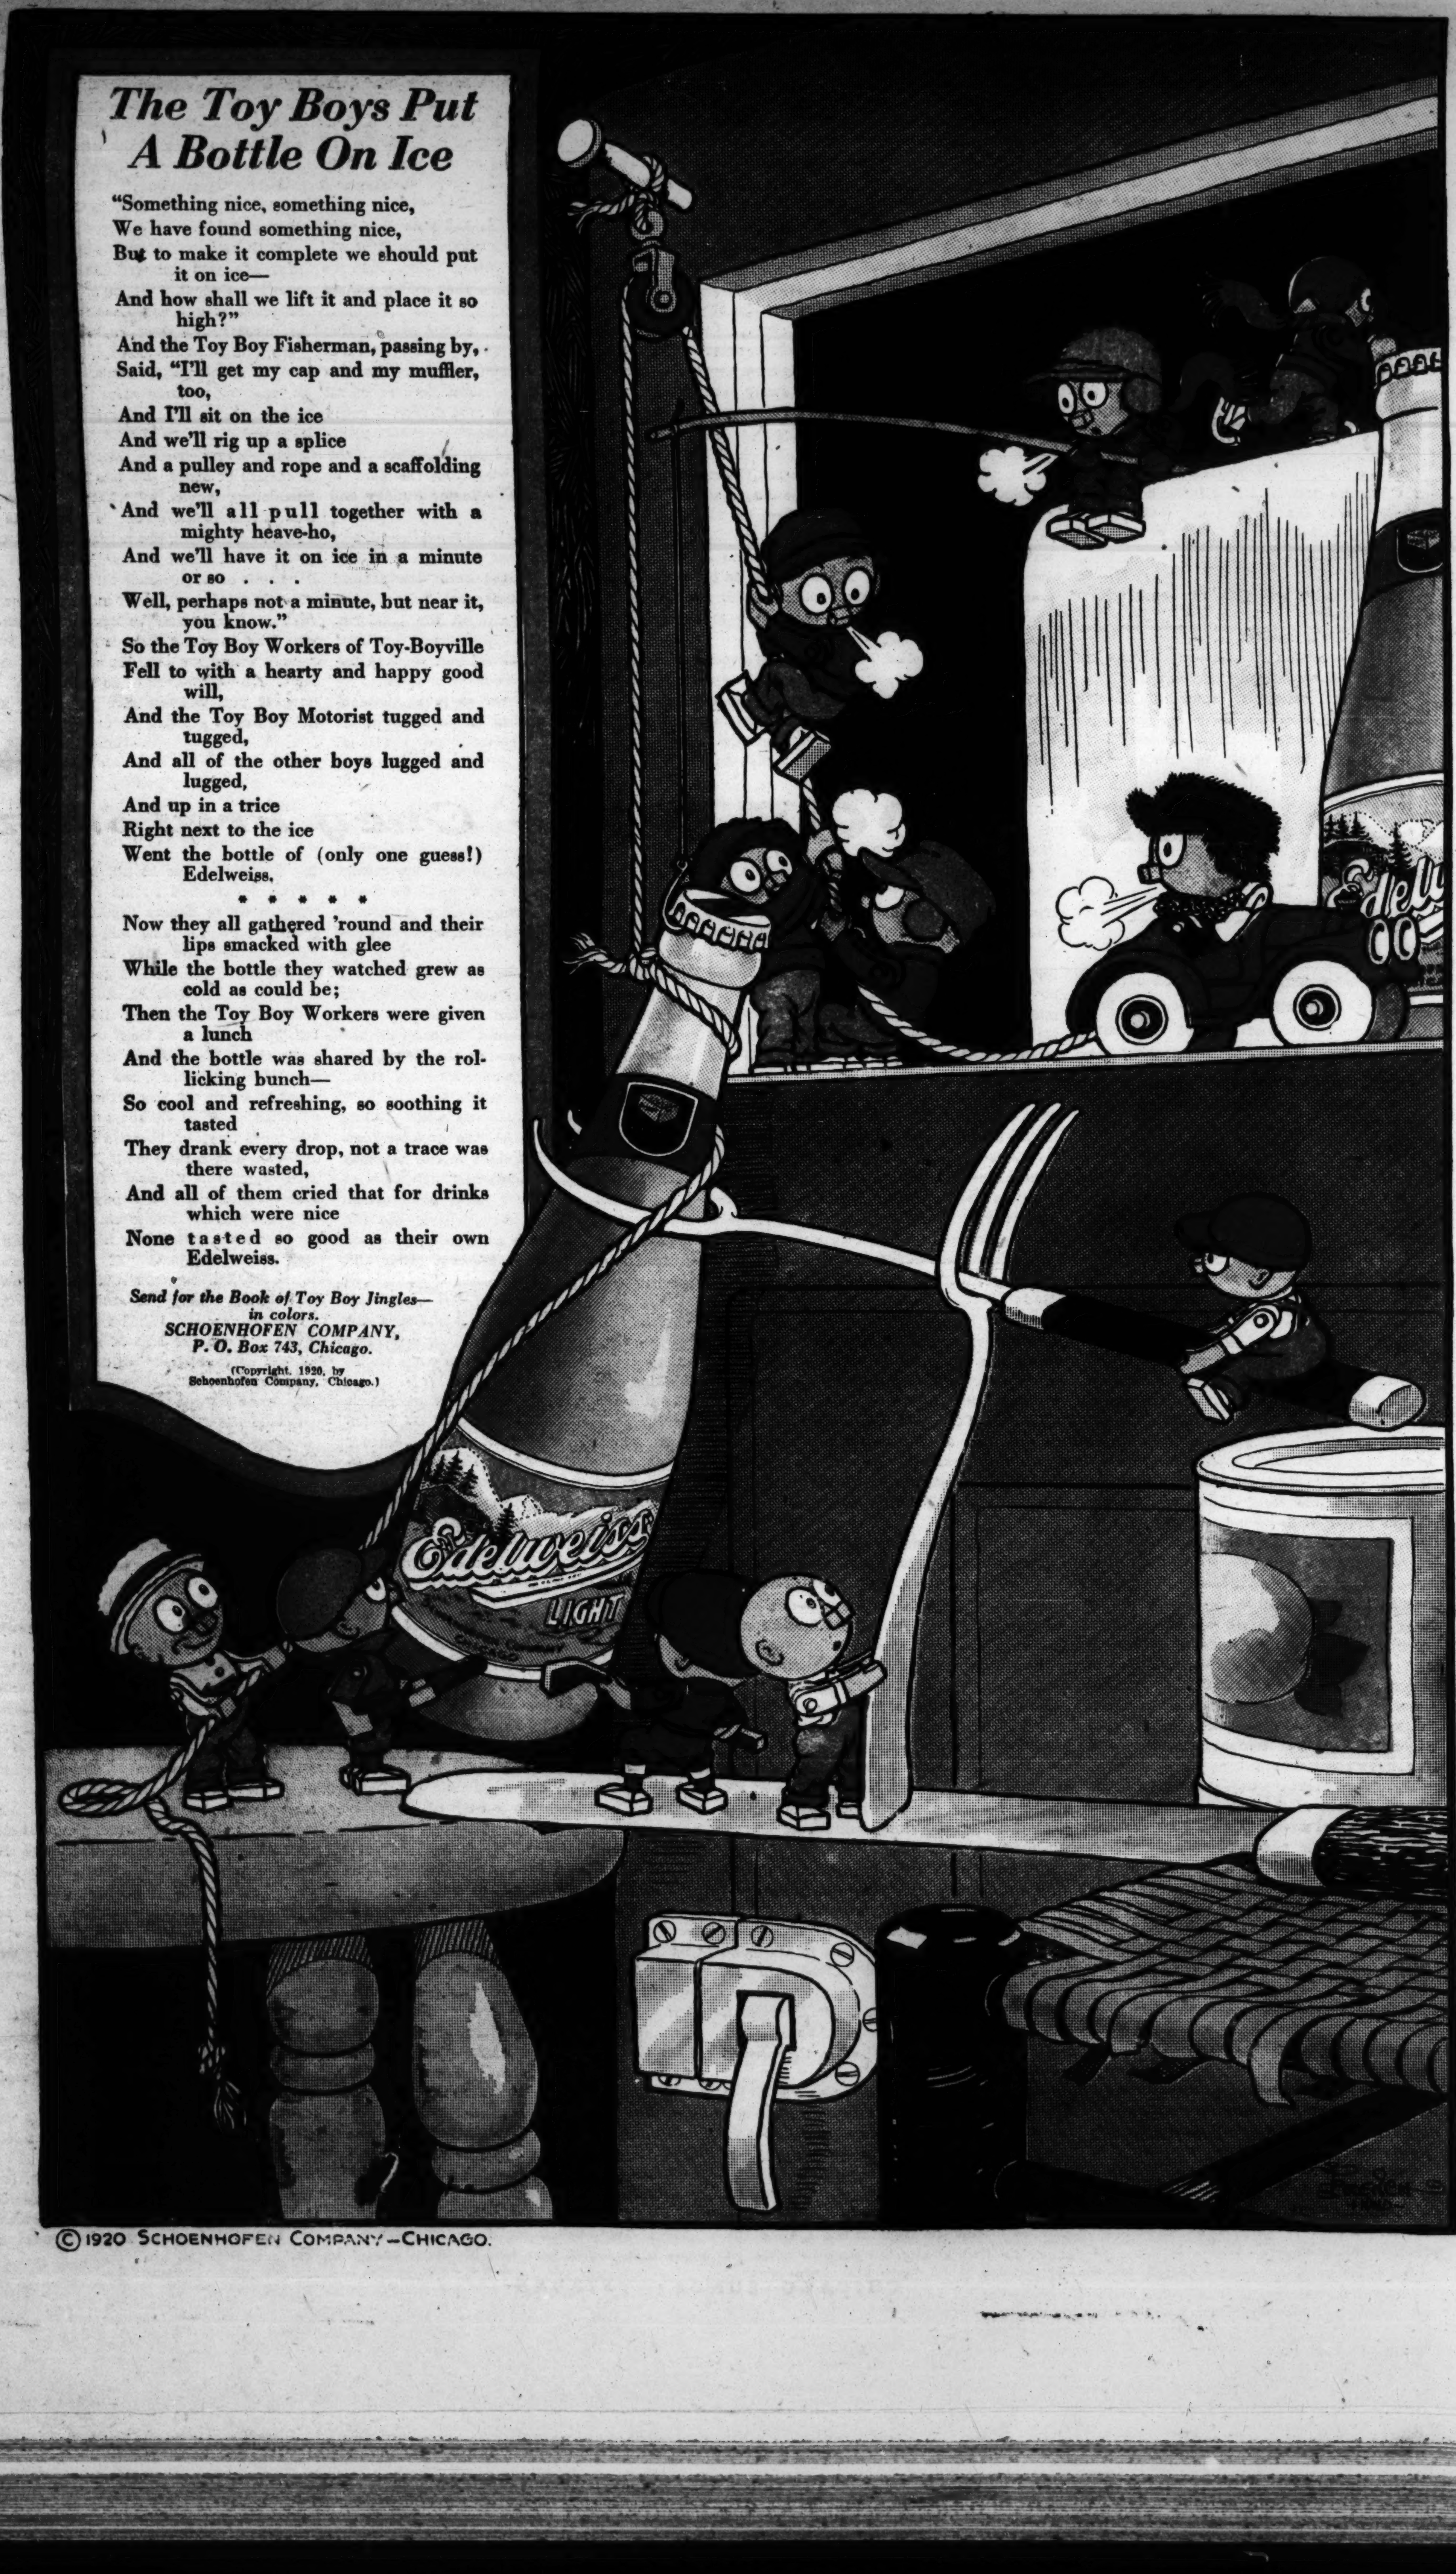
"O, tell me she wasn't killed!" I begged of a youngish man with a big nose and brilliant eyes, who was bending down and staring hard at me.

"Killed? Whom do you mean, my child?" he asked.

"Mother," I whispered.

Another man—an older one—came forward.

"All is well with your mother," he said.



The Toy Boys Put A Bottle On Ice

"Something nice, something nice,
We have found something nice,
But to make it complete we should put it on ice—
And how shall we lift it and place it so high?"
And the Toy Boy Fisherman, passing by,
Said, "I'll get my cap and my muffler, too,
And I'll sit on the ice
And we'll rig up a splice
And a pulley and rope and a scaffolding new,
And we'll all pull together with a mighty heave-ho,
And we'll have it on ice in a minute or so . . .
Well, perhaps not a minute, but near it, you know."
So the Toy Boy Workers of Toy-Boyville
Fell to with a hearty and happy good will,
And the Toy Boy Motorist tugged and tugged,
And all of the other boys lugged and lugged,
And up in a trice
Right next to the ice
Went the bottle of (only one guess!) Edelweiss.

* * * * *

Now they all gathered 'round and their lips smacked with glee
While the bottle they watched grew as cold as could be;
Then the Toy Boy Workers were given a lunch
And the bottle was shared by the rollicking bunch—
So cool and refreshing, so soothing it tasted
They drank every drop, not a trace was there wasted,
And all of them cried that for drinks which were nice
None tasted so good as their own Edelweiss.

"Don't worry. You shall be told everything in good time."

"If all's well with her I want to see her now—this minute!" I insisted.

"You shall see your old nurse," he soothed me. "She's waiting in the next room. You remember her?"

"Remember? Of course I remember!" I snapped. "Why shouldn't I remember? Is anything wrong with my brain? Did I fall down or jump down the shaft after mother fell?"

"No, you fainted," replied the elderly man, who looked as if he were born to be a nice, kind, family doctor. "Nothing is wrong with your brain, we hope and believe."

Meanwhile the third man had gone to a closed door, opened it, and whispered. One second later a dear, familiar form shot past him and rushed to me. "My lamb, my lamb! You've come back!" babbled my old nurse Betsy Bean ("Beanie"), who'd lived with us since before I could walk.

She plumped down on her knees beside my cot and tried to stifle sobs, when the youngish man with the big nose and brilliant eyes said, "Don't forget your promise!"

Perhaps it was partly because her face was crinkled up with crying, but when she came close I saw that she looked years older than she'd looked last night—or whenever it was. I thought I must have been very ill and made her horribly anxious.

. . . .

It would take too long to tell how I found out everything and learned that I, Jessamine Lynd, was a Strange Case. They would have liked to wait till they were sure I was able to bear a shock, but I persisted so and grew so excited that the man with the brilliant eyes said they'd better risk it. He and the old doctor and Beanie stayed in the room, sending the others out, even the nurses; but by this time I'd had a cup of chicken soup and was propped high against pillows. All the funny machine-like things had disappeared, and though I was anxious I felt singularly vital and alive.

It was the old doctor who explained the most, Beanie chiming in now and then, and the youngish man (who was a doctor, too, named Francis Rentoul) watching me quietly while the others talked.

Well, to make a long story short, my "faint" had merged into a trance. At first they thought I was dead. Then they found I wasn't. I was simply asleep. Yet not quite simply, because I went on sleeping, world without end, and became the Eighth Wonder of it, till people grew tired of and forgot me.

Naturally Sir Richard Lynd couldn't, as he said, have his house turned into a sort of museum. Other quarters had to be found for the Strange Case. My uncle took a room for me at a nursing home in a nice (cheap) suburb. There I was gazed at and learnedly discussed by visiting savants. Beanie, who wouldn't desert her Baby Lamb (I wasn't a Strange Case to her!) lurked in lodgings close by and came to weep over the said Lamb day by day.

All sorts of experiments, in the hope of rousing without killing me, were tried by medical men without success. I lay as if quietly asleep — pale, though otherwise natural—and took a little milk now and then, dropped into my mouth from the point of a spoon. I was duly bathed and my hair brushed. Now and then I was changed from one bed to another, always—winter and summer—near an open window. Though the years went on, and waking people who'd been young faded into middle age, I remained to all appearance 17.

At last that astonishing man, Francis Rentoul, had his attention drawn to my case. When he first heard of it he was working in a French hospital curing shell shock of various sorts (cases pronounced hopeless by other experts) with the use of a marvelous electrical "stimulator" which he had invented. It occurred to Rentoul that the stimulator might awaken the "enchanted sleeper," and he made a note to remind him of Jessamine Lynd when he should have time to attend to her. At last, when the war was over and he could get away from work, he came to England (he's an American) on purpose to experiment upon me, if allowed.

He was allowed (it would have been money in Uncle Richard's pocket if I'd exploded or gone up in smoke) and the result was—what I've described. Which brings me back to the moment when it was broken to my intelligence that I'd slept for twenty years—from the night of my mother's death in June, 1899, until June, 1919.

As soon as I heard this I uttered a shriek and demanded a mirror. When Beanie gave me a handglass I shut my eyes for an instant. I was afraid to look lest I should see gray hairs and wrinkles. Not that one need have gray hairs and wrinkles at 37, if I'd stopped to think. But I was so used to being 17 that the ages of 37 and 100 were the same to me.

Soon, however, I screwed up my courage to open my eyes, prepared myself for the worst, and saw—the best!

I mean, I was better looking than I'd ever been and, so far as I could observe, not an hour older. The freckles which used to trouble me were gone. My skin was smooth and creamy white, like ivory, touched with rose on cheeks and lips. Surely my lashes were thicker and darker than before! As for my hair—well, I really did think it perfectly beautiful! It had always been pretty, if rather too straw colored. Now it was bright golden brown and so long that the two fat braids it was plaited in lay like shining snakes on the coverlet.

Dear Beanie had fretted lest I should grow up too plump, but I was satisfyingly slim, and my throat rose out of my plain nightgown long and white.

I loved myself! And the relief was intense.

The next question was, what should be done with me when I left the nursing home?

Sir Richard had been so sure the Stimulator experiment wouldn't succeed after all those years of failure that he hadn't troubled to come up from his country house to be present. He was telephoned for, however, and motored to town promptly. As his place was near Marlow, the journey was short, and the two doctors (Rentoul, who'd lured my spirit back from the Land of Nod, and the Lynd family physician, Dodge) were still with me.

My uncle was kind, but he couldn't help treating me more like a mechanical doll come alive than a human niece. He explained that, though I'd been living—or rather sleeping—at his expense during my long trance, and a certain amount of money had accumulated for me in the bank, there wasn't enough to live on in these days. Just what he meant by "these days" he didn't say, but it was plain that he thought there was something gloomy about them, and I was awesomely thrilled. He must, he added, make me an allowance whatever I decided to do; but it would be less expensive for him if I remained in England.

"In that case," he went on, "you would join us as a member of my family. I've already consulted my wife, and she has talked things over hastily with the girls. They agree with my proposal and will welcome you, of course. The one stipulation they make in the matter is—er—that you consent to change your name of 'Jessamine' to something else, less conspicuous."

"Change my name!" I echoed, staring blankly at him as I sat up in bed. He looked quite twenty years older than he had last night—I mean than he had looked 7,240 nights ago. Also he looked a good deal embarrassed.

"You see, it would—er—be disturbing to family life if everybody who met a new member of the household regarded her as a Strange Case. You were forgotten by the newspapers during the war, but interest would revive unpleasantly again if——"

"My goodness!" I gasped. "Has the Boer war lasted all this time?"

"Boer war?" repeated Sir Richard, his eyes as dull as boiled gooseberries. But suddenly they brightened. "O, of course!" he murmured. "You couldn't know. You will have a good deal to learn in many ways. No, the Boer war was ended, some time ago. There has been another war since. But never mind now. We must decide quickly about your future. If you live with us, as I hope you will, I fear the change of name is essential to the—er—general comfort. Say, 'Mary.'"

I didn't want to change my name or say "Mary," and I didn't want to live with Sir Richard and Lady Lynd. But I couldn't be selfish enough to choose the life which would cost him most. I said I'd stay in England and live, as he liked, and have what name his wife liked, if I could keep Beanie. He consented almost eagerly to this. Mrs. Bean might act as my maid, he remarked.

Beanie as a maid! I didn't see her in the part. But, then, I'd never had a maid. I'd merely read about ladies' maids in books. There they were French, wore high heels, got kissed behind doors by young men, and cried "Mon Dieu!"

When Sir Richard had gone to make arrangements and talk over things with the matron and Dr. Dodge, Beanie herself crept in, on the flattest of heels. Dr. Rentoul had waited to see his patient again after the uncle's departure, she informed me. He wanted to know if I were equal to a short chat with him?

I was glad to say "yes," because I felt instinctively that he took more real, personal interest in my welfare than any one except Beanie. It was almost as if he'd created me!

When he came back into the room and sat where Uncle Richard had sat, holding my hand (Uncle Richard didn't hold it, but he did, a finger on my pulse), I had more time to study Dr. Francis Rentoul than at first. I saw that he wasn't young after all; at least not young as I'd always thought of youth. He might, I decided, be about 40. That still seemed old to me. I couldn't make it feel true that I myself was 37 instead of 17!

He talked to me for a while about my own sensations and symptoms (not that consciously I had symptoms!) and the treatment —electric massage—which was to tone up my unused limbs. The more we talked the better I liked him! I liked his face, too, which reminded me of a picture I'd seen at uncle's —the great duke of Wellington. The same big, clever nose, and brilliant, piercing eyes, which could be kind. I liked Dr. Rentoul as a young girl likes a man too old for her to want to dance with. And my heart went out to him in gratitude for his sympathy about mother, whose loss Uncle Richard had dismissed from our conversation as ancient history.

Dr. Rentoul meant, he said, to stop in England for some weeks before leaving for the far east. And though he dropped no hint that this was for my sake, I had a dim suspicion that he wished to be on hand to "watch the case." Perhaps he feared, if he turned his back too soon, I might drop off to sleep again! But he needn't worry about that, I told myself. His miraculous stimulator had made me feel more alive than I had ever felt. It was as if I'd gone to bed tired out, and waked after a restful nap.

"I sha'n't be seeing you, Miss Lynd," he said. "I'm a busy man in my sphere, and you'll be busy in a very different one. Your relatives are fashionable sort of people, I understand—in these days."

("These days," again! What was so special about these days? I wondered once more.)

"I expect that you'll be very well and very happy," he went on. "You won't want me or any doctor, once you're away from this home. Still, if by chance you should need advice, or help of a sort you couldn't get from those around you, come to me. I'd like you to promise to do that. Will you?"

"Why, yes, thank you," I said. "I'd be glad to promise, if you wouldn't mind being bothered by a stranger, in case I took you at your word."

"I wouldn't mind being 'bothered,'" he repeated, with a smile that had the greatest charm. "You see, I don't feel as if you were precisely a stranger. Perhaps you won't understand, but I have a—sense of responsibility about you."

"O, I do understand!" I assured him. "You mean, for bringing me back?"

"Yes, for bringing you back," he took my definition. "Especially in days like these."

"What kind of days are these?" the question burst out at last.

"Rather wonderful, but—different," he said. "You'll have to discover what they're like for yourself, and that's partly why I—— But I must be saying good-by now. Or—will it be au revoir? For your sake I hope not. For mine—well, we shall see! Here's my card, with an address on it, that'll always find me while I'm in England."

. . . .

I was kept on at the nursing home for the electric massage advised by Dr. Rentoul, and news of my health was sent him by long distance telephone to Manchester, where he was giving a course of lectures on obscure shell shock cases. But, learning that all was well, he paid me no second visit.

My progress amazed every one in the home. At the end of a week I could walk without help, though with rather a mincing step. Then I was pronounced ready to take up life again.

As the Lynds had a house party at Marlow they didn't come to see me, but Lady Lynd intended returning, to entertain me in Norfolk street. There I was to be fitted out with a wardrobe, for my present possessions in that line consisted mostly of nightgowns!

On the seventh day she was to call for me in her car bringing a few garments to get me away in, but at the appointed time a nurse, knocking at my door, announced the Misses Lynd.

There was just a second for me to think "How weird that they should be grown up!" when a couple of objects lolloped into the room.

I almost gasped aloud. I'd never seen anything like them, not even in a comic valentine. They were tall and lean as beanstalks, but their dresses were nearly up to their knees, showing the thinnest legs! I should have thought girls would do anything to hide such spindle shanks. But to make things even worse, they wore silk stockings transparent as gauze. You could see their skin—a pale, shiny pink, like a young mouse before its fur has grown out much.

I didn't know what to make of these caricatures, and could scarcely believe they were my cousins till one of them said, "How do you do? We're Jane and Bridget Lynd."

"O!" I breathed. "I thought my cousins' names were Jeanie and Bridie."

The girls laughed. "One doesn't have names like that in these days! They were for our mothers."

I felt slapped. Did they think I was old enough to be their mother? Perhaps I was in years—nearly, though not quite. But in spite of their dresses—fit only for children of under 10—their faces, I'm sure, were much older than mine. They actually had on powder and paint and red stuff on their lips.

"You are 'Mary' now, aren't you?" Jane asked.

"I suppose so, as you all wish it," I replied.

"It's a whole lot better than 'Jessie,'" said Bridget, "and it will save you from being thought a freak."

"If any one is a freak, my dear, you are!" I said in my sleeve. But I didn't say it aloud. I couldn't understand why they dressed like that! I wondered if it were for a bet or vow?

"We've brought you some togs of ours to roll home in," explained Jane. "Mums has a beastly headache, her poor old bean nearly splittin', so Bick and I buzzed round to fetch you. We're all in town for a bit, doin' a jazz or two, and you can get some glad rags run up in a hurry."

I missed the meaning of half her words. It seemed to me a new language she was speaking. And she dropped off all her final "g's," as I used to hear quite common people do at home.

While she talked a servant knocked and deposited a miniature trunk on the floor. Jane said it was a suitcase and opened it. Then she began tumbling things on to my lap as I sat curled up on a sofa in a dressing gown.

"We didn't know if you'd got undies yet, as you hadn't been out of your room," Bick explained. "So here are some."

"Undies?" I repeated. "What's that word?"

The two squealed with laughter. "O, is that since your day? Well, underclothes, lingerie. My hat, how stiff it sounds!"

Stiff was more than the "undies" looked. They were transparent as handkerchiefs and not much bigger, even the—but I needn't go into details. My startled eyes roved from these films to a gown of sorts, a queer, knitted silk thing with no shape to it and a shepherd's plaid skirt in flat plaits about a yard in length.

"You must be joking," I exclaimed. "You don't expect me to put on these?"

"What's the matter with 'em?" Bick wanted to know.

"They—they're not decent!" I stammered.

Both twins roared with ribald joy. "We're forgetting, Jinks," choked Bick. "She's pre-Edwardian, poor dear—though I must say she doesn't look it."

Then both girls went on to make clear—or as clear as they could, in their post-war language—that what they wore and did and said were the latest, up to datest things to wear and do and say. "Nobody talks of anything so deadly dull as being 'decent' in these days." Jinks patronized me. "You do what's done—or what you think will be done tomorrow. You have to be It—or else out of it. There's nothin' doin' in between."

I was crushed but unconquered, and I wouldn't put on those clothes they'd brought me—that is, the outside ones. I didn't so much mind the "undies" when I came to see myself in them, and a funny little belt of pink satin, invented instead of a corset, was rather nice. The shoes and stockings, too, I accepted, though to my idea primrose colored legs and black feet were horrid. "Feet and ankles" (we didn't mention legs) "of one color" was mother's motto. As for the dress, No! I said I'd rather drive to Norfolk street wrapped in a blanket.

Beanie was sent for, and—I noticed—didn't seem as shocked at my cousin's clothes as I'd been. This made me fear that she must have seen other Objects almost as eccentric, but surely, surely, not quite! These girls who called me a freak were curiosities to me.

When asked if she had kept my clothes, it appeared that the dear old thing had. She pottered off to her lodgings next door, and soon returned with a big bundle. This contained a hat, cloak, a gown, and a pair of corsets; the very ones in which I'd arrived at Norfolk street in 1899.

The corset was a very nice one, going up high to fit the bust, and going in well to fit conversation that had been so incontinently broken off.

She was bareheaded. He had been watching the sun at play among the coils of her soft, dark hair, a glint here as of bronze, a gleam there as of gold, ever changing under the caresses of that flaming lover a hundred million miles away.

The affable Mr. Nicklestick was standing beside Percival, carrying on a more or less one sided conversation.

"You see, it's this way," he was saying, contriving to reduce his far reaching voice to a moderate undertone, "I'm not in the habit of attending Easter services. I'm not opposed to them, believe me, A. A., not in the slightest. Now, at home in New York I make it a habit to walk from the Metropolitan museum down to the Valdorf-Astoria regularly every Easter between 11 and 12:30. You get them going into certain churches and you get them coming out of others, don't you see? O, vat would I give to be on Fif' avenue at this minute, A. A.! A hundred thousand dollars—gladly, villingly—yes, two hundred thousand! I vonder vat things are like on Fif' avenue now, at this minute, I mean. I vonder what the vimmin are wearing this season. My God, don't you vish you were on Fif' avenue, A. A.?"

"What?"

"I say, don't you vish you were on Fif' avenue now?"

"No, I don't," gruffly.

"You—you don't?" gasped Nicklestick. "My God, where do you vish you were?"

"Over in France, or, better still, in Germany—that's where I'd like to be. Keep still! Can't you see Careni-Amori is singing?"

Nicklestick was silent for two minutes. Then he volunteered: "Do you know what that song vould cost if she vas to give it in the Metropolitan Opera house, A. A.? A thousand dollars, von thousand simoleons. And we get it for nothing. It ain't possible to realize that you can get something for nothing in these days, is it? I vas saying to Morrie Shine only this morning that——"

"Sh!" hissed an exasperated Brazilian in front of them.

"I guess we better not talk any more, A. A.," said Nicklestick, deprecatingly. Presently he leaned close to Percival's ear and whispered: "Miss Clinton is looking very fine today, isn't she?" Receiving no reply, he waited a moment and then went on: "Landover is a very lucky dog, eh?" Failing again, he was silent for some time. His next effort was along a totally different line. "I've been feeling some of the people out in regard to the election next week. I think it's a great idea. You got a cinch, A. A. Nobody vants anybody but you for governor. What seems to be——"

"Sh!"

"O, you go to the devil!" addressed the exasperated Mr. Nicklestick to the Brazilian. "Ain't we got freedom of speech here on this island? Vell, then! What seems to be troubling most every one, A. A., is who is the best man for clerk. Nobody vants to be treasurer, for why? Because there ain't anything to be treasurer about. Say, where are you going?"

"Nowhere," replied Percival, as he strode away.

Over against the line of trees on the opposite side of the wheat field still loomed the gibbet from which Sancho Mendez and Dominic had stepped blindfolded into another and darker world. While Pastor Mackenzie, leading up to the glorious resurrection, was repeating the story of the crucifixion Ruth Clinton, sitting behind him on the platform, stared wide eyed at this gaunt object, and she saw not Christ on the cross but the specter of Sancho Mendez walking off into darkness. Percival's gaze followed hers and his heart smote him, for it was he who had demanded that the grewsome reminder be left standing as a warning to carrion. And he had laughed when Peter Snipe christened it the scarecrow!

"Leave it standing, A. A.," Peter had said, "and you can bet your boots no jailbird will ever roost on it if he thinks twice. And it's just that sort of a thing that makes a man think twice."

But the look of dread in the eyes of this girl who could do no wrong and yet was to be everlastingly tortured by the sight of the thing that stood as a silent accuser of all who looked, was more than Percival could stand. Easter Sunday, and that gibbet pointing its long arm toward the little flock in the shadow of sanctuary—mocking the good as it beckoned to the bad—Easter Sunday and that!

He stole quietly away, circling the edge of the crowd, his head bent, his teeth set. Just as he was about to pass from view around the corner of the "tabernacle" he cast a quick glance at the girl on the platform. Their eyes met again. She turned her head quickly, but he was certain that she had followed his movements from the beginning.

Toward the close of the exercises the congregation was startled by the sound of an ax smiting wood. The blows were rapid and vigorous. The surprised people looked at each other first in wonder and then in consternation? Who was guilty of this unseemly sacrilege?

Finally those on the edge of the multitude discovered the wielder of the ax. Some one, not easily recognizable, was chopping away the supports of the scaffold. The crowd grew restless; angry mutterings were to be heard on all sides. Every eye was turned from the platform to glare at the lone chopper across the fallow field.

Mme. Careni-Amori, who was about to begin her second song, looked helplessly at Ruth Clinton.

Ruth had recognized the man at once. At first she was annoyed, then there surged over her a great, uplifting thrill of exaltation. She stepped quickly to the front and, raising her clear young voice, reclaimed the wandering attention of the throng.

"Please be quiet. Mme. Careni-Amori is to sing for us once more. Mr. Percival is knocking down that horrible thing over there. It is right that he should. We do not need it there as a warning. Mr. Percival has had a change of heart. He has been moved, tremendously moved, by what he has seen in your faces today. That is why he is over there now hacking down that dreadful thing. It is the skeleton at our feast. We were conscious of its presence all the time. He is over there all by himself cutting it down so that our hearts may be lighter, so that this glad hour may end without its curse. Please remain where you are. He requires no assistance. He—he prefers to do it all alone. And now, if you will all give attention, Mme. Careni-Amori will sing for us."

The OLD FOGEY by Oney Fred Sweet

He Didn't Seem to Appreciate the Spirit of Hallowe'en at All

JUST what may have been the cause of Mr. Meedwock's disposition, this brief narrative will not attempt to analyze. He may have had some physical ill that irritated. Perhaps he had made a mistake in his marriage. Maybe he was harassed financially, though at the time this story opens he was living in a period when milk was 5 cents a quart, eggs 10 cents a dozen, and soup bones were given away at the butcher shop.

Suffice it to say that Mr. Meedwock was considered an old fogey and a crank—yes, "crank" was the word applied to one in Mr. Meedwock's day who expressed discontent with conditions. Mr. Meedwock had black whiskers that swayed in the wind, and the black branches of mournful trees swayed low in the wind across the front of his house. There was something uncanny about the Meedwock house of a night, because one always knew that its master was within. One knew he was inside there in the room where the light shone against the closely drawn yellow window shade.

Had one known Mr. Meedwock intimately, known his problems, his disappointments, he would probably have proven to have been no crank at all. But to the Benny Askew gang he was a bogey and a fogey—a being who belonged to a remote and uninteresting age. He was the synonym for all that the Benny Askew gang was not. He preferred quiet to hubbub. He wore carpet slippers. He could walk past a ball game on the vacant lot without knowing there was a ball game going on.

The Benny Askew gang caught Mr. Meedwock's number on the occasion when a football was kicked from the vacant lot through Mr. Meedwock's basement window. Mr. Meedwock had opposed a boisterous rush into his premises for the sake of restoring the ball. He cared not a whit that dark was descending and that the result of the game was still in doubt, but he was interested in receiving recompense for the broken pane. According to his understanding of the law, his house was his castle. He had been in ill mood at the moment—thinking, perhaps, of coal that had to be bought for the winter.

But the Benny Askew gang was not of an age to reckon with troubles—physical, financial, or matrimonial. Such things were nonessentials of another world. There was not a member of the gang that did not feel in perfect trim to engage in a scuffle, not a member that did not look upon 6 per cent as smacking of a disagreeable arithmetic problem, not a member that ever expected to sink so dull as to get married and settle down. Meedwocks might encumber the fringe of the world, but the world itself rotated for Benny Askew's gang. It painted every sunset, whispered with every breeze for the age that was theirs—would always be theirs. Mr. Meedwock had always been middle aged and bewhiskered. What did he mean by trying to interfere with the real scheme of things—hanging on to a ball and busting up a game!

Had Mr. Meedwock, several nights later, been less interested in an article on the tariff—it was the tariff to which drab personalities in Mr. Meedwock's day turned for a panacea—and had he been better able to translate the vocabulary of the Askew gang on occasions when, absorbed, he had passed down the street, he might have observed by his calendar that October was not only drawing to a close but that Halloween was at hand as well.

But Mr. Meedwock, unaware that he was a marked man, sat within his house with the yellow shade drawn tight. And as he sat there with the wind sighing in the tree branches that brushed his roof, the Benny Askew gang was forming in silent, shadowy fashion over on the vacant lot. The clan had dined hurriedly but well at various boards; its commissary problem was simple. There was a tang to the air. The clan was in high spirits.

There was but one objective. Most of the hearths in the neighborhood were protected by reason of the fact that they had 14 year old representatives in the mysterious gathering. There was but one objective, and Benny Askew led the way.

Mr. Meedwock's front "stoop" offered considerable resistance, for Mr. Meedwock was somewhat of a carpenter during his odd moments. But it was loosed from its moorings and, with Lieut. Askew cautioning quiet, it was conveyed on the shoulders of the squad and dumped in the middle of the vacant lot, to appear ridiculously out of place when the morning sun should scatter the frost and shadows.

Mr. Meedwock's front gate was hung high in a poplar tree, and his rain barrel was sent in revolving fashion down the cemetery hill. As for Mr. Meedwock's buggy—that vehicle of its day was hauled to the edge of the stone quarry and shoved into the rocky depths below.

And during all this time Mr. Meedwock had been sitting by his lamp, absorbed in an article on the tariff. Finally, there being nothing further to carry off unless it might be the house itself, Chief Askew conceived of a scheme for arousing Mr. Meedwock—arousing him, drawing him outdoors, puzzling him in such a manner that his bewilderment might be witnessed from a point of safety.

Bandit Askew approached the window through which the light shone against the yellow curtain, and to the pane he attached a nail to which was fastened a long string. Returning to his band in ambush, he began manipulating the string in such a way as would cause the nail to "tick tack" against the glass.

Huddled in the darkness across the street, the gang waited expectantly while Benny operated the string. But Mr. Meedwock did not respond. The wind sighed in the branches that beat against the house, but the nail—maybe it wasn't working just right. Benny stole over to investigate.

The door opened suddenly while Benny was monkeying with the contrivance. Against the sploch of light in the doorway there was a huge shadow in which a set of black whiskers loomed with prominence. There was an all too brief chase, and the boss of Benny Askew's gang felt the clutch of iron fingers between his coat collar and his neck.

"Young ruffians," panted Mr. Meedwock, emphasizing his words with a shake of the collar. "You don't seem to show any judgment at all. I can't understand what you're thinking of."

That was what Mr. Meedwock panted in the ear of Benny Askew, 14 year old leader of the Askew gang. And Benny, scared, shaken, but defiant, muttered to his following when he finally succeeded in rounding them up: "The old fogey. He thinks it's terrible because the kids want to have a little fun. The old fogey!"

Glamour slips from the most picturesque of bandits once he has been captured. And a bandit who has been grabbed by the nape of his neck and given a back and forth shake is placed in a very unromantic light before his cohorts. But Benny had his comeback—it was in branding Mr. Meedwock an "old fogey."

The vacant lot became hushed of an evening. Summers passed with no boyish shouts echoing there—save the echo of the shouts that had rung there long summers before. Mr. Meedwock died without ever knowing whether an adjustment of the tariff would solve economic ills or no.

The gang disbanded. It had disbanded the night that Benny Askew, wearing a collar that chafed his throat, took Essie Morris to the movie. It was a long, painful journey—that walk while it was still light down a street with everybody looking on and knowing it was the first time he'd ever walked with a girl—as full of pain as it was of thrills, but he had wanted her to go with him more than he had wanted anything in all his life. Asking her had been hard enough—a girl whose fuzzy hair stuck out from the edge of her hat and whose cheeks were so pink and white. Her consent to go with him had been no light triumph. And as they walked along the day softly faded, and with it the boy that had been Benny Askew.

There was the period when he walked home from school with her, his collar chafing his throat not at all, his hair staying where he brushed it, his manner flippant. They went to dances together and had no trouble with the new steps. He came to call evenings and they sat up long after the rest of the town had gone to bed. And eventually they were married.

His boyhood leadership did not follow him into business life; he went to work for somebody else. He brought a newspaper with him when he came home at night and, instead of going out any place; the time came when he chose to sit home and read. Essie was busy, anyhow, because there were a little Essie and a little Ben. They were both tired enough at the end of the day. They were economizing, too, to pay for their home.

"I don't know about this league of nations," he remarked one night, looking up from his newspaper. "If it would really stop wars I'm for it, but I don't know as I'm keen for mixing too much in the affairs of other countries. What I'd like to see 'em do is cut down the cost of living over here and get some kind of adjustment between capital and labor."

He went to the window and drew the curtain shade down tight.

Coming home that night there had been a tang to the air and he had stopped to order coal.

"All I know," responded Mrs. Askew, "is that everything's awful high at the stores. Somebody must be getting a rakeoff. The store folks say it ain't them."

Mr. Ben Askew bit at the stem of his pipe and turned back to his newspaper.

"The dollar's been inflated," he philosophized. "It's leaked until there's only about 40 cents left in it. I know the way it's been lately I ain't been getting enough 40 cent dollars to go around." He turned sharply in a listening attitude. "What was that noise, Ess?"

"I didn't hear nothing. Trees blowing against the house, I guess."

A moment later he was engrossed in an article concerning the freight car shortage.

"Tick, tack!" There was no mistake this time. Some one was on the front porch. Ben Askew sprang from his chair and jumped to throw open the door. As the door opened a stove pipe full of rust and soot fell across the rug inside and there was the sound of scampering feet on the porch steps.

He rushed outside and clutched at a small shadowy form. His fingers gripped the back of a collar.

"Let go," entreated the captive, "don't you know it's Halloween?"

No, Mr. Askew was not aware that it was Halloween, but he was aware of what had just happened to his rug.

"Young ruffians," panted Mr. Askew, emphasizing his words with a shake at the collar. "You don't seem to show any judgment at all. I can't understand what you're thinking of."

the waist, but my cousins laughed till they cried over it. Bick suggested sending the thing to the British museum, but Jinks was not sure whether it would suit the mummy room, or ought to be featured among skeletons of extinct species.

The sleeves of the pretty summer silk frock brought hysterical tears to their eyes, but I would wear the dress, which fitted me perfectly, and they sobbed into their singular chiffon handkerchiefs when they saw me in it. "Isn't it like nothing on earth?" they asked each other. "Who would have thought our parents and sponsors in baptism could have shown themselves in such horrors? Look at the length of the skirt! She might be a baby in arms, or an old lady of 90 in the shade!"

In my opinion the length of the skirt (which reached to my insteps) was just suited to a girl of 17, whereas I—well, goodness alone knew what I was! I should have feared it was too short; but contrasting with my cousins' skirts, half way to their absurd knees—and no petticoats! I was fairly respectable.

The hat—a kind of sailor—was pronounced impossible. The twins said they could never look even the chauffeur in the face again if I wore it. So on that point I yielded, but I wouldn't have my hair pulled over my ears—I wasn't ashamed of them, I said!

The motor car—which they called a limousine—was a surprise to me. It looked like a boudoir on wheels. The automobiles I remembered were quite different. They had "tonneaux," and if it rained you put up a sort of hood. The speed, too, was bewildering. If I hadn't been too proud I should have seized my cousins' hands and panted. But instead I bit my lips and prayed. Beanie was sitting with the chauffeur (somewhat to his disgust, I fancied), and her back looked so broad and calm it comforted me a little. This was well, because what I saw of the streets made me feel as if I needed comfort.

The girls hadn't deceived me after all. Other women were going about loose in the same barefaced—or, rather, bare legged—manner, contriving to look, somehow, as if they had on nothing under their dresses, and wanted every one to know it.

Lots of men, too, wore the most curious suits; a nasty, mustard yellow brown, with caps to match. Jinks and Bicks went into fits again when I remarked upon this.

"The poor old thing has never seen khaki!" they squealed, and explained to me that it was the uniform in which the war had been fought and won by the allies. O, how dreary it was compared to the fascinating uniforms I remembered, which made you feel you must marry into the army whether you were in love or not! I hated being called an "old thing" by females who looked old enough to be my aunts, but the epithet didn't sound as insulting as it might because they used it for each other, varied by "old kid" or "old egg," which last struck me as peculiarly offensive.

I seemed to experience a thousand sensations before the haughty chauffeur drew up at the house I remembered. The sight of it with its window boxes and awnings was like a warm, kind breath from a peaceful past, because it might have been yesterday when mother and I alighted there from a four wheeled cab, blissfully ignorant of our fate. I yearned to get indoors, into the atmosphere of other days which nice old furniture gives. But, merciful goodness, I had a shock!

The comfortable square entrance hall, with its oak paneling and its red lincrusta walton hung with sporting pictures was now—a scream! I can't think of any other word to express the colors, and the pattern of the gold and black stuff on the wall which was like streaks of lightning.

As for the drawing room, where I was taken for tea, it was a nightmare: a black carpet, a black dado on a white wall; great divans of gold tissue piled with cushions of every crude color under the sun, blues and greens and stark purples huddled together, though I had always been told to keep them far apart. The remembered furniture was gone, and nearly everything was made of bright green or red, with Chinese people and temples in gold. Lacquer, Bick said it was; and about the pictures I dare not speak. I couldn't even tell what they were meant to represent.

When it dawned upon the girls that I didn't admire the decorations, they moaned, "Isn't she priceless? Of course, she's never heard of Bakst, or Augustus John, or Nevinson, or any one!"

We were at this stage when Lady Lynd came in, and when I saw that she also had a dress nearly to her knees (at her age, when she had to wear a wig or something on her head, the color of mahogany!) my knees felt like poached eggs. It seemed as if every tradition was swept away from me.

They hustled me through tea and upstairs for fear any one should come and see my "funny old frock"; but my bedroom was just as bad in its way as the drawing room. It had black and red check curtains, and I don't know what of other terrors!

Kindly (she thought) but firmly Lady Lynd insisted that I must conform with the fashion of "these days." I must let the girls lend me things of theirs till I possessed things of my own, she said. Tired out at length, I wavered, and consented at least to see the things suggested. After this there was a pause, as between two shocks of earthquake; then arrived Jinks and Bick, dressed (heaven save the mark!) for dinner.

I hadn't seen them till now without their hats, and the sudden baldness of their foreheads struck me like a blow. Their hair was strained back at the top but pressed forward over the cheeks, and involuntarily I put up a hand to touch my own little soft tendril curls, such as are meant to stray over a woman's brow. Their faces were pale with powder (instead of wholesome pink and white like mine) and their lips, being painted geranium red, gave quite an evil effect with their black hair. They seemed to be draped in a few wisps of tulle, scarlet in one case, gold in another; and what little there was above the waisted stayed up, I don't know how! All I'm certain of is that there weren't even straps over the shoulders. Luckily the girls had no more figure than ship's biscuits, otherwise—but these are details it's better not to dwell on.

Later I learned from fashion plates and criticism of myself by my cousins that the smart thing was to be quite flat and have immensely long legs with little more shape than pipestems. But at the moment the two confined themselves to urging my acceptance of a few bits of thin stuff which they called "ninon." "Ninon's specially suitable for you," they giggled. But I didn't agree—anyhow, so little of it—and as a compromise I went to bed.

That was only the first of many compromises, most of them in the form of frocks. I drew the line at my shoulder blades and ankles. But when new things came home I found that the said line had been a good deal waived by the dressmakers. Consequently I was never at ease, and dis-ease bears a sad resemblance to the sulks. I was like the bat in the fable, who could fight neither for birds nor beasts. I hung between past and present, as Mahomet's coffin hung between heaven and earth. My relatives were ashamed of me and I was ashamed of them and myself.

"A pretty little frump," I heard one of Bick's young men say of me behind my back. "One doesn't know how to get at her. She has no personality of her own."

Which was hard, considering how earnestly I tried to hide my "personality," not to be a "freak" in a world of bewilderingly different freaks!

This happened after we'd gone to Marlow, where the house was no more restful than the one in town. I went in from watching the twins' "crowd" jazz on the lawn to dish smashing strains on the gramophone, and wept on Beanie's shoulder—the one comfortable spot where I felt thoroughly at home.

"What shall I do, Beanie darling?" I wailed.

"Do, my precious?" she flung back fiercely. "Do what I've been praying for you to do since you waked up, only it wasn't my place to tell you unless you asked. Be yourself—your beautiful, old fashioned little self, simple as a violet and sweet as a rose. Show the men what a young girl ought to be like, and take 'em all away from those two futurist cats!"

Wasn't it clever of Beanie to call Jinks and Bick "futurist cats"?

Somehow, as I listened to this advice, I knew that I could follow it. I wanted to follow it. I could hardly wait! That night I lay awake and built up a plan. Next morning I began to carry it out.

I said frankly to Uncle Richard that I felt myself a burden on the household, yet I didn't want to cause him expense. Would he lend me the disused lodge at the west gate, and let me furnish it with discarded things that had been packed away in the garret? Beanie and I would live there alone, and we could all visit each other every day. The poor man tried not to beam with joy as he consented.

There were lovely old pieces of furniture in the attic, and I had my choice. It was the first thing I'd enjoyed since coming to live with the Lynds. I had carte blanche in chintzes and wall papers, and gradually the little den took on the air of dear days I had known. I put potpourri and lavender and flowers everywhere; then I attended to myself. Beanie and I remade all my old clothes from America so cleverly that they might have been fashioned at any time. I wore my hair, not in the newest, but in the most becoming fashion, and when I went to the big house for tennis, a thé dansant—or a dinner when some girl guest had failed at the last minute—I simply behaved as it had been nice for girls to behave in 1899. I didn't use any slang. I said right out that I hated jazz music. I'd rather spend an afternoon in an ironmonger's shop. I flirted—not in the bold, architectural way of 1920, but in the girly-girly, downcast then uplifted eyes way, of the year when I was a "bud." I wouldn't smoke, I wouldn't play golf or do anything rough. I didn't boast that I could row or manage a punt better than any one else. Instead, I hinted to men to teach me, and made them think they'd offered to do so themselves.

Jinks and Bick would have bet thousands of pounds against my success if they'd known in time what I was up to. Yet I did succeed beyond my—beyond Beanie's—wildest dreams. The little lodge among the lilies and roses became a sort of shrine.

For a while revenge was sweet. It was peaches and cream. Beanie did nothing but grin like a Cheshire puss. "Cats!" she'd mutter under her breath. "They think a girl can't get a man unless she smokes like a chimney and dances like a demon, and talks slang like a—a guttersnipe! They say it's common for a woman to have a figure that sticks out anywhere. She must show her legs if she wants to be smart! But we'll teach 'em, my lamb and I! We'll show 'em that the more a man doesn't see the more he wants to see, and curved is the line of beauty in 1920, as it was when Eve stepped out of Adam's rib. The more female a pretty woman is the more a male man will admire her, provided she's got sense to be herself and not copy other women. So there you are!"

So there I was.

Capt. Lynd (the grubby boy I'd met twenty years ago) came home from India, visited the shrine, and proposed to me. So did half his friends who spent week-ends at Marlow. So did more than half the twins' "best boys," and one South African millionaire. I lured them to it, in all the old fashioned ways I knew or had inherited and had never discarded as worn out. I blushed. I made great play with my eyelashes. I cried a little now and then, but never enough to make my nose red. I danced the old dances I remembered in dresses that suited them. I sang "Annie Laurie" and "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms." O, it worked like magic, and I was getting my own back when the blow fell!

It was just after the business of the millionaire who'd been marked down for Bick. And on the top of that had come the proposal from Willie Lynd.

My uncle and aunt walked down to the lodge as I was about to dress for a ball at their house; and Lady Lynd—braver than her husband—began putting into clear, concise words what the family thought of me. Sir Richard would have preferred to be anywhere else, but he was lashed to the mast. (She did rather look like one!)

I was, according to Lady Lynd, a designing snake in the grass; and when I asked if there were such things it only made her worse. Evidently I'd contrived to crawl out of the grass, to find lodgment in the family bosom and then bite the hand that fed me. If I'd lived a century earlier I should have been burned as a witch and deserved it. But the end had come! It was the duty of parents to protect their children, and Jinks, Bick, and Willie had got to be saved from my machinations.

A perfectly good, brand new millionaire was being brought by some one to the dance that night, and Lady Lynd desired that I would not appear.

"We have wired a tourist agency to get you a ticket at once for the States, no matter what port; expense no object," she added. "We will pay your fare and that of the dreadful old harridan who aids and abets you. After you reach your native land you will have enough to shift for yourself. Or if not you have but to offer yourself to a freak museum and you can earn a fortune. We don't care how conspicuous you make yourself when you are 3,000 miles away from us."

I said nothing, but inwardly I was tempted to sneak, in my prettiest muslin frock—à la Gainsborough—to the house and use my most reliable old world methods to nab the new millionaire. The mood passed in a storm of tears, however, when the avenging angels had gone.

I was dreadfully sorry for myself, but I was sorry for them, too. I didn't want to make a fortune in a freak museum. I didn't know what I wanted to do! It seemed as if the best thing for every one would be for me to die. Yet I was strong and vital, and I'd slept so long that I retained all the joy of life I'd had at 17—as well as the looks that had led me astray. My soul rebelled against self-destruction. But, I told myself, I wouldn't so much mind going to sleep again.

Suddenly, with this idea, a great thought flashed into my head—the thought of Francis Rentoul. I had his address in London. He might not yet have gone. If he had, I felt he would have sent a message of good-by. It was late, but not too late. Beanie and I looked up trains. We could catch one for town and arrive before midnight. I wouldn't ask for one of Sir Richard's motors, so we walked to the station and got there just in time.

At Paddington we found a taxi and rushed to Half Moon street. What if Dr. Rentoul were out, or away, or I were refused at the door? My heart beat to suffocation. Everything seemed suddenly to depend on finding him, and I could have sobbed a thanksgiving when a butler looking person (landlord of the lodgings, perhaps) said that the doctor had just come in from delivering a lecture. If I were a patient——.

"O, I am!" I snatched the words from his mouth.

I was allowed to enter. The landlord tapped at a door on the ground floor, and in a sedate voice mentioned my name—my real name. Jessamine Lynd seemed to rouse no recollection in him.

Instantly the door flew open. Francis Rentoul—his eyes more brilliant than ever—almost pulled me in, while Beanie (to whom I'd not told my purpose) sat down to wait in the hall.

Tears of joy were in my eyes as I sobbed, "O, why did you never come to see me—and give me good advice?"

"I waited," he said gravely, "for you to come to me."

"Did you think I would come?" I choked. He was still holding my two hands in one of his. With the other he took his big, good smelling silk "hanky" and dabbed my eyes. "Yes," he answered, "I thought you would come—sooner or later."

"Why?"

"Well, you were bound to be a storm center. And when you were tired of being it, I believed—I hoped—you'd turn to me."

"You were right!" I wept. "I'm so unhap-happy!"

"You were bound to be that, too, poor girl, in the set you were in. You see, the sort of young women you've been among have gradually leaked from the nineteenth century into the twentieth, as easily as they breathe. But you were flung headlong from one century into another. You've lived in a sort of continuous mental earthquake."

"That's just it," I sighed. "But it wasn't my fault, though every one is so cross."

"No, in a way it's my fault. But I'm not cross!"

"I'm glad you're not," I said. "Because I've come to ask your help, as you told me I might. I can't go on living as I've lived! You waked me up to the twentieth century. I beg you to send me to sleep again till the next, when maybe the world will have turned back to my ways again. O, do! You can, can't you?"

"Perhaps I could," he answered slowly. "But I don't want to. Would Pygmalion have turned Galatea—his beautiful handiwork—back to marble? She had to pray to her patron goddess to get that done. You see, Pygmalion loved his Galatea."

"But," I burst out. "But——"

"Yes, I do. That was what you were going to ask, wasn't it?"

"I couldn't have asked!"

"No, because you really are what your cousins called 'pre-Edwardian.' But I'll tell you without being asked. I love—I adore you, my Galatea! And if instead of going back to sleep, you stay awake for me, I'll take you, not into the nineteenth century, but into the age of beautiful legend before people bothered to separate one century's style from another. I've been waiting only for you—for this to happen. Now, I'm going to Kashmir, to look for a plant I've been reading about in a wonderful old book, a plant that may give to human beings something like the elixir of youth. I believe I shall find it. But even if I don't, you will give me the elixir—you and your sweet old fashioned love. Will you come with me?"

"O, yes!" I cried. "I know now I must have loved you all the time, and this was meant to be."

had time to get ourselves in hand. There is a right and a wrong way to handle this thing, and we've got to be sure we're right. The guilty cannot escape. They haven't a chance, and you know it. So, let's be sure, let's be dead sure before we accuse any man.

"We have no right to charge Manuel's gang with this crime. The guilty men may be here among us, absolutely unsuspected. Chizler! You and Soapy Shay go over and tell those men that we are taking a count of all the people in this camp. Tell them to come and answer to their names. They will be safe."

The count was never completed. Manuel Crust did not wait for his name to be called. He pushed his way through the crowd, leaving his followers behind. Advancing to the foot of the steps he cried out hoarsely to Percival:

"If you want your men, I—I, Manuel Crust, will lead you to one of them. He is up there in the wood. Three men are guarding him. He is Sancho Mendez, the blacksmith. Listen, I will tell you. It is the God's truth I tell.

"There were seven of us hiding out there in the wood. We were scared. We heard our names called out. We had heard the threats to burn us alive. We ran away. We were not cowards, but still we ran away. We would wait till the crowd cooled off. That was my advice. Then we would return—then we would help to find the men who did it—and we would help to burn them alive.

"An hour ago Sancho Mendez crawled out of the brush up there above the landing, and begged us to protect him. His leg was broken. He had fallen over a log. You all know Sancho Mendez. He was a good boy. He was the friend of Boss Percival. He was no friend to me. But he swears he will be my slave forever if I will save him. Then he tells us everything. When I ask him why the hell he run away, he says he lose his mind or something. He just go crazy, he says. He say everybody was chasing him—he could hear them in the bushes, he could hear that girl screaming out his name—and all that. He was going to jump in the water and drown, because he say people tell him always it is the easy way to die.

"But he falls down and breaks his leg, here below the knee. He cannot run no more. It is all up. He is afraid to breathe. People are all around him with knives and axes and clubs. He can hear them in the bush. Then the daylight comes, and he sees us down below in the wood, and he says he thanks God. I will be his friend—I will save him because I am an angel from heaven! Bah! I spit in his face. We tie him to a tree with our belts, and then I come down to tell Boss Percival we have his man—his good and loyal friend."

"Stop!" yelled Percival as the crowd began to show symptoms of breaking away. "Listen to me! I give you fair warning. I don't want to do it, but, by God, I'll order these men to shoot the first who tries to start anything. We're going to have law and order here. This man Sancho is going to have a fair trial. What's more, he had a companion. What does he say of the other man, Manuel Crust?"

"Sancho Mendez says he was alone. There was no other man."

Percival looked hard into Manuel Crust's bloodshot eyes. An appalling thought had suddenly flashed into his mind. Many seconds passed before he dared to open his lips. As if by divine revelation the situation lay bare before him—the whole Macchiavelian scheme as conceived by Manuel. Sancho Mendez was to be sacrificed!

Even as he stood there speechless the plan began to work toward its well calculated end. Manuel's friends started to harangue the crowd. They were growling hoarse invectives, shaking their fists in the direction of the wood, fanning the pent-up fury of the mob into a whirlwind that would sweep everything before it. Once the tide turned there would be no stopping it until Sancho Mendez was torn to pieces. He would shriek his innocence into deaf ears. And that was Manuel's game.

Percival's heart leaped with joy as he saw the armed force under Lieut. Platt move swiftly into a position barring the way to the woods. He thrilled with a mighty pride in the shrewd intelligence and resourcefulness of this trained fighting man from the far-off homeland.

Manuel Crust was turning away to mingle with the crowd. Quick as a flash Percival was down from the steps and at the "Portugee's" side. He grasped the man's arm.

"I've got a gun against your back," he cried in fierce, suppressed tones. "Stand still and keep your mouth shut, or I'll drill a hole through you. You're safe if you do as I tell you, Crust. I'm on to your little game. I'm not saying you are the guilty man, but you know who is—and it won't work."

Manuel Crust was as rigid as a block of stone. He did not even turn his head to look into the face of the man who held him.

Michael Malone and Landover were at Percival's side in an instant. From their position on the steps they could see what was not visible to the crowd beyond—the revolver that was pressed against the small of Crust's back.

"Cover this man," whispered Percival to Malone. "Shoot if he opens his mouth."

Malone's revolver was jammed against the "Portugee's" back, and Percival sprang up the steps.

Manuel Crust shot a look of surprise at Abel Landover.

"What the hell—" he began, but choked off the words at a command from Malone. While Percival was rapidly calling out orders from above, he broke out recklessly again, addressing the stern faced banker.

"Are you my friend or not?" he snarled. "What kind of a man are you? Speak up! Tell them I'm all right."

"Keep quiet," warned Malone.

Landover's eyes met the searching, questioning gaze of the Portuguese. Manuel Crust apparently was satisfied with what he read in them, for a quick gleam of confidence leaped into his own. His chest swelled with a tremendous intake of breath.

The remarkable personality, or perhaps the magnetism, of the "boss" again asserted itself. He made no allusion to the thing uppermost in his mind as he spoke hurriedly, emphatically to the tense throng. When he directed Randolph Fitts to take a few picked men with him up into the woods to bring down the captive, there were mutterings, but no move on the part of the crowd either to anticipate or to follow the detachment. A few terse words to Buck Chizler sent that active young man after Fitts, the bearer of instructions.

Sancho Mendez was to be brought in alive. His guards were not to be given a chance to kill him when they realized that the scheme had failed and he would be allowed to tell his own story.

With the departure of Fitts and his men, Percival ordered the people to return to their cabins. He promised them that Sancho Mendez should have his just deserts. Slowly, reluctantly the crowd broke up and shuffled away in small groups across the dewy green. Manuel Crust was free to go. The few words that passed between Landover and Percival, although unheard by the man, sufficed to put courage back into his heart. He had come to look upon the banker as his pal! And his pal had not failed him!

This is what Landover said to Percival:

"Whatever may be in your mind, Percival, I want to say this to you: I was in Manuel Crust's cabin when the thing happened. There were eight of us there. I can point out to you the other six. I must beg you to overlook the fact that we are not friends, and believe what I am saying. It is the absolute truth."

"I will take your word for it, Mr. Landover," said Percival, after a moment. "I am aware of your dealings with Crust and his crowd. I don't know what the game is, but I do know that you have been fostering discontent—it may even amount to revolt—among these men. If you say you were with Crust and that he was not out of your sight all evening, I will believe you. You may be a misguided, domineering fool, Mr. Landover, but you are honest. You have failed to appreciate what you were stirring up, what you were letting yourself and all the rest of us in for, that's all."

Landover flushed. He compressed his lips for a second or two before speaking.

"My opposition to you as a dictator, Percival, hardly warrants the implication that I am in a sense responsible for the devilish thing that happened last night."

"I grant you that," said Percival. "Nevertheless, it is your purpose to down me, no matter what it costs—isn't that true?"

"No, it is not true. There is an honest, sincere belief on the part of some of us that you are not the man to rule this camp. You may call it politics, if you like, or revolt, if you prefer."

"We'll call it politics, Mr. Landover. It was not politics that made me the superintendent of construction here, however. I've looked after the job to the best of my ability. I am ready to retire whenever the people decide they've found a better man. You may be right in supposing that Manuel Crust is the right man for the job, but I don't agree with you."

Landover started. "Nothing is farther from my thoughts than to turn the affairs of this camp over to Crust," he said.

"Once more I agree with you. But that is what you will be doing, just the same. If you think that Manuel Crust is going to play second fiddle to you, Mr. Landover, you'll suddenly wake up to find yourself mistaken. You know what Crust is advocating, don't you? Well, I guess there's nothing more to be said on the subject."

"We will drop it, then," said Landover curtly. "I merely want you to understand that Crust had no hand in last night's affair. I can vouch for that."

"Can you vouch for each and every member of his gang?"

"I know nothing about his gang, as you call it. If I am not mistaken this fellow Mendez is one of your pet supporters. He may be double crossing you."

"We'll see. For the present your friend Crust is safe. As long as he lives within the law he is all right. We're going to have law and order here, Mr. Landover. I want you to understand that. The best evidence that most of us want law and order is the incredible manner in which these people have curbed their natural instincts."

"No one wants law and order more than I," said Landover.

"And I suppose Manuel Crust is of the same mind, eh?"

"So far as I know he is," replied the other firmly.

Percival looked at him in blank astonishment. "Well, I'm damned!" he said after a moment. "Do you really believe that?"

"It does not follow that he is an advocate of lawlessness and disorder because he happens to be opposed to some of your pet schemes, does it, Mr. Percival?" inquired Landover ironically.

"One of my pet schemes happens to conflict seriously with Manuel's pet scheme, if that will strengthen your argument any, Mr. Landover."

"I don't believe Crust ever had any such thought," said the other flatly.

"We're not getting anywhere by arguing the point," said Percival. He turned to walk away.

"Just a moment," called out Landover, after the younger man had taken a few steps. "See here, Percival, I don't want you to misunderstand me. If there is anything in this talk about Crust—you know what I mean—and if it should come to the point where stern measures are required, I will be with you, heart and soul. You know that, don't you?"

Percival studied the banker's face for a moment. "I've never doubted it for an instant, Landover. We may yet shake hands and be friends in spite of ourselves."

Landover turned on his heel and walked away, and Percival, with a shrug of his shoulders, set about making preparations to safeguard Sancho Mendez when he was brought in from the wood. He posted a number of reliable, cool headed men around the meeting house, many of them being armed. Arrangements were made for barricading the door and the few windows. The prisoner was to be confined in the building, a long, low structure, and there he was to tell his story and stand trial. There was to be no delay in the matter of a trial.

Percival, Peter Snipe, Flattner, and several others strode out from the meeting house and swept the long line of huts with serious, apprehensive eyes. They had expected to find the people congregated at some nearby point, ready to swoop down upon the prisoner the instant he appeared with his captors at the edge of the wood. To their amazement and relief the people had taken Percival's command literally. They had retired to their huts, and but few of them were to be seen, even on their doorsteps.

"Can you beat it?" cried Snipe. "By golly, boys, they've put it squarely up to us. It's the greatest exhibition of restraint and confidence I've ever known. This couldn't have happened at home. Hello!"

The gaze of all was centered upon two persons who walked rapidly in the direction taken by Fitts and his party. No one spoke for a few seconds. Flattner, after a quick look at Percival's set, scowling face, was the first to speak. To a certain degree he understood the situation. It was out of pure consideration for his friend's feelings that he said:

"I'll go and head 'em off, A. A."

"Thanks, old chap, but there's no sense in getting yourself disliked. I'll do it. I'm in bad already, and besides I'm the one who gave the order."

Near the end of the row of huts he drew alongside of Ruth Clinton and Landover.

"The order was meant for every one, Miss Clinton," he said levelly. "Am I to understand that you have decided to ignore it?"

She stopped short and drew herself up haughtily. Their eyes met. There was defiance in hers. She did not speak. Landover confronted Percival, white with fury.

"I am capable of looking after Miss Clinton," he exclaimed. "Your beastly officiousness——"

"You will go back to your cabin at once, Miss Clinton," said Percival, ignoring Landover.

She did not move.

"Miss Clinton came out here at my suggestion," said Landover. "If you have any more bullying to do confine yourself to me, Percival."

"I am not doing this because I enjoy it, Miss Clinton," went on the young man, still looking into her unwavering eyes. "I am sorry it is necessary to remind you that there are no privileged classes here. You will have to obey orders the same as every one else."

"Very well," she said, suddenly lowering her eyes. "Take me back to the cabin, Mr. Landover. There is nothing more to say."

Percival stood aside. They walked past him without so much as a glance at his set, unsmiling face. Landover slipped an arm through hers. She did not resist when he drew her up close to his side. Percival saw him lean over and speak to her after they had gone a few paces. His lips were close to her ear, but, though his voice was low and repressed, the words were distinctly audible to the young man.

"Ruth, darling, I am sorry—I can't tell you how sorry I am for having subjected you to this insult. God, if I could only help matters by resenting it I—"

She broke in, her voice as clear as a bell.

"O, if I were only a man—if I were only a man!"

They were well out of hearing before Percival looked despairingly up at the pink and gray sky and muttered with heartfelt earnestness:

"I wish to God you were. I'd like nothing better than to be soundly thrashed by you."

. . . .

Just before sunset that evening Sancho Mendez was publicly hanged. Confessing the crime, he went stoically to the rude gibbet at the far edge of the wheat field and paid the price in full. He had been tried by a jury of twelve, and there was absolutely no question as to his guilt. His companion, a lad named Dominic, fled to the forest, and it was not until the second day after the hanging that he was found by a party of man hunters, half starved and half demented. He was hanged at sunrise on the following day.

Manuel Crust considered himself glorified. After a fashion he posed as a martyr. Some sort of cunning, as insidious as it was unexpected, caused him to assume on air of humility. He went about shaking his head sorrowfully, as if cut to the quick by the unjust suspicions that had been heaped upon him by the ignorant, easily persuaded populace.

Sentiment began to swing toward him. He and his so-called followers were vindicated. It was his gloomy, dejected contention that if Providence had not intervened he and his honest fellows undoubtedly would have been placed in the most direful position, so strong and so bitter was the prejudice that conspired against him. He was constantly thanking Providence. And presently other people undertook to thank Providence, too. They began to regard Manuel as a much abused man.

Easter Sunday was bright and clear, following a fortnight of cold, penetrating winds and rain. The sun smiled, but it was a cold smile that mocked rather than cheered. The sky was the color of thin, transparent ice; the vast white dome was unspotted by a single cloud; the rose tints of early morn, frightened away at birth by the chill, unfeeling glare, took with them every promise of tenderness that dawned with the new day. But, though the sky was hard, the air was soft; the tang of the salt sea spice lay over everything.

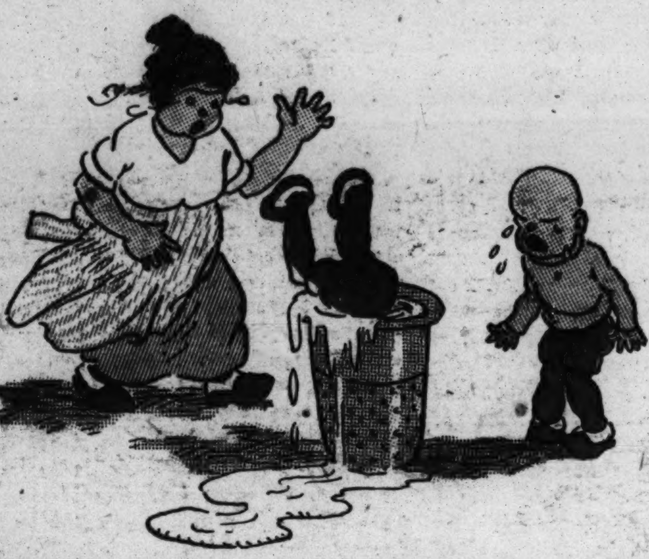
Percival had no active part in the exercises arranged by Ruth. The song service was held in the open. A platform had been erected in front of the "tabernacle" (the meeting house on occasion) for the choir and musicians. There were no seats for the congregation. Every one stood bareheaded in a wide semicircle facing the platform.

The "boss" took his place inconspicuously among those who formed the outer fringe of the assemblage. His gaze seldom left the face of the girl he loved. Once her eyes met his. She was on the platform discussing arrangements with the two clergymen when her roving, unsettled gaze chanced to fall upon him. For many seconds she stared at him fixedly, so fixedly, in fact, that Father Francisco after a moment shot a look in the same direction. Even from his far off post Percival saw the color mount to her cheeks as she hastily turned away to resume the

THE TEENIE WEENIES

THE LITTLE FOLKS HAVE A TROUBLESOME DAY.

BY WM. DONAHEY.

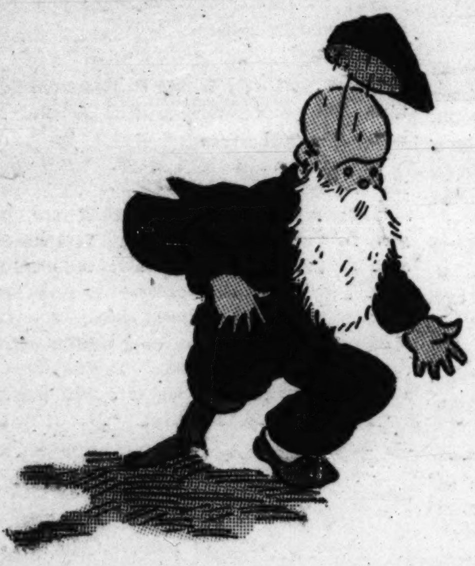


WHETHER it was because the Teenie Weenies crawled out the wrong side of the bed when they got up in the morning or because thay had bad dreams, no one can say, but anyhow the day was a most unpleasant one.

To start the day, the Cook overslept, and the Teenie Weenies had to wait almost half an hour for their breakfast.

If there is one thing in all the world that a Teenie Weenie likes it's to have his breakfast all ready for him when he rolls out of his Teenie Weenie bed.

Having to wait for their breakfast made the little folks somewhat cross, and that is a bad way to start the day.



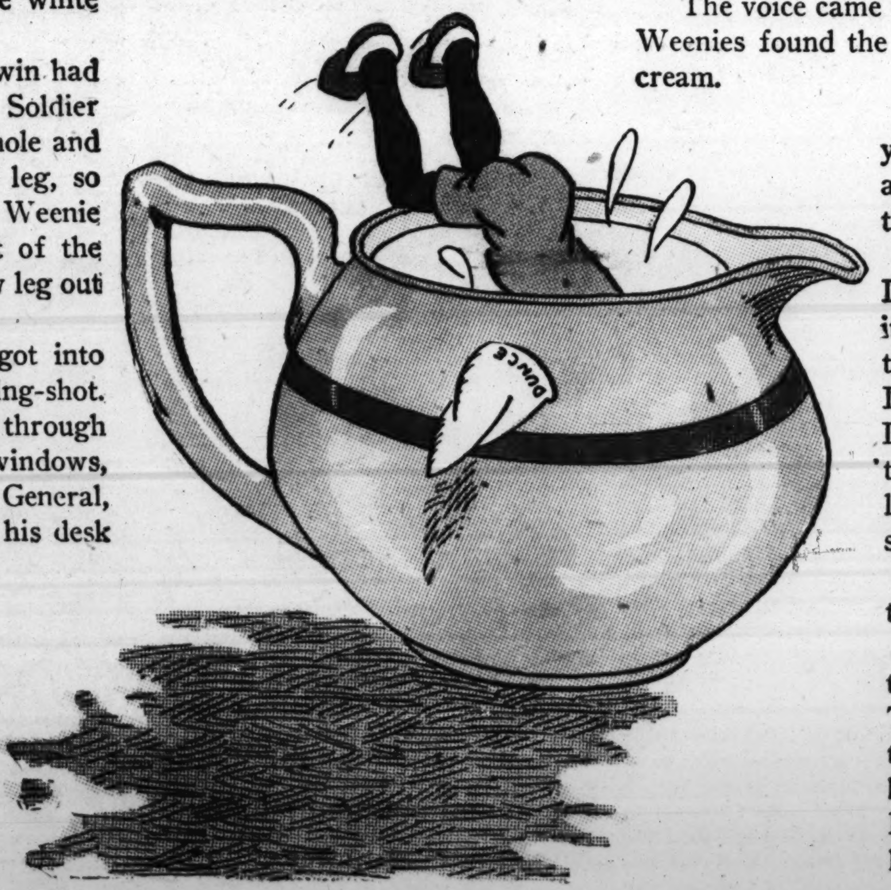
Right after breakfast one of the Lover twins set up a loud howl, and when Mrs. Lover looked out the window she saw that one of her offspring had tumbled into a thimbleful of water.

The little chap's feet were all that she could see, and the tiny mother lost no time in pulling her child out of the thimble.

The poor little fellow was half drowned, but the mother stood him on his head and shook three or four drops of water out of him, and after he had been rubbed for half an hour he was quite himself again, although he was a little white around the ears.

Shortly after the twin had been rescued the Old Soldier stepped into a worm hole and splintered his wooden leg, so that prominent Teenie Weenie had to spend the rest of the morning making a new leg out of a match.

Next, the Clown got into trouble with his sling-shot. He shot an apple seed through one of the library windows, and just missed the General, who was working at his desk in the tiny room.



"Great grief!" bellowed the General, "what next will happen today? Send the Clown to bed, and see that he gets nothing to eat but bread and water."

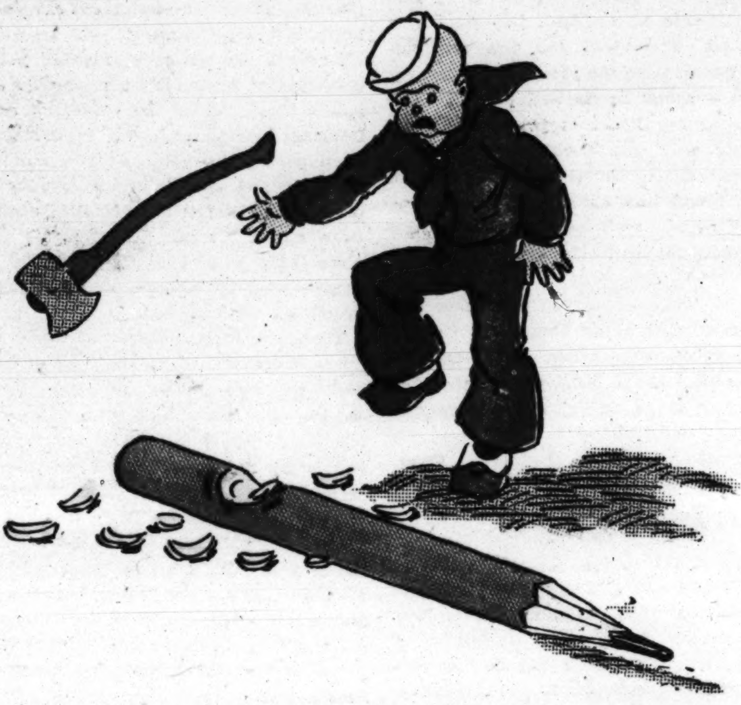
While the Clown was breaking the window, Grandpa fell off a hickory nut and received a bad bump on his bald little head.

The old gentleman had gone out for a walk, and stopping to rest he sat down on the hickory nut, which being quite round rolled over and spilled the old fellow.

The Doctor was called to attend Grandpa, but before the Doctor could dress the bump on the old gentleman's head word was brought that the Sailor had cut his foot.

The Sailor was chopping up a lead pencil into fire wood for the kitchen stove when the ax slipped and nearly cut off one of his Teenie Weenie toes.

"Land sakes," complained the General, "what next is going to happen today?"



"The Dunce is missing, sir," said the Cook. "I sent him out about three hours ago to get some salt and he hasn't returned."

"Where did he go?" asked the General.

"To the big green house back of the vacant lot," answered the Cook.

"Well, we'll go and look him up," growled the General. "Of all the troublesome days this is the worst." The General selected several Teenie Weenies to help him and set out for the house, where they soon heard the Dunce howling for help.

The voice came from a pantry shelf, and climbing up the Teenie Weenies found the Dunce standing up to his neck in a pitcher of cream.

"What in the name of common sense are you doing in that pitcher?" shouted the General. "Haven't I told you to keep out of such things?"

"Y-y-y-es, s-s-s-sir," stuttered the frightened Dunce. "Y-y-you s-s-s-see, G-G-G-General, it's this way. The Cook asked me to come over to this house and see if I couldn't find some salt. I came over here, and while I was lookin' 'round I saw this pitcher and I crawled up on the handle to look in. I saw the nice thick cream and I leaned down to get a lick on my finger, when I s-s-s-slipped in."

The Dunce was pulled out of the pitcher, taken home, given a bath and sent to bed.

Many other little unpleasant things happened that day; in fact, they did not stop until the Teenie Weenies were tucked into their tiny beds that night, and even then the trouble followed the little folks, for several had bad dreams, and the Dunce kept most everybody awake by yelling in his sleep.

WEST WIND DRIFT by George Barr McCutcheon

THE STORY—Set helplessly adrift by an explosion of bombs planted by German agents, the great liner Doraine, bound from South America for a port in the United States, has been all but wrecked by a storm and then driven by wind and tide into a basin which is the center of an uninhabited island. Here the ship runs aground, and the survivors of the disaster set about planning for a future in which the hope of rescue seems hopelessly remote. The dominant figure among them is Algernon Adonis Percival, an American mining engineer, who started the voyage as a stowaway, his money having been stolen at the port of embarkation. In the general bewilderment over the strange situation Percival's natural qualities of leadership have asserted themselves, bringing him a position of some authority and, incidentally, the interested regard of two women —Ruth Clinton, an American girl, traveling with her aunt, Mrs. Spofford; and Olga Obosky, a Russian dancer. In directing the work of building huts and exploring the island Percival clashes with Abel Landover, a famous capitalist, who refuses to submit to discipline and is worsted in a hand to hand encounter with the young engineer. This proceeding Ruth resents as needlessly brutal, and she begins treating the young engineer with marked coolness, though it is clear that, in spite of herself, she is already in love with him. Mutiny of a more serious nature develops presently among a lawless element led by Manuel Crust, a Portuguese gang foreman. One night Percival meets a woman who comes toward him, her arms outstretched, and Percival, thinking it is Ruth, kisses her. He has just discovered that it is not Ruth, but Olga Obosky, when two men run past in the dark and the sound of women's voices rises in the distance.

TWELFTH INSTALLMENT.

The Gibbet in the Wheat Field.

PERCIVAL'S blood was still in a tumult as he ran down the line of cabins. From every doorway men were now stumbling, half-dressed, half-asleep. Behind them, in many cabins, alarmed, agitated women appeared. Farther on there were lanterns and a chaotic mass of moving objects. Above the increasing clamor rose the horrible, uncanny wail of a woman. Percival's blood cooled, his brain cleared. Men shouted questions as he passed, and obeyed his command to follow.

The ugly story is soon told. Philippa, the 15 year old daughter of Pedro, the head farmer, had gone out from her father's cabin at dusk to fetch water from the little reservoir that had been constructed alongside Leap Frog river a short distance above the cabins. The pool was a scant two hundred yards from her home. It was a five minutes' walk there and back. Half an hour passed and she had not returned. Her mother became uneasy. Pedro reassured her. He laughed at her fears.

"She could not have fallen into the pool," he said. "You forget the fence we have built around it."

"I am not thinking of the pool, Pedro," she argued. "Go you at once and search for her. She is no laggard. She has not stopped in to see one of the girls."

And Pedro went grumpily forth to search for his daughter. An hour later he came staggering down from the woods above the pool to meet the dozen or more friends and neighbors who had set out some time earlier to look for the two of them, father and daughter.

He bore in his arms the limp, apparently lifeless form of Philippa. He was covered with blood, he was chattering like a madman. Out of his incoherent babble the horrified searchers were able to put together the cruel story. It seems he had heard a faint cry far back in the dense wood—another and yet another. Then utter silence. Even the night birds were still.

Swift, paralyzing fear choked him. He tried to call out as he rushed blindly up from the pool into the forest, but only hoarse, unnatural gasps left his lips. He fell often, he crashed into the trunks of trees, but always he went onward, gasping out his futile cries. He knew not how long he beat through the forest.

He was not even sure that it was Philippa's cry he had heard, but his soul was filled with a great, convincing dread. He knew that his beloved Philippa, the idol of his heart, the sunshine of his life, was up there in the woods. Frequently he stopped to listen. He could hear nothing save the pounding of his own heart, and the wheezing of his breath, thick and labored.

Then, at last, during one of those silences, he heard something moving in the darkness near at hand. Something—some one was coming toward him through the underbrush. He called out hoarsely: "Philippa!" The sound ceased instantly, and then he heard a whispered execration. Wild rage possessed him. He plunged forward into the brush. Something crashed down upon his head and he felt himself falling forward.

The next he knew he was trying vainly to rise to his feet. Something hot was running into his eyes, hot and sticky. He lifted his hand to his head; it came away wet. He put his fingers into his mouth—and tasted blood! It was enough. His strength came back. He sprang to his feet and rushed onward, shouting, cursing, calling upon God! He had no recollection of finding his girl. Apparently everything was a blank to him until long afterwards he saw lights moving among the trees and voices were calling his name.

Percival and other cool headed men were hard put to check the fury of the mob. Men and women, bent on vengeance, made the night hideous with their curses, howls, and shrieks. In their senseless fury they prepared to kill. They had heard the stories about Manuel Crust and his disciples. Only the determined stand taken by the small group that rallied to Percival's support kept the maddened crowd from seeking out these men and rending them limb from limb.

The sailors from the Doraine were the first to listen to the pleas of the level headed—just as they had been the first to demand the lives of Manuel Crust and his gang. Individually they were rough men and lawless, collectively they were the slaves of discipline. It was to their vanity that Percival and the others appealed, only they called it honor instead of vanity. The mob spirit was quelled for the time being at least. No one was so foolish as to believe that it was dead, however. Unless the man guilty of the shocking crime was found and delivered up for punishment, the inevitable would happen.

"We'll get the right man," said the voice of universal fury, "if we have to cut the heart out of every one of Manuel Crust's gang."

The women were the worst. They fought like wildcats to reach the cabins occupied by the known followers of Manuel Crust. With knives and axes and burning faggots they tried again and again to force their way through the stubborn wall of men that had been raised against them.

As for Manuel Crust and his little group of radicals, they had vanished. They had mingled with the mob at the outset. There were many who recalled seeing this one and that one, remembered speaking to him, remembered hearing him curse the ravisher. But as their own names began to run from lip to lip, they silently, swiftly disappeared.

Dawn found the camp awake, but grimly silent. No one had gone to bed. With the first streak of day the man hunt began in earnest. All night long the camp had been patrolled. Every cabin had been searched, even those occupied solely by women. This search had been conducted in an orderly, businesslike way under the supervision of men chosen by Percival. The folly of beating the woods during the night was recognized even by the most impatient; there was time enough for that when the blackness of night had lifted.

Throughout the long night the restless crowd, with but one thought in mind, hung about the cabin of Pedro the farmer. The doctors and several of the nurses were in there. Down at the meeting house a bonfire had been started, and here were grouped the men to whom the leaders had intrusted their firearms and other weapons—men of the gun crew, under officers from the Doraine, the committee of ten, and others.

It was accepted as a fact that two men were involved in the heinous deed. Percival's account of the mysterious runners seemed definitely to establish this. He called upon Olga Obosky to verify his statement. If she was surprised by his admission that he was in her company when the men rushed past them in the darkness she did not betray the fact.

She indulged in a derisive smile when he went on to explain that it was so dark he had failed to recognize her until she spoke to him. She agreed with him that the two men must have come into the open a very short distance above them, having sneaked out between the cabins before suddenly breaking into a run. Avoiding the beaten roadway, they had laid their course twenty or thirty feet to the right of it, keeping to the soft, springy turf.

Percival had issued orders for the entire camp to congregate on the green at the first sign of day. The cold gray light of dawn fell upon vague, unreal forms moving across the open spaces from all directions. There was no shouting, no turmoil, scarcely the sound of a voice. The silent, ghostly figures merged into a compact, motionless mass in front of the meeting house. It was not necessary for Percival to call for order when he appeared on the steps and began to speak. The only sounds were the shuffling of feet, the rustling of garments, the deep, restrained breathing of the mass.

He spoke partly in English and partly in Spanish, and he was brief.

"You know what we are here for and what is ahead of us. I don't have to tell you the story of last night. You know it as well as I. You will be glad to hear the latest word from Dr. Cullen. Philippa is conscious. He thinks she will recover. She is having the best of care and attention.

"I will explain why we are all here now. The first thing for us to do is to count noses. We will go about it as rapidly as possible. After that we will get down to business. Mr. Landover and Mr. Malone will check off the name of every man, woman, and child. As your names are called, come forward, answer, and then move over beyond the corner of the building. We've got to find out just who is missing—if any one is missing at all."

He raised his voice. "I want you all to keep cool. Don't forget that we are after the men who committed this crime. We have no right to say that Manuel Crust or any of his crowd did this thing until we have positive proof of the fact. It may not have been any of Manuel's gang; don't forget that, people. We must make no mistakes.

"I am saying this to you now because I see Manuel Crust and some of his friends standing over there at the edge of the clearing. Stop! Don't make a move in their direction. We've all had time to think—we've all Percival looked hard into Manuel Crust's bloodshot eyes. An appalling thought had suddenly flashed into his mind. Sancho Mendez was to be sacrificed!
